Pierce Will Quit

CHARLESTON -- W.R. "Dub" Pierce, Jr., Superintendent of Charleston R-1 Schools, has announced his resignation effective June 30.

The school board previously had asked for his resignation at the end of this school year, but earlier in the year refused to release him from his contract so that he could take another job.

Pierce had stated that he had a valid contract with the board of education for the 1966-67 school year. Until yesterday he gave no indication whether he would contest the board's right to release him.

Earlier Pierce said he thought this release by the board was an unwarranted action. He had said that the board's action had damaged him professionally and financially and that he would expect the board to compensate him.

A statement was released yesterday, which related: "The board of education and the superintendent of schools have resolved their difference concerning the superintendent's contract for next year. A new contract has been entered into for the remainder of this year, and will terminate June 30, 1966. A vacancy will occur in the superintendency of this district as of July 1, 1966."

No mention was made of the terms of the "new contract for this year," and there was no immediate record of such an action in the minutes of the board.

Official action will be taken April 27 in a special board meeting and at that time it will be disclosed what the new contract consists of between Pierce and the school district.

Price Rise Slowed

WASHINGTON AP -- The consumer price rise has slowed a bit since February, but not nearly enough to erase the possibility that President Johnson may seek an anti-inflation tax boost.

The Labor Department reported Thursday a climb of four-tenths of 1 per cent in the living cost index in March, following a February jump of one-half of 1 per cent.

The successive increases added up to the biggest two-month rise since 1958. But wholesale prices held steady and now have turned downward. In the week ended Tuesday they were three-tenths of 1 per cent below the February level.

$141,828 Grant Given Richland

ESSEX -- The Richland school district R-1 has been notified that it has been approved for a $141,828 grant for a basic skills improvement program, grades 1 through 12.

The program will provide additional work and instructors for pupils who score at least one grade level below the national average for pupils of their age and grade on standardized achievement tests in any of four basic areas of reading, mathematics, science, and history, government or sociology.

Greatest emphasis will be placed on reading improvement and communications.

Other programs, which will supplement the basic skills and remedial reading improvement programs, include a health program, including a school nurse, a counselor to work with junior high and elementary pupils and teachers, a junior high-elementary library, and additional library materials and equipment, a social worker to aid in achieving a closer relationship between the school and home, educational aides to relieve teachers and other school personnel of clerical and mechanical duties to permit these people to spend more time in planning their work and in presenting it to pupils.

A great part of the program will be carried out during an eight-week summer program.

Brain May Be Damaged

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A 65-year-old patient with a partial artificial heart may have suffered some brain damage after a dramatic operation to save his life, doctors said today.

However, almost 24 hours after the device —about the size of a grapefruit — was implanted inside the man's chest his condition was generally reported as satisfactory.

Physicians feared there may be brain damage because the patient, Marcel L. DeRudder of Westville, Ill., had not regained consciousness.

A team of noted specialists from Baylor and Rice universities headed by Dr. Michael E. DeKakey, 57, performed a six-hour operation on DeRudder Thursday at Methodist Hospital.

They hope it will prolong his life and usher in a new era in the treatment of heart disease that could help thousands of other heart patients.

The latest medical advisory said it was too early to tell the extent of the brain damage DeRudder may have suffered.

The advisory noted that the heart device was functioning normally as expected.

Strike Barred

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson has barred a strike by the International Association of Machinists against five major airlines for at least 60 days by ordering an emergency board to investigate the dispute.

Senate Takes Up Last of Big Budget Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate today took up the last, and perhaps most controversial of the major budget bills.

It provides some $20.5 million in funds for major repairs and new construction at state institutions.

Thursday, in day and night sessions the Senate cleared the rest of the $1.1 billion in budget bills, to have them ready for a certain Senate - House conference committee when both houses come back to work Monday.

With pressure from local senators, the money was restored for first operations of the new four-year colleges at Joplin and St. Joseph.

Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, got $181,670 put back in a bill for Missouri Southern College at Joplin. And Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, won restoration of $40,000 for Missouri Western College at St. Joseph.

Other changes included:

An additional $75,000 for industrial machinery at Missouri Penitentiary in Jefferson City.

An extra $36,000 for Missouri Sanatorium at Mt. Vernon for care of 60 indigent tuberculosis patients being trasnferred from Leeds Hospital, Kansas City.

Standards for Draftees Cut

WASHINGTON AP -- The Defesne Department has lowered its mental standards for draftees.

Men with percentile scores between 16 and 30 on the armed forces qualification test now are being inducted if they score 90 or better on any two components of the test.

Previously, such men were eligible for induction only if they scored 80 or more on the general technical area of the test.

Selective Service officials said Thursday the change, which went into effect April 1, makes "only a very, very small number of additional men available for induction" because it applies to a limited number of registrants.

$17,045 for Parma Course

PARMA -- The Parma school system has been notified that its application for a summer remedial program has been approved at a cost of $17,044.70 and will be financed by the federal government.

The Program will begin May 31 and will run for 40 school days. The school will offer remedial work in reading, arithmetic, and language arts for grades 1 through 6, and science and mathematics for grades 7 through 12.

Transportation and lunches will be provided.

Teachers in the Parma system will be used. The board of education decided to use students who are going to college as aides.

New Signals Ordered at Intersections

It will be six weeks before downtown traffic lights will be back to normal City Manager W. Raymert Miller said today.

He said that signals at the intersections of New Madrid and Center Streets and New Madrid and North Streets have faulty mechanism and wiring. New signals have been ordered. Delivery will be made in approximately six weeks.

Four way stop signs are being installed at each of the intersections pending installation of new signals.

Trouble developed in the stop lights in the downtown area Tuesday night. Since two new lights and wiring have been erected on Malone Avenue.

One Quadruplet Dies, Others Ill.

ATLANTA, Ga. AP -- The three remaining babies of the quadruplets born to Christine Robbins six days ago remained in critical condition today after the death of one child Thursday.

The child who died was named Joan, second of the four infants to be born. The other three babies, two girls and a boy, have been named Jane, June, and John.

Baptist Church Will Dedicate New Building

Fellowship Baptist Church, 228 Missouri Ave., will dedicate its education building Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Rev. Morton Rose of Jefferson City, an associate in the office of missions of the Missouri Baptist convention, will deliver the dedicatory address.

Others on the program are Rev. Liston Smith, pastor of the Morley Baptist Church and moderator of the Charleston Baptist association, Rev. C. D. Butler, pastor of the Murray Lane Baptist church and clerk of the Charleston association, and Bill Blackman, chairman of the Deacons of Fellowship Baptist Church.

The church was originally a mission of First Baptist church, and Miner Baptist Church. It became an independent congregation in 1950 and dedicated its present auditorium in 1961.

Following the ceremonies open house will be observed. Jim Fitch, pastor of Fellowship, invites the public to attend.

Bomb Deal OFF

WASHINGTON AP -- The Defense Department says it no longer is considering efforts to buy or otherwise reacquire about 500,000 U. S. surplus bombs and shells that had been sold or given to West Germany.

Scott Tops In Sales Tax Collections

JEFFERSON CITY -- Thomas C. Gilstrap, state collector of revenue, announced today that Scott County sales and use tax collections of $279,379.15 for the quarter ending March 31 exceeded that of any other county in the Bootheel during that period.

Butler County was second with $250,714.44 followed by Dunklin county's $250,533.02.

Other Southeast Missouri counties: Stoddard, $172,678.34; Mississippi, $123,837.52; Pemiscot, $168,894.76; and New Madrid, $155,677.26.

Stock Curbs On Credit

NEW YORK AP -- A wave of speculative trading, much of it reportedly by small investors, has led the New York and American Stock Exchanges to restrict use of credit in buying stocks.

The action, announced late Thursday, will force traders to show more money, restrict the buying and selling of the same stock in a single day and discourage "uninformed speculation."

Lunch and Milk Programs Are Restored in Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson's proposals for cuts in spending for some popular domestic programs — such as free school lunches and milk—ran afoul of the House Appropriations Committee today.

In a move expected to be upheld by the House, the committee refused to approve cuts of about $128 million proposed by the President.

Its recommendations were included in the annual appropriation bill for the Agriculture Department, which the House will consider next Tuesday.

The committee said the increases it recommended would continue the programs at close to current year levels.

The President had proposed that the special milk program be limited to needy children.

Cars Collide On Parking Lot

Police report one accident yesterday. It involved no injuries.

A 1962 Pontiac, driven by John Sargent, 614 Moore, hit a 1959 Oldsmobile driven by Mary Rowell, Morehouse, on the parking lot of the Mid-Towner Village Shopping Center.

Slight damage was reported.

$32,197 to Be Used to Aid Reading

MATTHEWS -- A federal grant of $32,197 has been allocated to the R-V school district for a reading program for slow learners and related services, Supt. Lester M. King said.

The grant came through the state department of education under title I of the federal elementary and secondary education act.

King said that the grant will extend through July and that under the program, classes will be taught at the Matthews elementary school. He pointed out that the purpose of the grant is "to help educationally and economically deprived children who have fallen behind in their school work to have remedial classes."

Along with this remedial program there are provisions for a library and materials and a full time librarian and library aide.

The library portion of this program will be extended into the next school year, King said.

This is the third project that is in operation for the Matthews school under the federal education act. The other two are the dental cooperative unit with the other eight schools in the county and the county cooperative film project. All three projects total approximately $50,000.

Beginning in June will be the headstart program.

The programs will operate for a half day only, beginning June 3 and closing July 29. The remedial program will employ nine teachers. Headstart will have five teachers.

Cyclist Dies After Crash

A 15-year-old motor cyclist, Joseph Coffman, Poplar Bluff, died as the result of injuries in a collision Thursday at 4:45 p.m. at the intersection of Maude street and route PP, Poplar Bluff.

A 1956 Oldsmobile, driven by Frank Smody, 48, Neelyville, was passing another vehicle, when young Coffman attempted to make a left turn in front of the Smody car.

Smody told the highway patrol he did not see the cyclist in time to avoid the accident. Poplar Bluff police investigated the accident.

Bussey Files For Clerkship

BENTON -- Henry Sleeper Bussey, 117 East Gladys, filed today for county clerk in Scott county, subject to the Democratic primary, Aug. 2. He is vice president of Memorial Park cemetery.

He is the second to file. Clerk Phil Waldman Jr., filed previously.

The deadline for filing for any county office is Tuesday.

Floors Will Be Added

John Donoho, manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, today announced that construction of a part of a second floor and a new third story on the telephone building will begin in four to five months.

He said the cost of the construction hasn't been determined.

The new facilities will contain space for additional equipment and offices for personnell.

Acceptance of bids for construction has closed. They are being reviewed in St. Louis.

The business office of the company will be moved to another location, temporarily during construction.

The move is necessary because a stronger foundation must be built to support the new construction.

Donoho said that the telephone company planned to construct a fourth story in the future.

The second story now covers two thirds of the first floor. It will be completed to cover all of the first floor.

Bell Telephone has been in Sikeston since 1951 and employs 130 persons.

Donoho said that he doesn't expect any sizeable number of new employes to join the company as a result of the construction of the new facilities.

Red Regiment Threatened

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops threatened today to wipe out an entire Communist regiment after killing at least 257 Reds in the bloodiest fighting in a month.

Backed by artillery and air strikes, the allied battalions nailed down the mixed North Vietnamese-Viet Cong force in the scrub hills 10 miles northwest of Quang Ngai on the northern coast.

Blocking units moved in to cut off a Communist flight to the mountains in the east. U.S. officers reported from the battleground that the Communists were caught in a trap and said the fighting was continuing.

The Communists set up a blaze of automatic-weapons fire from the villages of Binh Back and Chau Nhani, but the Leathernecks took both in their eastward drive. The rain of steel from the air reduced Communist ground fire to a minimum on the second day of the allied strike.

The battle brought government troops into a big action for the first time after weeks of political crisis.

The U.S. Air Force and Navy continued hammering at North Viet Nam, hitting military bases, roads and bridges. Air Force pilots claimed they destroyed the Lang Bun and Phu Tho railroad bridges on the Red River valley line leading northwest of Hanoi to Red China.

The Navy lost an A6 Intruder from the carrier Kitty Hawk over North Viet Nam, 12 miles north of Vinh.

Matthews R-V District Will Be Integrated

MATTHEWS -- Beginning this fall the R-V district will operate an integrated school.

Two formerly Negro schools, Ogden and Big Ridge, will be closed. Those children, who attended Ogden, will attend the Matthews Elementary school. Those children, who attended Big Ridge, will attend the Canalou school.

Children in grades 7 through 12 will attend the junior and senior high school at Matthews. This will eliminate two grade teachers and equalize teaching loads. Grades 1-8 had been taught at Canalou, Ogden and Big Ridge.

The board of education earlier planned to bring all students in grades 7 through 12 to the junior and senior high school at Matthews, to close Big Ridge and then permit all pupils in the district to select a school to attend either at Canalou, Ogden or Matthews elementary.

Letters of explanation were mailed, by first class mail, to every parent in the district, concerning this plan.

After a large portion of the return forms were in and showing that a large percentage of the Negro students at Ogden selected Matthews elementary, the board decided to integrate the system. Freedom of choice would be permitted, by the federal government only one more year.

If Ogden should be operated another year it would be at a financial loss and unbalance the teacher-pupil ratio in the teaching load," Supt. Lester M. King said.

Outline for Civil Rights Conference Announced

PORTAGEVILLE -- Details of civil rights problems in the Bootheel are to be discussed at an open meeting in the high school by the Missouri state advisory committee to the U.S. commission on civil rights Friday and Saturday were announced today.

Rev. Richard P. Ellerbrake, chairman of the Missouri state advisory committee, said the meeting Friday will begin at 7 p.m. and conclude at 10 p.m.

The session on Saturday will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 5 p.m.

Subjects to be considered at the meeting, he added, will include school desegregation, job training, and the problems of agricultural workers.

On the subject of school desegregation, the committee will hear from school superintendents of New Madrid, Mississippi, and Pemiscot counties. A representative from the equal educational opportunities program of the U.S. office of education, Washington, D. C., will explain the new guidelines and other procedures pertaining to school desegregation.

Managers of the three offices of the Missouri division of employment security which serve the area, will discuss employment and job training programs. A representative of the bureau of employment security of the department of labor will participate.

County agents from four counties, as well as a representative of the Missouri extension service, will describe programs to aid farmers and farm workers.

Representatives of civil rights and other community organizations in New Madrid, Mississippi, Pemiscot, and Scott counties have been invited to participate. Portageville Mayor Joe Christian will welcome participants at the opening session.

The Missouri state advisory committee is one of 51 such units whose members serve without pay to inform the commission of civil rights matters in their communities and to disseminate information about federal law and policies.

Forrest P. Carson, an attorney in Jefferson City, is vice chairman of the state committee. Stanley D. Rostov, a Kansas City attorney, is secretary. Members of the Missouri State Advisory Committee are; John W. Bennett, a professor

The cultural level of a community cannot be measured by attendance at any particular performance.

But Sikeston did not dispaly and gratifying appetite for good music when between 300 and 500 turned out to hear a concert of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra.

After a long winter of television entertainment, the appearance of the orchestra in the community gave its residents the opportunity to see and hear live entertainment of the highest caliber. The price of the tickets was unbelievably low--only $1 per person.

While the project was not a failure or a debacle, attendance could be rated only as fair. Ideally a thousand or more might have been expected to come out for a chance of a lifetime opportunity.

The appearance was made possible by the efforts of the community's Council of the Arts, a willingness by this newspaper and the Bank of Sikeston, the First National Bank and the Security National Bank to financially guarantee it and a disposition by the orchestra members themselves to accept less than their usual concert fee just to give Missourians living in the smaller communities an opportunity to hear a concert at a low cost.

This involved more than financial sacrifice. Any tour to the smaller communities is harder than appearing in the larger cities. One night stands always are more tiring than presenting a series of concerts. Facilities in the smaller towns for the concert often are less than adequate.

That brings up another Sikeston deficiency.

If ever any proof was needed that this community could use a modern auditorium, the concert of the St. Louis Symphony provided it.

Even the musicians shuddered when the brass section put their musical instruments to their lips.

In the poor acoustics that prevailed the notes from horns rattled and boomed, crackled, roared echoed and reverberated into the giant chamber in a deafening, ear shattering, thunderous roar.

This brought painful grimaces from the audience, who sat with hands to ears.

The Editor did not need his hearing aid even.

Perhaps anticipation of a poor acoustical reception for the music held down the size of the audience.

It would be comforting to believe that was the reason.

Anyway bringing the St. Louis musicians to Sikeston was a noble experiment in spreading culture a little more widely.

General Motors public relations aren't always as good as its cars.

GM executives occasionally display an arrogance to others, an attitude toward the company bordering on reverence, and a public welfare viewpoint that is astonishing to say the least.

The late Charley Wilson, a member of President Eisenhower's cabinet, often put his foot in his mouth during his early days as a government official.

But to his everlasting credit, he learned the ropes and was able to overcome the earlier handicap of speech and the blind spot in his viewpoint that came from long years of General Motors training.

A Senate committee recently produced shocking evidence of a gum-shoe operations against Ralph Nader, a nationally known safety expert who has criticized the automobile industry for failure to remove hazards to safety in car design. Testimony was offered that Nader had been harassed by private detectives employed by the giant motor maker and that they had investigated into every aspect of his private life.

Senators chided General Motors executives for this investigation and rightfully pointed out that Nader's private life had no bearing on his qualifications as a motor car safety expert.

The president of the company apologized for it.

But the chief counsel of the company complained in an effort to justify the investigation that Nader had the audacity and temerity to question the safety of General Motors cars--just as if there was something sacred about it or that it somehow was above criticism.

If car safety standards in the future are enforced primarily by federal government regulations rather than by voluntary efforts of the car makers, it will be because General Motors has been too slow to eliminate a blind spot in its public relations approach.

Too many of their executives take one whiff of that rarefied air in Detroit and lose touch with the best interests of the people who are buying their cars.

General Motors has an enviable record but it isn't infallible. It isn't always right.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK 1966

National Library Week will be observed in Missouri and throughout the nation April 17-23. For the past nine years, more than 65 cooperating organizations have helped call attention to our nation's libraries, their resources and needs.

A recent inventory of library needs was conducted by the U.S. Office of Education, and the American Library Association. This inventory demonstrated that most of the nation's libraries are ill-housed, ill-equipped, and poorly staffed. Sixty-nine percent of the public libraries are below standard in the number of volumes in their collections with 97 per cent of these libraries failing to meet the standard for operating expenses. Conditions in college and university libraries are becoming worse. Seventy-three per cent of the four year schools and 91 per cent of the two year schools do not meet basic minimum standards for good library service to students and faculty. Two-thirds of the nation's elementary schools do not have libraries and the schools that do have libraries need to double their present collections to meet minimum standards.

With more emphasis being placed on reading, productive use of leisure time and further education, the library looms as one of the most important institutions in a community for self-improvement, entertainment and inspiration.

National Library Week will be observed throughout Missouri with essay contests, newspaper stories and features, television and radio appearances by literary personalities, author luncheons and library open-houses. The climax to National Library Week will be a Governor's Conference in Saint Louis on April 23. The featured speaker at this conference will be Harry Reasoner, White House Correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

NEW YORK (AP) — Do people cross the street when they see you coming?

Do they yawn when you start to speak? Do they squirm, fidget or flee in terror when you open your mouth?

These are all signs that you haven't mastered double-talk, the greatest social art of the 20th century.

It is simply a matter of saying exactly what you don't mean, and meaning exactly what you don't say.

For your guidance here are a few typical examples of modern, everyday double-talk followed by their literal translations:

"So sorry, Molly, I brushed my cigarette against your new dress." What I would far rather do is pour a plate of beef stew on it.

"I don't know what we'd do without this little place in the country." Probably live in the city and really enjoy life, I suppose.

"We feel that we have an up and coming community." Next year we're installing lights in the cemetery.

"I tell you what let's do. Let's play charades." Anything to get these bums out of the kitchen. We're running out of liquor.

"Well, if you feel it was against your principles, senator, I can understand why you didn't back my bill". But when you want a vote for that new dam in your state, pal, don't come crawling to me.

"Before I pass out the final exam questions, students, I want to remind you that here we all operate under the honor system." That's why I have stationed three assistants around the room — to see that you don't cheat.

"After all, money isn't everything." There are also things like stocks and bonds, diamonds, real estate and a good credit rating.

"You look so svelte and slim, Marge. What's your secret?" Even that $49.50 girdle can't hide those six malted milks a day.

"We're sending Debbie to a new school next year. It's supposed to be very exclusive." It only takes students that have flunked out of other schools.

"Oh, Jane, I've never tasted such a yummy sauce. You'll just have to let me have the recipe." Then, when I stop at the hospital on the way home, the doctors will at least know what antidote to give me.

"Do I think the difference in our ages will make any real difference? Of course not, you sweet old silly." When a girl marries a guy with one foot in the grave, she's got the battle half won.

"Well, well, well. And where have you been hiding?" Wherever it was, go back and hide there some more.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ... "Safety Last" by Jeffrey O'Connell and Arthur Meyers. Jeffrey O'Connell, a lawyer with experience in automobile accident law, is hopping mad about the state of vehicular safety and determined to tame the Detroit tiger. His book appears at a time when Federal legislation has already been aimed at some control of the 1967 models; consequently, the edge of urgency has been taken off his argument. But it still touches on the lives of every citizen and should stir active support for supplementation of such legislation. O'Connell, with Arthur Myers, blasts the automotive industry for what amounts to criminal negligence. The basic problem is that industry doesn't think safety pays (Ford tried it once in 1956), and the author's document is industry's willingness to pay with consumer lives instead. The book is full of horror stories. It also details efforts on the part of individuals and groups to place safety first, and gives a picture of how unsafe automobiles actually are and how much safer they might be without listing makes and styles. O'Connell hopes to do to the hazards of the automobile what Rachel Carson did to pesticides. He thinks legislation is the only way to police an industry which will not police itself, and his book offers fuel for further action.

A CLIFF-HANGER'S HAPPY ENDING

At the same time as the negative side of the Gemini-8 mission - just what went wrong with the capsule -- becomes clearer, its positive accomplishments begin to stand out, too.

No one can feel keener disappointment over the cutting short of the flight than the two astronauts, Neil Armstrong and Maj. David Scott -- particularly the latter, who was scheduled to take the first round-the-world space "walk." "walk."

But the two men can take pride in the fact that before the trouble developed they performed the first physical coupling of two separately orbiting vehicles, a vital milestone on this nation's path to the moon.

And they are undoubtedly pretty happy -- like a couple hundred other people -- that they managed the first energency landing of a disabled capsule. If, as the airplane pilots say, any landing you can walk away from is a good landing, no space flight you come back from safe and sound is a failure.

Americans can feel a new confidence in the caliber of their astronauts and of the unsung slide-rule boys on the ground who plucked them down with such precision.

The worst could have happened, but it didn't. That it didn't happen this time makes it less likely that it will happen on a subsequent flight.

In a way, this is better proof of the solid strength of our space program, and a better augur of its future success, than a routinely completed Gemini-8 mission would have been.

H. L. Hunt Says

THE REPUBLIC OF THE UNITED STATES

The philosophical and intellectual giants, Franklin, Jefferson, Adams, Washington and Hancock established for the people of the United States a republic instead of a democracy. In a true democracy the majority rules; the individual has no voice.

We should remember that the United States is a Republic motivated by a political democracy. This is where the difference occurs. The voting for our fellow-citizens to serve in our behalf in government and the voting on bond issues for financing our highways, streets and hospitals is accomplished through majority rule. This then is political democracy, but the role of democracy ends here.

Can you imagine the results if our laws could only be made by majority rule? The individual would lose. A true democracy is government by majority rule. If majority rule were the pattern of the American system where would the minorities or the individual be? No nation, system or individual on earth has anything to offer that compares with the form of government, moral code, and personal enterprise program inherent in the United States.

At no time or place is the United States proclaimed to be a democracy. You will not find it mentioned in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Monroe Doctrine, or Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. To a lady's inquiry about what form of government had been established, Benjamin Franklin replied, "A Republic -- if you can keep it."

We must not permit the result predicted by Lord Macaulay, in 1857, after having read our Constitution: "It will degenerate into a one man, one vote Democracy as soon as the people learn that they can vote themselves largess from the public treasury by electing unscrupulous politicians, and then find themselves doomed."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Confessed Ace Hi jackers' 'Brain' Ran Dummy Union Network.

New York: -- Hijacking is an art and few are as creative in this field as -- by his own admission -- Johnny Amalfitano.

On April 11, he pleaded guilty in Federal court to planning the appropriation, without benefit of title, of some 40,000 transistors from a truck making the final delivery with the shipment, which originated in Tokyo. The lot, worth about $100,000, had been purchased by a Manhattan wholesaler.

Mr. Amalfitano will be sentenced late in May. But this will not be the end of the saga of a hijacker who picked on the wrong truck -- one that could be traced. There is social significance in "Johnny A." He is a vital discovery because he is the provable criminal link between the loosely integrated underworld and the do-it-yourself dummy unionism, which has terrorized small businessmen for years in many a megalopolis.

Parole officers looking into Mr. Amalfitano's background for the benefit of the sentencing judge have discovered that the confessor had been virtually a one-man labor federation.

In the opinion of at least one witness appearing before the McClellan racket committee, "Mr. A." had dominated at least one local union which had been launched by those considered the successors to Murder, Inc.

They are an un-amusing lot known as the Gallo Brothers, who get a laugh now and then between gun plays, by dissembling as Damon Runyan characters.

Mr. Amalfitano apparently still has a better head on his shoulders. He helped to create something called the Federated Service Workers Union, a holding company thing which issued charters whenever it so pleased him.

It had a small office in Lower Manhattan. And a phone -- which was rarely used. Phone booths are better.

Mostly it operated out of Mr. Amalfitano's hat. He printed business cards listing him as an officer. He hired pickets from an "employment" agency and paid them a dollar an hour. These were then placed in front of stores, restaurants, cafes, laundries, etc.

When startled proprietors poured out of their stores -- as customers stopped pouring in--the pickets would say "We don't know nothing," and hand the owners Mr. Amalfitano's card.

Some of the local unions charted by the Federated "international" has no headquarters. Labor - management contracts were signed or business was done when "Mr. A." appeared.

This always was an ominous moment. He had a reputation for getting action -- something which hardly was diluted by his meeting with a Carmine Lombardozzi in a "Jackie's" restaurant some years ago on the eve of the chartering of still another local.

Mr. Lombardozzi was one of the men at the ill-famed Apalachin crime cookout convention some eight years ago. Today he is quite an affluent member of his bet-set.

Always surrounded by this aura of might and muscle, Mr. Amalfitano had little difficulty convincing shop owners and pub operators and restauranteurs to sign with his complex of unions.

Each union had a member -- such as Local 19, Cigarette and Coin Vending Machine Employes; or Laundry Workers Union, Local 12; the Restaurant and Cafeteria Employes, Local 26. "Mr. A." had imagination to match his muscle. There even was a section which was designed for bank clerks.

When some of these went out of business, their leaders simply got charters in some legitimate unions. These locked and interlocked with characters such as the convicts and ex-convicts, Tony "Ducks" Coralo and Johnny Dio, who has been under investigation by one of U. S. Atty. Robert Morgenthau's quiet, but hard-working, grand juries.

It is Mr. Morgenthau who wrapped up the case against Mr. Amalfitano and got the guilty plea. But his service to the country goes far beyond exposure of a hijacking brain.

Mr. Morgenthau has proven that there are steel-like links to a network which can operate much like a labor movement simply because it decides to proclaim itself as such, pay a few dollars for an engraved charter and go into business. This is prevalent.

It is the mark and the shame of many cities. As new McClellan hearings soon will show, it is lucrative for the movement's owners and costly and heart-breaking for its victims.

Yet there actually is no law which can prevent such ersatz unions from usurping the legitimate law of the land.

The case of Mr. Amalfitano proves that the drive for such legislation is long overdue.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Ever since Harry Truman accepted a deep freeze there has been much discussion of gifts to public officials, but generally the discussion has been one-sided.

It has been about Democratic presidents, not Republicans; and about members of the executive branch of government, not congressmen.

The deep freeze, valued at about $1,200, was given to Mrs. Truman by a Milwaukee contractor in 1946, through HST's military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan. More recently, a stereo set valued at around $800 was given to President Johnson by an insurance salesman through a then Senate secretary, Bobby Baker.

Both gifts became the subject of Senate inquiries and tremendous national interest. The news was spalshed all over front pages.

Much greater immunity has been given to gifts to members of Congress. Almost never do they investigate themselves. However, the law applies to them as well as to executive officials and the courts have ruled that gifts must be counted as compensation if the recipient performed any service for them either before or after acceptance. This has been applied even to free transporation and free vacations.

The law prohibits a congressman from accepting compensations "for any services rendered. . .in relations to any proceeding, contract, claim, controversy, charge, accusation, arrest, or other matter" before the government.

DODD'S ROLL CALL

Neither President Truman nor President Johnson gave any service for their celebrated gifts. This has not always been true of members of Congress. Unquestionably the most notorious gift-taker has been Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., and a check-up on his gifts shows that he has sometimes rendered service. Incidentally, we do not believe the great majority of other Senators engaged in this practice. Here is part of the Dodd record:

Sapphire ring -- Edgar Parser, New York diamond dealer, gave Mrs. Dodd a sapphire ring. Shortly thereafter, she lost the stone out of the ring. Dodd asked Parser for a new sapphire, which he got.

Sen. Dodd tried to have Parser appointed U.S. ambassador to Belgium, later U.S. ambassador to Luxembourg. Parser was more successful in supplying two sapphires than Dodd was in securing either one of two ambassadorial appointments.

Footwear -- Most of the Dodd family has been outfitted with footwear, from boots to tennis shoes, by the Goodyear Company at Middletown, Conn. When the tariff was cut on the importation of foreign footwear, Sen. Dodd vigorously opposed the cut.

Hair dryers -- Mrs. Dodd received a gift of two hair dryers from General Electric for a charity auction. When the dryers arrived she liked them so much that she kept one for herself and gave one to a friend.

Television set -- This was given to the Senator by Florence Lowe, an executive of Metromedia TV stations at the time Dodd was investigating violence on television. Dodd thereafter gave Mrs. Lowe's son a job on his subcommittee staff, also ordered his aides to stop their investigation of Metromedia.

Wall-to-wall carpeting -- This rich blue carpeting in Dodd's country place at North Stonington, Conn., came from New London furniture dealer Syd Symon. Dodd has boasted to aides that the carpeting cost him nothing. He arranged a presidential pardon at Symon's request for the latter's friend, Philip Levine, convicted of income tax evasion.

Symon, when queried by this column, insisted that Dodd had paid the wholesale price for the carpeting. Asked how the payment was made, Symon replied "by personal check." When Symon was told there was no record in Dodd's accounting of a check to Symon, he shouted, "It's none of your g-- d--- business!" and hung up the phone.

Clocks -- The Senator, a collector of clocks, has a large number in his North Stonington home from the Ingraham Company, which sent him a catalogue and told him to take his pick. Dodd arranged a $1,000,000 area development loan for the Company's new plant in Bristol, Conn.

Wesley Songer, president of Ingraham, admitted the Senator had obtained "several" clocks from the company but claimed Dodd paid wholesale prices for all but one. This had been a gift.

Silverware -- Ralph Bertinni, recently retired president of International Silver, acknowledged that the company had replated some of Dodd's silverware. He also acknowledged that he had persuaded Dodd to intervene at the White House for high silver tariffs.

Air-conditioned Oldsmobile -- We reported earlier that Dunbar Associates supplied Dodd with an air-conditioned Olds in 1964. A new angle has now developed, namely a brand new 1966 Olds has been delivered to the Senator. It is still registered in the company's name. Dodd has secured government contracts for Dunbar Associates.

Foreign gifts -- When Sen. Dodd and wife visited Korea last year, they received so many presents--oriental handicraft, silks, jewelry, silk screen, a hand-carved table--that the gifts were sent home by boat and two of the Senator's aides had to make two trips to Baltimore to bring them to Washington.

Shortly thereafter Dodd delivered a Senate speech hailing President Park of Korea as a "great modern statesman under whose administration Korea has been blessed with political stability and with an almost miraculous degree of social and economic progress."

BEHIND LBJ'S TREMENDOUS RECEPTION

Left wing agitators who would have relished the chance to demonstrate against President Johnson in Mexico City were caught completely off base by the government strategy of delaying any announcement of his trip.

Here are some of the backstage details on how the trip was organized and executed:

Real fact is that Johnson's "surprise" visit was set up more than a week before the public knew it.

It was on April 6 that Johnson accepted President Diaz Ordaz's invitation, but it was agreed to hold off any public announcement until April 12, just before Johnson's arrival. A certain amount of time was needed for telephone workers to install the direct lines to Washington that the President would require, for city employes to put up the banners, posters, signs and flags, and to work out details between the American and Mexican secret services.

So a 48-hour advance notice time was agreed on. Air Force One, bringing the first family and the rest of the official party, was due to land in Mexico City at 5:30 p.m. on April 14. On April 12, the Texas White House put out a press release disclosing the President's "sudden" decision to accompany Lady Bird and the others.

LEFTISTS SURPRISED

The timing was perfect. Mexican leftist leaders held a hasty meeting that evening, with Vicente Lombardo Toledano presiding, at the headquarter of his red-lining Popular Socialist Party (PPS).

Discussion about the possibility of mounting a Viet Nam war protest parade during Johnson's stay was heated. Representatives of Mexico's minuscule Communist party were all for it.

But Lombardo, a wily realist with half a century of experience as a political agitator, argued that anything less than a massive demonstration -- which couldn't be put together in a day and a half -- would be broken up before it could even attract attention. There would be nothing but cracked heads and unpublicized arrests to show for it.

His counsel prevailed, and the Socialist party issued a bland statement commending the visit as "an opportunity for useful contact between heads of state" and calling on its followers to refrain from any show of hostility.

Meanwhile, Mexican authorities did a terrific job of organization. By the time the U.S. delegation arrived, all Mexico City -- now, with more than 6,000,000 inhabitants, the second largest metropolis in the Western Hemisphere -- was decked in gala garb.

So smoothly efficient were all the arrangements that not a single snafu or untoward incident developed during the President's stay.

He and Diaz Ordaz took two hours and 30 minutes to drive the seven and a half miles from the airport to Los Pinos, Mexico's White House, chiefly because they stopped frequently to shake hands with part of the 2,000,000 cheering people lining the route.

BARRY GOLDWATER WELCOMES

Barry Goldwater had been in Mexico City a day and a half when Johnson's visit was announced. A few hours before he arrived, Goldwater addressed students at the International University of the Americas just outside the capital and was asked: "If you were President, what would you be doing now in Viet Nam?"

"Isn't that what President Johnson is coming down here to ask me?" shot back Goldwater.

The GOP leader was present at both the Lincoln statue unveiling ceremony in a Mexico City park and at Lady Bird's formal reception in the American embassy. He and LBJ did not, however, meet.

When the President went down the line of the diplomatic corps at the airport on his arrival, the only man he stopped to chat with was Shimshon Arad, Israel's envoy, whom he had known when Arad was Israeli minister-counselor in Washington.

Later, Arad told friends that shortly before Johnson's jet landed he had been approached by an ambassador from "a Soviet bloc country" who inquired conspiratorially:

"Just what do you make of this? Must be a crisis in the Organization of American States, no?"

"For heaven's sake, man!" Arad replied. "Stop being a Marxist for one day. Johnson just likes to do these things."

The diplomats plus some 50,000 spectators were kept waiting an hour and a half at the airport next day while LBJ and Diaz Ordaz had a convivial time at the luxurious mansion of the famed Mexican film comic, Cantinflas.

Johnson and the actor -- whose real name is Mario Moreno -- have known each other for several years. Cantinflas's Russian-born wife, Valentina, recently died of cancer in a Texas sanitarium. Afterward, LBJ had the bereaved entertainer for a weekend at his Johnson City ranch.

Diaz Ordaz included Cantinflas in the guest list for the luncheon he hosted at Los Pinos following the statue dedication. After lunch, the comic invited the male guests at his table to adjourn to his home. Both presidents promptly accepted.

Note -- One reason the public reception for Johnson was so tremendous was that hospitality-conscious Mexican officials had passed the word to hundreds of thousands of government employees that "our country's honor depends on doing as well this time as we did for President Kennedy four years ago." Best estimates are that the turnout for LBJ topped JFK's by about 15 per cent.

Joan Cooper Bess Says Vows With Jack Edwards

Mrs. Joan Cooper Bess and Jack Owen Edwards were married at the Lutheran church Saturday morning at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Harold Belsheim officiating.

The bride wore a corded silk three piece suit of blue and white with matching blue and white accessories. She carried a bridal bouquet of white orchids.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Marilyn Kay Lewis, was her matron of honor and the groom's partner in law at Dempster, Edwards and Robinson law offices, Jim Robinson, served as best man.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cooper, parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Morris, sister and brother-in-law of Bowling Green and matron of honor Mrs. Lewis of the St. Louis area.

Honored With Wedding Breakfast

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fitzgerald entertained Mr. and Mrs. Jack O. Edwards immediately after their wedding ceremony with an elaborate wedding breakfast at their country mansion.

Following the breakfast, attended by family and close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, the newly married couple boarded the City of Miami for a two-week honeymoon in Florida.

Upon their return, they will make their home in Sikeston on Moore Avenue.

As head of the Klan, I resolve to continue the fight against all those un-American subversives who hide behind the Fifth.

Golf Notes

For the third Tuesday in a row, the weather has thwarted the most of the lady golfers of the Sikeston association. So far nineteen players have turned in one or more scores for the Ringer Tournament for the month of April.

All players may compete in this tournament even with one score to be played next Tuesday providing the weather cooperates. In the meantime golfer try to get out for some practice.

Remember the responsibility of golf classes rests upon the members, so arrange the class.

Plan to stay for lunch Tuesday. There are some plans for discussion as well as some tournament announcements.

The Modern Christian

"Do we experience the will of God if we follow the original Ten Commandments of the Jewish people?"

A person's insight into the will of God is awakened and fulfilled, just as a loving person feels and knows instinctively not merely what the beloved does not want, but what he does desire.

The answer is often the Ten Commandments. This is true, but it goes beyond this. For the experience of the will of God in the conscience is much like a personal relationship deepened in love.

Our experience with God, in which our conscience has an important role, is unique and creative, insofar as we personally fulfill his desires and plans. The relationship of the Christian to God that is based on love will give us access to an ever new and deeper knowledge of God's will.

When we love God we find positive opportunities for Christian living that go far beyond the list of the Ten Commandments. The conscience develops a mature conversation with the Lord that ends in a personal relationship.

'The King And I' Is To Be Little Theatre Play

Encouraged by the enthusiastic reception by the public of "Sound of Music," the final production of 1965, the Sikeston Little Theatre is now in rehearsal for Rogers and Hammersteins "The King and I." Director is Hope Terrell, assisted by Ernest Elledge.

Final casting of the principal characters was completed two weeks ago and three of the major singing roles are to be played by favorites from the last musical.

Jo Anne Fox, who will be remembered as Maria of "Sound of Music," will play Anna Leonowens and is also serving as director of music for the current production.

Patsy Mitchell, whose rendition of "Climb Every Mountain" was one of the outstanding moments of "Sound of Music," will portray Lady Thiang, the first wife of the King of Siam. Patsy is also serving as producer of the play.

Patty McMullin, the provocative oldest child of the Trapp family will play the role of Tuptim, the Burmese slave girl. Her lover, Lun Tha, the Burmese ambassador is being played by Ralph Duncan, a "first timer" for the group.

Another newcomer to Sikeston Little Theatre, James E. Moore III, is cast in the difficult role of the King.

There are many more favorites in the cast: Tommy Jobe as Anna's son, Louis; Bill Spencer as Capt. Orton; Buddy Clayton as the Kralahome; Susie Mitchell, a veteran player, as Princess Ying and Francis Schumacher, as Sir Edward Ramsey.

Among the wives of the King of Siam are Billy Sue McCann, who played a nun in "Sound of Music"; Carol Sue Clayton, who sang the role of Baroness Elsa Shrafer in "Music" and Shirley Davidson, who sang the role of Sister Sophia in the successful production. Other wives are Kay Hunter, Charlene Freeman, Greer Huff, Mary Cooney, who also played a nun in "Sound of Music"; Martha Bess, Lolita Scott and Anne Rowe, both former Little Theatre actors.

David McCann, also a veteran of Sikeston Little Theatre at a young age, portrays one of the King's children along with first time performers Alex Waters, Jr., in the role of Prince Chu; his brother Steven Waters and Brenda Stewart.

SHARING A GREAT DISCOVERY

Flood Homers For 5-4 Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roommates Curt Flood and Bob Gibson made it a family affair as the St. Louis Cardinals slipped past the Mets Thursday in New York, 5-4.

Kansas City didn't play.

Flood bashed a two-run homer in the ninth with Lou Brock on base to give the Cardinals the victory after Gibson struck out 11 Mets and allowed the New Yorkers only four hits. It was Gibson's second victory of the season against no defeats and it came when it looked like he might lose through no fault of his own.

Three of the four New York runs were unearned.

Flood's curtain closing blast was his third hit of the day and gave him his third and fourth runs batted in. The Redbird centerfielder also scored a run.

Gibson is still the only St. Louis pitcher to complete a game. He finished Thursday and went all the way last Friday when he pitched his way to a 9-2 romp over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

So far this season, Gibson has struck out 21 and walked only two.

After Flood hit the two-run homer, Gibson set the Mets down in order on a pop fly, a ground out and a strike out.

The Cardinals return to St. Louis today to face the Pirates in Busch Stadium. Ray Washburn (0-1) will pitch for the Redbirds against the Pirates' Tom Sisk (1-0).

After a day off Kansas City plays Chicago tonight in the A's home park. Gary Peters, (0-0), will be on the mound for the White Sox and Jim (Catfish) Hunter, (0-1), will pitch for the A's.

Juan Marichal 3-0 For Season, Holds .067 ERA

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Marichal is ahead of last year's pace. He's already won three games — and one fight.

Marichal, who last season tangled with John Roseboro in one of the most celebrated brawls in baseball history, pitched the San Francisco Giants to their fifth straight victory Thursday by checking the Chicago Cubs 5-2 on six hits.

It was Marichal's third straight complete game victory, and emphasized that he is winning his battle to wipe out any mental scars left by the bat-swinging incident that cost him an eight-day suspension and a $1,750 fine.

But Marichal is just living up to the prediction he made before the season started.

"I'll never forget that day," he admitted. "But I don't think it affected my pitching the rest of last season.

"And it won't bother it this year."

However, there were those, such as Philadelphia Manager Gene Mauch, who wondered, particularly when Marichal won only three games and lost four after sitting out his suspension.

"You see a lot of scars in baseball," Mauch said. "On the face and the chin and the cheeks, and on the legs and arms. We don't know about this scar. This one might be someplace where you can't see it."

Marichal is proving you can't see what doesn't exist and, although he will never forget that day last year, there is little doubt that the only thing he wants people to remember is his pitching.

In the three victories so far this season, the Giants' ace right-hander has allowed only 16 hits, striking out 23 while walking just two, and allowing only two earned runs for a microscopic .067 earned run average.

The loss was the fifth straight for the hapless Cubs, who announced after the game they had traded pitchers Bob Buhl and Larry Jackson to Philadelphia for outfielders John Herrnstein and Adolfo Phillips and pitcher Ferguson Jenkins.

The Phillies, who need pitching help, dropped a 5-4 decision to Atlanta for their third straight loss, while Pittsburgh, which doesn't seem to need any help, edged Cincinnati and Milt Pappas 2-1 for its sixth straight victory and eighth in nine games.

In the only other National League game scheduled, St. Louis edged the New York Mets 5-4. Chicago belted California 8-6 in the only American League game scheduled as rookie Tom Agee scored five runs for the White Sox.

Marichal, who struck out 12 Cubs, got more support than he needed as Willie Mays and Jim Hart each smacked two-run homers. It was Mays' fourth homer of the season and No. 509 of his career, leaving him only two short of Mel Ott's National League record.

Eddie Mathews set a major league record by playing in his 2,009th game as a third baseman for the Braves, who rode Chris Short's wildness and Rico Carty's key triple to their victory over the Phillies.

The Phillies built a 4-2 lead but Short walked Lee Thomas with the bases loaded in the sixth inning to force in a run, then got into trouble in the eighth when he walked Joe Torre. Carty followed with a triple, driving in the tying run, then raced home when Short uncorked a wild pitch.

Pappas, acquired from Baltimore in the Frank Robinson trade, made an effective first start in the National League, allowing only five hits and striking out seven in six innings. But Pittsburgh's Bob Veale was a little sharper, allowing only six hits and striking out nine in going the distance.

Pappas was tagged for a solo homer by Jesse Gonder in the third inning, then surrendered the winning run in the sixth on Matty Alou's triple and a successful squeeze bunt by Gene Alley.

Curt Flood collected three hits for the Cardinals, including a two-run homer in the ninth inning that pulled them from behind against the Mets. Bob Gibson pitched a four-hitter for the victory, his 13th against two losses lifetime against New York.

Agee hit his third homer for the White Sox, all against the Angels, and also collected a single and two walks while reaching base a fifth time when he was hit by a pitch. He also stole a base. Pete Ward collected one of Chicago's key hits, a bases-loaded triple in a four-run third inning uprising.

Local Fishing Report

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Heavy rains have spoiled fishing in most Missouri streams but the lakes are providing some more satisfaction to anglers, the Conservation Commission reported today.

Smaller streams could be in good condition by the weekend.

Conditions by region:

Northwest -- Streams in poor condition but some success reported on channel catfish.

North Central -- Streams high and murky; some channels being taken on worms.

Northeast -- Streams muddy; best fishing in soughs.

West central -- Upper Osage, Sac and south Grand muddy; Pomme de Terre muddy above the lake but will be clear this weekend below the dam unless gates are opened; spoonbills snagging good at Osceola.

Central -- Best in the lower Osage where crappie and white bass are hitting well; Gasconade, Niangua and Maries muddy.

East central--Streams in poor condition.

Southwest -- James high and muddy but Elk in good condition and goggle-eye are biting well.

OZARK -- Streams muddy.

Southeast -- Black, St. Francis and Castor muddy but could clear by the weekend in upper reaches.

Lakes:

Bull Shoals -- Upper portion clear with bass, crappie and bluegill fishing good.

TABLE ROCK -- Good; black bass biting deep.

TANEYCOMO -- Good; trout biting well.

CLEARWATER -- High and dingy; white bass the best bet.

WAPPAPELLO -- High and muddy; channel cat hitting on trotlines.

NORFORK -- Rising and muddy; crappie bitting well on jigs.

POMME DE TERRE -- Clear except for headwaters; best catch is bass.

LAKE OF THE OZARKS -- Clear except extreme upper portions; black bass hitting deep.

MONTROSE -- Muddy but catfish and bass being taken.

SCHELL-OSAGE -- Clear with crappie, bass and bluegill good.

DUCK CREEK -- Clear; bluegill biting and crappie taking minnows.

HUNNEWELL -- Clear with bass best.

LITTLE DIXIE -- Good condition; bass hitting deep running lures.

TRIMBLE -- Good; bluegill and crappie taking worms and minnows.

JACOMO -- Clear; bass hitting deep and channels taking worms.

PAHO -- Clear; bass hitting deep, catfish taking worms.

THOUSAND HILLS -- Murky; bass hitting deep, crappie taking jigs and minnows.

Baseball Tourney

ORAN -- Advance shut-out Matthews yesterday in the second game of the State Sub-District baseball tourney 1-0 on a no hitter by Bill Morgan.

Sikeston will meet Bloomfield this afternoon at 1 p.m.

Fishing Tourney Starts

BRANSON, Mo. AP -- The fifth annual Missouri State Fishing Tournament opens today on Lake Bull Shoals with 20 contestants entered from Missouri, Kansas and Ohio.

Saturday's fishing will be on Lake Table Rock and the final day of fishing Sunday will be on Lake Taneycomo.

Glen Andrews, now from Rogers, Ark., won the title last year but is not eligible this year because of a new rule barring any person who holds a guide's license.

The championship is determined on points given for size of eligible fish brought in at the end of each 12-hour day, starting at 5 a.m. Eligible fish include black bass, trout, Kokanee salmon, channel cat, crappie and walleye.

Bulldogs Drop Two Games

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Sikeston's golf and tennis teams suffered two losses here yesterday at the hands of the Caruthersville Tigers.

In golf the Bulldogs Charles Atchison fired a low of thirty eight with Charles stamp firing a 41, Net Matthews and King Sidwell each had scores of 45.

The match was pretty close all the way with Charleston coming out the winner by Five Strokes 164-169.

The Bulldogs tennis players had a tough time with the Tigers as the Bulldogs were shut-out 5-0.

Terry Burke split games with his Caruthersville challenger 6-1, 6-1, and was shut out in the final match 6-0. Dean Childers was defeated 6-4, 6-1.

In the third singles Wythe Miller was beaten 6-4 and 6-4, Burke and Childers were beaten in the doubles 9-7, Hank Lippert, and Bill Dickerson were beaten by scores of 6-4, and 6-1.

In the two exhibition matches Jerry Humes of the Bulldogs won the only match 6-4 and 6-3, and Brad Crumpecker was beaten in the other exhibition match 6-3 and 6-3.

PITCHING -- Juan Marichal, Giants, posted his third straight complete game victory in San Francisco's 5-2 triumph over Chicago, allowing only six hits and one earned run while striking out 12.

BATTING -- Curt Flood, Cardinals, collected three hits and four runs batted in as St. Louis edged the New York Mets 5-4, hitting a two-run homer in the ninth inning for the winning runs.

BOSTON CELTICS ARE THE GREATEST INVENTION SINCE BUTTERED TOAST

By TED WILLIAMS

If President Johnson wants some unsolicited advice on how to win over the uncommitted nations in Asia and Africa, he should just send the Boston Celtics out on a grand tour of the world.

Whatever happens in the meeting between the Celtics and the Lakers will be anti-climactic. The Celtics are more than just a fabulous sports team. They're the epitome of what can be done between the races and the religions. For years people have been singling out the Celtic stars who have been responsible for their incredible victory streak of finishing first in the Eastern Division ten consecutive times and now heading for their eighth straight world championship!

When Bob Cousy retired, that was supposed to be it for the Celtics. The same when Frank Ramsey left, then Tommy Heinsohn. But the Celts kept winning. Many people said the Celts are Bill Russell and that's as far as it goes but it isn't. The Celts never played a game with one man; always five and always that fantastic bench. After all, if you want to talk about just one man pick Wilt Chamberlain. Here's the perfect example of the tremendous super star in sports. But the Philly 76er's are out of the picture despite Chamberlain's great efforts. And what about the Cincinnati Royals super star Oscar Robertson? You just don't win the game with one man alone no matter how great his performance. Sure, in a single game or more one man is the spark quite often but not over the hard, grinding schedule of eighty games in basketball or 154 in baseball.

Russell, Casey Jones, Sam Jones, John Havlicek, Satch Sanders, Larry Siegfried, Don Nelson, Mel Counts and "Red" Auerbach. "Red" Auerbach is the guiding genius, undoubtedly the best professional coach in the history of any sport.

No team can whip the Celtics single-handedly. And though Chamberlain thought that this was his year to win, he must be wondering just what a guy has to do to win a championship. Wilt has not played on a championship team since his high school days.

And what better place for the Celtics to win than at Philly's Convention Hall in front of the enemy fans, who, incidentally, were pretty put out at the 76er's losing and were throwing things on the floor.

It's a paradoxical world we live in. The Communists put down our society because of the individual's right to earn a lot of dollar bills. The Celtics represent everything that our country stands for despite the obstacles put in the way as Bill Russell writes so brilliantly in his book. The races mix together along with the religions; the players are paid good money and deservedly so for this is what all sports mean in the long run. The right to make the honest dollar. It's not just a matter of money; it has everything else riding with it as well as pride, self-respect, camaraderie, hard, grueling work and the reward of financial gain in the end. There's nothing that can compare to getting piad for what one loves to do best. And the Boston Celtic teams of "Red" Auerbach will go down in sports history as the best there ever was in our time. Perhaps in any time.

State Baseball Tourney To Begin Play

Some 211 Missouri high schools will begin play next week in the Seventeenth Annual MSHSAA State High School Baseball Series. Sub-district tournaments are scheduled to be completed by April 30, district games by May 7, and sectional and regional games by May 21.

All teams were assigned to tournaments to play on a geographical basis with an attempt to limit the amount of travel and the expenses involved. Because of the proximity of schools to each other in the St. Louis area, the St. Louis teams will start play at the district level.

Winners of the sub-district tournaments will advance to play in the district games, district winners to sectional games, and sectional winners to regional games. Regional winners will play in the semi-finals at Heine Meine Field in Lemay (St. Louis County) on May 27. The finals will be played there on May 28.

The first semi-final game will start at 2:00 D.S.T. Friday afternoon, May 27, and will be between the two teams in the upper half of the bracket. The second semi-final game will match the two teams in the bottom half of the bracket and will start at 8:00 D.S.T., Friday evening. The state final game will be played at 2:00 D.S.T. Saturday, May 28.

Television is a medium of entertainment which permits millions of people to listen to the same joke at the same time and yet remain lonesome.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

SPORTS IN BRIEF

SAN FRANCISCO AP -- Bud Poile confirmed Thursday that he planned to resign as general manager of the San Francisco Seals after the Western Hockey League playoffs end.

CHERRY HILL, N. J. AP -- Jockey Jorge Velasquez road four winners at Garden State Park Thursday.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. AP -- Dick Johanningmeier, a former tackle at Southwest Missouri State has been named football line coach at American International, Director of Athletics Joe O'Grady announced Thursday.

LOS ANGELES, AP -- Boston Celtics' coach Red Auerbach, never a retiring fellow, is about to do just that.

But instead of the customary gold watch, his players would like to give the flamboyant coach a National Basketball Association trophy.

It isn't that Auerbach doesn't have one -- he has eight, including the last seven given, but the Celtics want him to finish as a winner.

Boston takes a 2-1 lead over the Los Angeles Lakers into tonight's game in the best-of-seven title series, and a Celtic victory would virtually assure them of the NBA championship.

The teams meet again Sunday in Boston, while the sixth and seventh games, if necessary, will be here next Tuesday and in Boston next Thursday.

Three Injured In Traffic Mishaps

KENNETT -- Troop E of the Missouri Highway Patrol reported that three persons were injured in two separate traffic accidents in the lower Bootheel Thursday.

A one-car accident occurred at 1:10 a.m. six miles south of Hayti on Highway 61. Frank Riley, 48, of Lilbourn, driver of a northbound 1960 Chevrolet, lost control of his vehicle on wet pavement, causing the car to go off the road and strike a culvert. Injured was Riley's wife, Delsie Riley, 44, who suffered possible head injuries and contusions. She was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital at Hayti for treatment.

Two cars collided at 3:35 p.m. seven miles north of the Arkansas-Missouri state line on Highway 61. All persons involved were from Steele.

Beatrice Sandlin, 60, was attempting to turn left in a 1966 Buick when the rear of the vehicle was struck by a 1958 Ford driven by Lawrence Gastring, 28.

Mrs. Sandlin sustained back injuries and contusions while her husband, Clarence Sandlin, 56, a passenger in the car, received possible fractured ribs. Both went to Doctor's Clinic at Caruthersville for treatment.

Gestring was issued a summons for careless and reckless driving.

Coleman Hitting .533 For Missouri Tigers, 8 for 15

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Ron Coleman, leading Tiger hitter, packs his travel bag for the Kansas series at Lawrence this Friday and Saturday, and probably will start in center-field.

Coleman, the lithe, basketball bombardier, was hitting .533 for Missouri (8 for 15) when he sprained his left arm in the fourth game with Texas A & M. Inaccurately, the injury was first diagnosed as a fracture.

Though inactivity has dulled his timing, Coleman should add more sting to a sputtering team attack (.252). The fleet Jefferson Citian also will improve things defensively.

Missouri, now 2-4 in Big Eight games, is lagging in its bid to win the championship a fifth, straight time. As a contender of any stature, the Bengals must achieve a difficult sweep of the three-game set against the tail-end Jayhawks (1-5) this Friday and Saturday.

Sophomore Mike McFarland (1-1) and Mike Eader (-10) are the probable seven-inning pitchers on Friday -- with fastballer Orville Hollrah (1-2) working on Saturday. Bill Maddux and Sandy Buda are likely to be two of K.U.'s pitching choices.

Coach John Simmons of Missouri is still unsettled on his shortstop and third-base positions -- where he has had problems blending hitting and defense. At third, there is little to choose between the puny averages of newcomer Bill Griffin (.154) and letterman Roger Lindstrom (.151).

Rookie Rudy Stroupe is outswinging veteran Tom Seal, .250 to .162, but Seal is more seasoned afield. Behind the plate, Phil Rhode is hitting .368 to strapping Al Chettle's .241, but Simmons likes Chettle's defensive mechanics.

The Tigers, 607 for all games, probably will line up this way: Gene Stephenson, rf (.250); Tom Seal, ss (.162); Ron Cummins, 1b (.192); Bob Robben, 2b (.218); Al Chettle, c (.241); Ron Coleman, cf (.533); Barry Lubeck, lf (.333); Roger Lindstrom, 3b (.151); and Mike McFarland (1-1).

Oklahoman and Buddies Search for Viet Cong

EDITOR'S NOTE — D-Day. Clark Richie of Jay, Okla., only 22, and his buddies moved out for the attack against the Viet Cong. Through the steaming jungle they went in search of the elusive enemy on this fear-filled Friday, the last of five testing days in the life of a GI.

CU CHI, South Viet Nam (AP)—The men groped in the darkness as the clicks and clanks of pistol belts, helmets and rifles mixed with hoarse whispers of "Let's go, let's go."

Pfc. Clark Richie of Jay, Okla., already was set. He had taken the last watch of the night atop the bunker and was wide awake now at 5:45 this Friday morning.

Richie, 22, was the machine gunner for B Company. His team would be in the first wave of this morning's attack.

They were going after the Viet Cong in a stronghold the enemy had held for decades.

Then a swarm of dots appeared far off in the sky—the helicopters were coming to take them to the attack point.

The helicopters landed and their vibrating shells filled quickly. One by one in rotation they took off—sailing low for a few hundred yards, then soaring upward.

Below could be seen Cu Chi, the town near the camp and some 25 miles northwest of Saigon. Farther west were the jungles and rubber plantation where these men of 2nd Battalion, 27th Infantry Regiment—the famed "Wolfhounds" of Korea—had first tangled with the Viet Cong in hacking out their 2nd Brigade, 25th Division base camp.

The fleet of choppers hummed for 15 minutes over villages and green fields, dense jungles and dry brown paddies. Then, suddenly, swiftly, they dropped.

Soldiers leaped and tumbled out — they had been instructed the helicopters would be on the ground just four seconds.

Richie's team hit the paddy, sprawled flat and waited for the choppers to soar off. Hunched over, they charged in short, chopping steps to the edge of the clearing.

Platoon by platoon the GIs disappeared into the jungle. Bursts of firing erupted as the lead element met resistance. Enemy bullets cracked and whined through the paddy where Richie's platoon waited to move up. Every man plunged into the dew-damp ground.

It was 9 a.m. and Richie's unit was called up, through jungles so thick Richie could not see the man two yards in front of him.

The jungle opened into a clearing where a thatched roof hut was blazing. For months the inhabitants of the area had been told to get out because this was Viet Cong territory and would come under attack. Anyone found there would be presumed a Communist until proven otherwise.

The men had been ordered, however, not to fire at anyone or any place until they had received fire.

Richie's platoon stayed in reserve as the rest of the company advanced warily across a long, wide rice paddy to take positions in a dry, overgrown canal.

Capt. Malcolm Howard, 26, of Deep Run, N.C., B Company commander, consulted maps and called his radiomen around him. They were facing the major objective of the day—Xom Moi, the Viet Cong stronghold that had twice in recent months thrust back American attempts to sweep through.

Now they waited for the brigade's armored units — the 1st Battalion of the 5th Mechanized Infantry and the 3rd Platoon of the 4th Cavalry —to smash into Xom Moi with tanks and armored personnel carriers.

The noon sun bore down as they waited. Richie and his machine gun crew sprawled in the shade of a tree.

There had been just one casualty in the battalion, and that a slight one from friendly grenade fragments.

Finally the call came to move up. The 3rd Platoon, with Richie, spread out and crossed a flat paddy field. Stacks of straw blazed from fires set by a forward element.

The armored units had crashed through and any Viet Cong or their families who had not evacuated before did so then. Soldiers tossed grenades into holes and tunnels. No captives were taken, no casualties were suffered, the enemy was nowhere to be found.

B Company started back home through the heat and jungle.

A mile from home, the men flopped on the dusty ground with sighs and means of weariness.

Richie, his machine gun to one side, stretched on the ground, silent and soaked with sweat. His red hair was matted and his freckles were nearly hidden by grime and dust.

The last several hundred yards were toughest. Men from another company, exhausted by heat stroke, lay alongside the route to camp.

Richie and his weapons squad plodded back through the coils of barbed wire just outside the camp perimeter.

At bunker 14 Richie threw off his gear. One man ripped off his clothes and fell panting onto an air mattress.

Richie sat on a short-legged stool and drizzled a canteen-full of water over his head.

"Well," he said with a slight grin, "we accomplished our mission."

"Sort of disappointing. But I guess we'll have plenty of chances to fight. Main thing is to be glad nobody got hurt."

Ahead was the night and night watches with artillery blasting and mosquitoes zapping. Tomorrow would bring details and cleaning weapons and the monotonous routine of the infantryman.

And soon would come more attacks against the Viet Cong. Maybe "Charley" would come out next time, or maybe it would be another exercise in frustration.

Armed Forces

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AHTNC) --Army Pvt. Frankie J. Coffee, 19, son of Frank Coffee, Marston, Mo., completed the Infantry School's three-week airborne course at Fort Benning, Ga., April 16.

His training, which included five jumps from a C-130 airplane flying 170 miles an hour at an altitude of 1,250 feet, qualified Coffee as a parachutist.

He entered the Army last November and completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Coffee attended East High School in Howardsville.

FORT HOOD, TEX. (AHTNC) --Don R. Jones, whose mother, Mrs. Mildred C. Cockrell, and wife, Quinlan, live in Sikeston, Mo., received an early promotion to Army pay grade private E-2 on completion of basic combat training at Fort Hood, Tex., April 15.

Jones was awarded the promotion two months earlier than is customary because of his score in firing the M-14 rifle, high score on the physical combat proficiency test and his military bearing and leadership abilities.

The 25-year-old soldier, who was last assigned at Ford Leonard Wood, Mo., was employed by the United States Dept. of Commerce, U. S. Coast & Geodetic Survey, Rockville, Md., before entering the Army in February 1966.

A 1958 graduate of Sikeston High School, Jones attended Holmes Junior College, Goodman, Miss.

The Department of the Air Force recently announced the promotion of Lt. Colonel Max R. Miller.

Colonel Miller is the Deputy Commander of the Defense Supply Agency's Regional Headquarters located in Kansas City. This Joint Service Command Office is responsible for the procurement, storage and distribution of perishable subsistence for all Department of Defense Installation in a 13 state area.

The Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters, and the Air Force Commendation Medal with two oak leaf clusters are included among his awards and decorations.

Colonel Miller is married to the former Colleen Alsup of Bloomfield. She and their children, Chris, Robert and Elizabeth reside at 223 W. Gladys, Sikeston.

Colonel Miller is the son of Mr. E. E. Miller of Dexter.

Army Medal to Malden Man

FORT HOLABIRD, Md -- In a ceremony at the Army Intelligence School, Fort Holabird, Major John R. Anderson was presented the army commendation medal.

Major Anderson received the medal for exceptionally meritorious service as Chief Administrative Support Division, U. S. Army Combat Developments Command Air Defense Agency, Fort Bliss, Texas, from 14 January 1963 to 12 February 1966.

Major Anderson is a resident of Malden.

Rabies Day In Advance

ADVANCE -- May 5 has been set as Rabies day by the Advance City Council.

Dogs will be vaccinated and tagged at they city Hall between 3 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. by Dr. L. E. Palmer of Dexter. There will be a charge of $2 per dog.

The rabies clinic is open to dog owners in Advance and the surrounding area.

According to Mayor James Drum, the large number of dogs in town has become a menace and for that reason any dog that isn't tagged will be destroyed.

Electrical Bid Opening May 2

KENNETT -- The Board of Public Works will open bids at 7:30 p.m. May 2, on electrical materials to be used in scheduled improvements in the city's overhead electrical distribution system.

The consulting engineer's estimate of the cost of these materials is a little more than $100,000. The material specifications have been approved by the members of the Board of Public Works.

Improvements scheduled to get underway this summer include construction of a 69,000-volt power line between the municipal power plant and the Southwestern Power Administration 161,000-volt substation, located approximately four miles north of Kennett.

Improvements of the electrical distribution substation at the power plant will make it suitable for the SPA power and construction of a 13,800 volt west loop within the Kennett city limits plus construction of a 13,800/2,400 volt substation in southwest Kennett (exact location yet to be selected).

Construction of a 13,800-volt east loop is tentatively scheduled for 1967. Estimated cost of the entire electrical distribution improvement program is $358,000 to be paid for from electric department revenue.

These planned improvements will provide increased power delivery facilities to meet the growth needs within the City of Kennett, thereby providing even better electric service to all city light and water electric customers.

Pope's Visit Coverage Rates High in TV Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Television coverage of Pope Paul's historic visit to New York and the war in Viet Nam figured high Thursday in the 26th annual presentation of the George Foster Peabody Awards for distinguished achievement by television and radio.

In television news, the winners were Frank McGee, of NBC; Morley Safer of CBS and Station KTLA, Los Angeles.

McGee was cited for his "superb descriptions" of the Pope's visit and as another man at the NBC news space center. Safer's reports from the Viet Nam battlefront were honored for their "journalistic integrity and honesty, sensitivity and forcefulness."

Station KTLA received an award for covering the Watts riots of 1965.

The winners in the television entertainment category were "The Julie Andrews Show," NBC; the Barbra Streisand special, "My Name Is Barbra," CBS, and "Frank Sinatra — A Man and His Music," NBC. All were special, one-hour shows.

"A Charlie Brown Christmas," CBS, was the winner among television youth and children's programs. It was taken from the Charles Schulz comic strip "Peanuts."

A special award was made for the ABC show, "A Visit to Washington With Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson — on Behalf of a More Beautiful America." Mrs. Johnson also was to present the awards at the luncheon meeting.

In the category of television public service, the CBS Reports show, "KKK — The Invisible Empire," was honored as a devastating light "on America's most shameful hate group."

CBS' show "The National Driver's Test" was called the forerunner in television innovation in 1965. The program permitted millions of viewers to sit in their homes and check their driving judgment, knowledge and perception.

The National Educational Television network received the Peabody Award for the most distinguished performance in educational broadcasting. The network was cited for several social documentaries.

For television's most inventive art documentary, the award went to "The Mystery of Stonehenge," CBS. The show was called a "handsome blend of beautiful photography, ancient history and modern theory."

The Xerox Corp. was cited for making a television contribution to international understanding in its sponsorship of such programs as "The Making of The President — 1964," "Let My People Go," "The Louvre," and a series on the United Nations.

The CBS program "Music 'Till Dawn" was honored as "the first successful all-night program of sponsored (classical and semiclassical music." An award was presented to CBS and American Airlines, the sponsor, for meritorious public service.

Radio Station WCCO, Minneapolis, received a public service award for covering the blizzards, floods and tornadoes that swept through the Plains states during a three-month period last year. "Through broadcast survival instructions and continuous alerts, hundreds of lives were saved," said the award.

Republicans Also at Odds over Conflict

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is in one of the most unhappy moments of its history and knows it and so do its friends, critics, Democrats, Republicans, Chinese, Vietnamese, and even Eskimos if they get a daily newspaper or listen to a radio.

But, for that matter, this is not pleasant spring weather for the Republicans, either.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, House Republican leader, never dreaming he might be tackled by one of his own teammates, decided it was a good time to charge through the center of the Johnson administration by accusing it of "shocking mismanagement of the war" in Viet Nam and a shipping tie-up there.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara called this "baloney." He said there was no bomb shortage and supply unloading was normal. His deputy secretary, Cyrus R. Vance, conceded there had been a shipping bottleneck last November. This made Ford look five months behind time.

Then Ford's teammate, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, got into the act, complaining that fellow-Republican Ford went pretty far with his charge of "shocking mismanagement." He asked: "Who are the shocked?" and a lot more.

All of which goes to show that the Republicans, like the Democrats, are at sixes and sevens over the war.

McNamara forecast new political discord in South Viet Nam, as might have been guessed from some of the statements coming out of the Johnson administration in the past few days, which seems to be looking every which way.

And if you couldn't figure exactly what they meant, or where they might be looking, maybe the administration couldn't, either.

For instance, McNamara raised one of the strangest questions of the war Wednesday when he said Americans would not try to prevent the Communist Viet Cong from participating in the elections of South Viet Nam if they tried to do so peacefully.

Would they be permitted to cross the military lines to head south, provided they carried no weapons? Would that be the only test? But what if they had weapons cached in the south? How could they be identified as South Vietnamese with a right to vote at all? There are many questions that could be asked.

McNamara said it would make no difference to this country if South Viet Nam went neutral. Wouldn't it? If it chose neutralism it might do so under Communist influence and soon choose to become Communist. Then what was all the fighting for?

Last weekend Secretary of State Dean Rusk's long-range philosophy of dealing with Red China was revealed: No hope of changing the aggressiveness of the present leadership in the foreseeable future.

But in the years ahead, perhaps with new leaders and by firmness and good will, there might be an era of good relations. Then Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield got an idea, which was not exactly new: Let's try for a peace conference with Red China and North Viet Nam.

Fine, said the Johnson administration, let's try. But anyone watching U.S.-Chinese relations for years, and the futile efforts to get peace talks with North Viet Nam, wouldn't bet on the chance.

This is one of the greatest international foul-ups of modern times.

RADIOACTIVE

A man drove into my service station to complain that he couldn't turn off his radio. When I asked him to step out of the car, I noticed that the music followed him. "Look in your pockets," I told him. He did, and pulled out a transistor radio. He thanked me and drove off in peace and quiett.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

ELECTIONS

In the meanwhile, on May 18, 1965, the district court ignored the New York Court of Appeals' holding that the previously approved paln violated the State constitution and by a 2 to 1 vote ordered the 1965 election to proceed on the basis of this plan. As was expected, Governor Rockefeller vetoed the Democratic bills. The Democrats then appealed to the Supreme Court and moved to expedite the appeal, which would not otherwise be heard until the fall when it was too late. They also applied to Mr. Justice Harlan, as Circuit Justice, for a stay of the district court's order; he referred this to the entire Court. On June 1, 1965, the Court summarily turned down the Democratic moves.

Mr. Justice Harlan alone dissented from the Court's "casual way" of disposing of the whole matter. So ended epilogue one.

The undaunted Democrats went to the State Court of Appeals. Again the State court reiterated that the federally-approved apportionment act violated the State constitution, and by a 4 to 3 vote enjoined the scheduled 1965 election. At that point, the New York State officials were under a State order to refrain from holding an election and under a Federal order to hold an election. As The New York Times described it: "The move was the latest in a series of complicated legal maneuvers in the reapportionment cases that have confused lawyers, laymen, and judges alike." The Democrats next asked Mr. Justice Harlan to stay the Federal court order which in effect overturned the State court order. He refused to do so because of the whole Supreme Court's prior refusal of a stay. Thus ended the second epilogue -- with no end to the performance in sight.

New York's problems are typical, not atypical. For example, a three-judge Federal district in Hawaii overturned a State legislative apportionment plan, which followed population closely, because the district boundaries of the Senate and House of Representatives tended to be similar in certain districts. After referring to testimony that various districts were too heterogeneous, with persons of Japanese and Caucasian ancestry thrown together, as well as those of various income levels, and noting criticism of one district because it contained "a multitude of Caucasian widows in the uplands area, and an over-abundance of Filipino males in the seaward portion of the district," the court concluded:

"There should not be any monolithic political units of representation in that all-inclusive system of apportionment. Unless, within any single geographically defined political area or unit, there is a meaningful and substantial difference in the composition of that body of electors therein, whose combined votes elect a senator, from that body whose combined votes elect a member of the house, then the demanded differing complexions and collective attitudes are lost, the necessary cross-checking and resulting balance is absent, and the majorities therein are given a disproportional monolithic command, not only within the narrow political unit, but also within the legislative bodies. Such artificially concentrated political power negates any notion of equality of representation for the minorities entrapped therein, as well as for all other electors of the State outside such a monolithic political unit."

The Court also held:

"While it is a fundamental factor under the decisions of the (Supreme) Court, population is not the sole definitive measure for setting up either representative or senatorial districts. Compactness and contiguity of the territory are admittedly also factors, but community of interests, community of problems, socio-economic status, political and racial factors -- each and all must be considered, and not only must the electoral districts be laid out with the totality of those factors having been taken into consideration, but even more, the sum total of all the districting must result in substantial equality of meaningful representation to each and all of the voters of the State."

Rain and high winds have kept anglers off most large impoundments, however, those who have braved the elements were rewarded with good catches of bass and crappie. Crappie are moving into the shallows and are being taken on small jigs and by casting minnows. Most of the larger impoundments have not been affected by the rainfall. At Lake of the Ozarks there is some dingy to cloudy water in the upper arms. While the Warsaw area is murky, this water will not reach the main portion of the lake for several days. Clearwater Lake has a five-foot rise and is rated cloudy to dingy. Wappapello with a four-foot rise is murky in the upper reaches and cloudy to dingy in the lower section. All Missouri Ozark streams are flushed and are dingy to muddy.

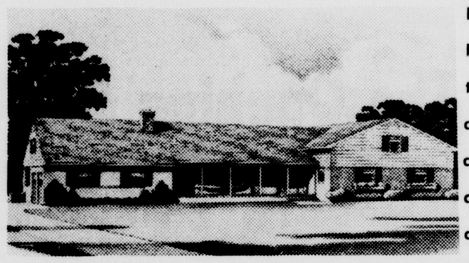

SOFT LANDING—Central Michigan University has the newest in pole vault landing pits. The pit is really an air-filled plastic container nicknamed "Cloud 9." The cushion, when inflated, weighs 150 pounds. It has a valve and fan (top) which allows air to escape when the vaulter lands. It draws in air as the vaulter climbs out of the pit.

UNEXPECTED SUCCESS—In ending ahead of schedule, the Gemini-8 space flight scored an unexpected success. The emergency splashdown tested for the first time the elaborate contingency plans set up for every space flight. They worked flawlessly. Newsmap locates the four areas where ships and planes were deployed in advance to handle capsule recovery. When trouble developed aboard Gemini-8, it was night over the planned area in the western Atlantic (1) so splashdown was quickly shifted to the western Pacific (3) and daylight.

Police picked up a member of the building cleaning staff for the assault.

A BEAUTY REIGNS: Deborah Bryant, Miss America, 1966, plans to fight disease herself, by becoming a doctor. Meanwhile, she urges everyone, everywhere, "Fight cancer with a checkup and a check."

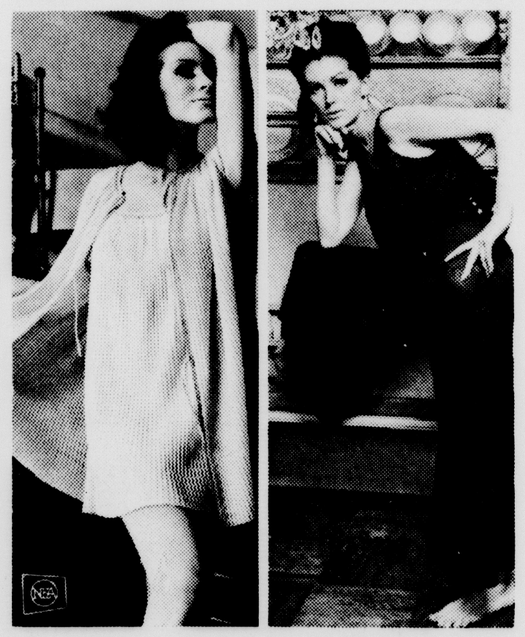

WATER BREAK—Sandy Koufax, working hard to make up for the time he lost during his holdout, pauses for a short break. The lefthander won 26 games for the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers last season.

NEW TWIST—It appears that Doug Sanders has a new dance step. Actually, it's just his reaction after sinking another long putt.

New Shapes Merit Watching

Sleepwear and loungewear take on new shapes for spring. Crepeset nylon with its sheer yet opaque look is used in both these designs. Short, permanent pleated gown (left) by Eve Stillman has its own matching peignoir. Wide-legged pants style by Blanche Lingerie (right) has a blouson top with a satin sash at the hemline. These fashions can be sudsed and will drip dry.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A few years ago designers of lingerie began tiring of baby doll nighties and pajamas, eyed the new sportswear looks and decided these could be adapted to sleepwear. The first new style to replace the pajama was tights under a tunic.

Then came a new yarn (Snka Crepeset), a nylon crepe tricot with all the look, feel and drapability of the long-lost lingerie crepe of the '30s. This enabled designers to do nightgowns with all the classic look of a Grecian gown or an Indian sari.

Women liked the new designs and so this spring we have an explosion of lingerie styles unblushingly inspired by Norell dresses and Courreges shifts and pants.

Pants are so popular you would think they were a new invention. And Ralph Montenero, who has set many a lingerie trend, does them in a bright pink and green print of Crepeset with a flounce of pleats at the ankles.

Eve Stillman offers glamorous harem pants, wide and caught at the ankle with a laced cuff.

It was a Norell dress which designer Blanche frankly credits as inspiration for a short gown bloused over a lowered waistline. With its satin sash and neckline trim, it looks ready to skip to a party.

Even long gowns follow the evening dress trends with halter necklines, bare backs and side slits.

Crepeset has made eye-catching designs possible in lingerie and sleepwear this season. This new crop can leave the bedroom with glamorous ease.

Make-up Keys Two '66 Outlooks

Fashion '66 offers two outlooks—the kicky, knacky look at left and the romantically elegant look at right. Hand-in-hand with fashion comes matching make-up. For the racy face (top right) select a foundation and powder for an ivory beige complexion. Darkened eyes are foils against the pale complexion. Lipstick is a natural frost. Hairdo is the lopsided style introduced by Vidal Sassoon. For the more romantic look (bottom right) there is the softened, curly hairdo, still an ivory beige for a pale complexion. However, a touch of brush-on rouge may be used for more color, eye make-up is softened and lipstick is a pastel pink.

Rutland Will Address Men

PORTAGEVILLE -- Eugene D. Rutland, tri-state editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, spoke at the quarterly meeting of the United Churchmen's Club at the First Baptist Church Thursday night at 7 p.m.

Rutland, a noted speaker, has been in the newspaper business 43 years. During his newspaper career he has handled about every kind of assignment.

His major assignments as a reporter were a bond scandal which resulted in the disbarment of several attorneys; the starting of a campaign that brought a slum clearance program to Memphis; the waste at the Japanese Relocation Center in Arkansas during World War II; and the handling of the desegregation story since 1954.

Outside of his newspaper career which includes being president of Tennessee Press Association, Rutland has found time to take an active part in church and school endeavors.

He served on the publicity committee of the first national meeting of the Brotherhood of the Southern Baptist Convention and lectures frequently at Union University, University of Mississippi, Mississippi State College for Women and Memphis State University.

He has been a Sunday School teacher nearly 20 years and a leader in training union work for about 10 years. He was director of public relations and editor of the church paper at Bellevue Baptist church many years.

He was a leader and one of the founders of the Second Baptist Church and is now a teacher in the young married peoples department and leader of an adult training union. He is public relations director of the church and secretary of the finance committee.

Proffer Files For Reelection

JACKSON -- Marvin E. Proffer has filed for re-election as state representative.

Proffer, a Democrat, will seek his third term, but this time from Missouri district 156 rather than from Cape County.

The district includes all of Cape County except Cape Girardeau and also includes Kelso township of Scott County. Included in that township are Chaffee, Scott City, Illmo and Kelso.

Auto License Office Opens at Malden

MALDEN -- Malden's new motor vehicle license office opened Monday in the city hall under the supervision of Roscoe Thornton.

The office is a branch of the Kennett auto license office which is supervised by Roy Thomas David, Director of the State Department of Revenue, at a luncheon held in Malden.

Automobile owners in Malden and the tri-company area may now purchase licenses without having to drive 25 to 30 miles.

Thornton said that office hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Persons applying for a license must bring their personal tax receipt.

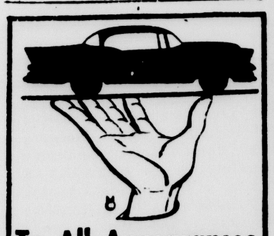

Airmen Finish Their Training

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Airmen who have completed training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and have been sent to bases for further training are: Ronald W. Underwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Underwood, Dexter, to Fort Lee AFB, Va; Larry G. Trammell, son of Mrs. Ruby A. Holmes, Dexter, Chanute AFB, Ill.; Carl L. Holyfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Holyfield, Bell City, to Fort Lee, Va.; Kenneth M. Laster, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Laster, Wolf Lake, Ill., Daniel L. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis L. Moore, Illmo, and Joe B. Bertling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bertling, Jackson, all to Lowry AFB, Colo.

#26 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

THIS WEEK SALUTING BLODGETT METHODIST CHURCH

Our membership is small, however we enjoy a fellowship of real Christian worship as did Christ and his followers in his day. Won't you come worship with us? We have an active men's club that meets the second Friday in each month. We welcome you to come and fellowship this hour with us as we plan our part of the church program.

We have an active Womens Society of Christian Service that meets on the first and third Wednesdays, usually meeting in a member's home. They invite visitors. We have a fine church school with teachers for all ages using the best literature that we can find. If you are not in church or Sunday School we invite you to come and worship with us. And on the last Friday of each month at 6:30 p.m. we have a fellowship supper, we invite you to come and fellowship with us.

Rev. Harold Norton & Family

Harold O. Norton was born in Coal City, Illinois on July 8, 1936, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Norton. He was reared in public schools of Lockport, Ill. He is a graduate of Lockport Grade School and Lockport Township High School. After his father's death in 1952, he and his mother continued the family business; radio, television, and public address sales and service.

He is a graduate of Coyne Electronics School of Chicago, Ill. He earned his "local Preacher's License" through correspondence work, issued by Rock River Conference of The Methodist Church.

Rev. Norton came to Missouri in June of 1962 to serve his first student-appointment in Mississippi County: Dogwood and Bridges Methodist Churches.

He moved to Bell City, Missouri, in June of 1964 to become the minister of the Methodist Church. Since September of 1965, he has also ministered to the Blodgett Methodist Church, preaching to both congregations each Sunday morning.

He has been attending Southeast Missouri State College for the past four years and is a candidate for the B.S. Degree in Secondary Education in the Spring Class of 1966. (At the present time, he is doing practice teaching in the Bell City School system.)

Glenda Joe Norton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hurley of Route 3, Sikeston, attended Sikeston public schools and graduated from Sikeston High School. She attended Asbury College of Wilmore, Ky., and Southeast Missouri State College.

Julie Elizabeth Norton, their only child, is 15 months of age.

BULLDOG BARKER

Word To The Wise

Sikeston Citizens Begin 'Fast Time'

SIKESTON CITIZENS will awaken an hour earlier than usual Sunday, April 24. This date marks the beginning of another "daylight savings time summer."

Elections held on April 5, decided that Sikeston would again go on fast time.

William Willet originated the movement in England in 1907 when he published a booklet entitled "The Waste of Daylight." Last year was the first time Sikeston has been on daylight savings time since World War II.

Contrary to some legends, no one throws grapefruit to begin daylight savings time. It simply involves getting up an hour earlier, going to work an hour earlier, completing work an hour earlier, and enjoying an extra hour of daylight at the end of each day.

Large industries enjoy daylight savings time because it avoids the use of so much electricity.

Countries in Asia, Africa, Australia, and Europe make use of daylight savings time, and they have for centuries as have countries in North America.

When the method first began, events simply started one hour earlier -- there were no alterations of the clocks. This method, however, proved inefficient, and it wasn't very widespread.

Many large communities do not have daylight savings time because of problems with meteorological instruments, and other synchronized devices.

Sikeston and the surrounding communities have no such devices, nor do they have any serious problems created by the time change. Most citizens signified in the election that they favored daylight savings time as it was last year; therefore Sikeston citizens will be "living fast" again this year.

SHS Spring Sport Outlook Is Bright

SIKESTON HIGH'S baseball squad has come into the season like a lion with two undefeated bouts.

Behind the able leadership of Coach Hal Lane and Kenny Davis, the Bulldogs have a balanced combination of hitting, pitching, strength on the bench, and fielding.

Hitting strength of the Bulldogs is evident upon a look at the record book. Sikeston has outhit its opponents in the first two games and has the ability to move runners on base toward home with little wasted runners.

The pitching squad also seems to be one of the strong points. Dan Kern and Gary Stallings have proved to be tough men to hit. Other promising pitchers will have a chance to prove themselves later in the season.

Bulldogs have a tough defense to score against, holding Oran to no runs (5-0) and Jackson to four (7-4).

Sikeston's golf team seems to be improving, defeating Kennett Tuesday at the local golf course. Charles Atchison, Charles Stamp, Ned Matthews, and David Whiteaker are the strong boys on the team. Coach Gene Dawson is doing an excellent job of teaching these boys.

The tennis team seems to be in a slump but could pull out at any time. Terry Burke and Dean Childers are the senior tennis players. Hank Lippert, Billy Dickerson, Wythe Miller, and Brad Crumpecker show potential.

The outlook for spring sports in Sikeston looks favorable. The one sport omitted from this editorial --track -- will be featured in a later edition.

Annual District FBLA Convention Held Tuesday

Southeast Missouri District Convention of the Future Business Leaders of America was held Tuesday evening at Sikeston high school. Meeting was sponsored by FBLA Chapter 3691 of Sikeston.

FBLA members from Jackson, Bernie, Caruthersville, Fisk, and Sikeston attended the convention. Guest speaker for the evening was Pat Lea, vice-president of the Bank of Sikeston.

Student-made exhibits and displays representing products and services of approximately 30 Sikeston businesses decorated the school.

Competition for the titles of Miss FBLA, Mr. FBLA, best parliamentary procedure group, best Public speaker, and best speller was held at 7 p.m. in C building.

Ken Paylor, Sikeston, became Mr. FBLA and Elaine Dockins, Sikeston, became Miss FBLA. Janet Butrum, Phil Tidwell, and Eureda Powers, all of Sikeston, took first, second, and third places, respectively, in the spelling contest.

Elaine Dockins took second place in the public speaking competition and the Sikeston group tied for first in the parliamentary procedure division.

Mike Andrews, Steve Stewart, Wilda Runnels, Becky Ziegenhorn, and Phonda Snow composed the Sikeston Parliamentary procedure group.

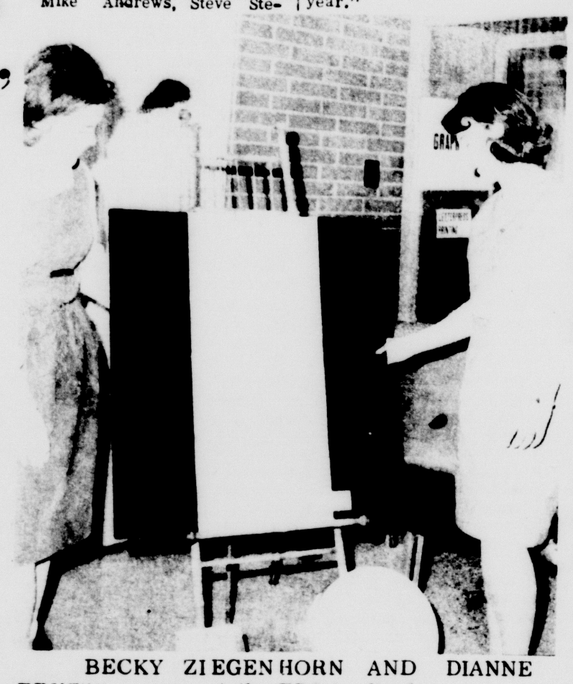

All first place winners at the district convention will go to the state convention at Jefferson City, April 30. Winners there will attend the national meeting at New Orleans in June.

Following the competition, FBLA members went on tours of Anchor Toy, First National Bank, and Hart's Bakery.

This year's officers are Terry Burke, president; Gary Stallings, vice president; Jan Yates, secretary; Jim Clary, treasurer; and Elaine Dockins, reporter.

Officers for 1966-67 are Mike Andrews, president; Steve Stewart, vice-president; Wilda Runnels, secretary; Becky Ziegenhorn, treasurer; and Phonda Snow, reporter.

Mrs. Rovena Hillsman, Sikeston FBLA sponsor, said, "We feel that the convention was very successful and we hope that we can have it here again next year."

SHS Notes Library Week; Book Exhibit Closes Today

National Library Week was observed in Sikeston high school April 18-22.

An exhibit of new library books for teen-agers including many current best-sellers was open at the Sikeston high school during this time.

Open daily from 7:45 to 4:30 and evenings from seven o'clock to nine o'clock, the exhibit showed 469 books representing 68 leading publishers.

Fiction for young adults included such themes as Personal Development and Young Romances, along with a complement of titles in the realm of Mystery, Adventure, and Suspense.

Books were graded for junior and senior high school. Curriculum - related catalogues, fully annotated and completely indexed by subject, author, and title were free to teachers and students.

Students Choose President, Vice In May Election

Student body elections will be held May 5, and the president and vice-president of Student Council will be selected.

Candidates for the offices as they will appear on the party ticket are Kenny Hilterbrand and Steve Woods; Brian Underwood and David Boyer; and Danny Lopp and Fred Matthews. They are presidential and vice-presidential candidates respectively.

All those vying for the offices had to pass a written test based on the SHS Student Council constitution. Also, each candidate had to have a petition with 50 student signatures for recommendation.

Candidates may begin posting campaign material May 2, and an assembly on the day of the election is set aside for campaign speeches and skits. It is hoped that the assembly can be held outside so that all students may see it.

Because of the difference in the constitutional rules, both main officers of the council are elected at the same time. In previous years, the vice-president has been elected from the next year's council group.

Student body president Ron Spears wants every student to know the specific rules of the election. When choosing their candidates, the students may split the party ticket. This means that they may vote on any one presidential and vice-presidential candidate.

The two final choices do not necessarily have to be running-mates.

Drama Club Presentation Tonight

SOPHOMORE Red Peppers scream with excitement as senior cheerleader Kathy Hahs gives her position to Cyndi Waters at the annual banquet.

'Dirty Work At Crossroads' Enacted By SHS Students

"Dirty Work at the Crossroads" or "Tempted, Tried, and True" will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the middle school auditorium. This play by Bill Johnson is the final SHS Drama Club production of the school year.

This old-fashioned melodrama deals with the pure, sweet young thing, her handsome, young hero, and the Oil-Can Harry-type villian.

Melodrama is a comedy that is played seriously and this makes it even more hilarious. Action of the play is set in Connecticut during the Gay Nineties at the Widow Lovelace's farm.

Brian Curtis from Cape Girardeau will provide the piano score especially written and arranged for the play. Between the three acts of melodrama, senior Sue Foster will sing for the audience.

Cast of the play are Jeannie Winters as Nellie - as true as she is tender; Robin Chamber as Adam Oakhart - as brave as he is bashful; Elaine Dockins as the Widow Lovelace - as sweet as she is simple; David Whiteaker as Munro Murgatroyd - as wild as he is wicked.

Kathy Hahs as Ida Rhinegold- as deep as she is dyed; Terry Burke as Mookie Magguggins - as rude as he is rustic; Mrs. Upson Asterbilt played by Judy Murchison - of Newport and Brooklyn; Teresa Hamelmann as Leonie - her daughter, a Madison Avenue belle.

Sheila Elledge as Fleurette- their French maid. Ooolalal? and Beth Mayfield as Little Nell - who never had a father.

Miss Williams, drama instructor, would like to thank numerous students and art teacher, Miss Emily Brennecke.

Students are Danny Cannon, David Boyer, Bob Urban, Mike Fodge, Phonda Snow, Mike Payne, Mike Hixon, David Whiteaker and the art and drama classes. These people helped direct the play, construct the scenery, and design and make costumes.

Miss Williams said, "Producing and directing a play is great fun but a lot of work."

SHS students will be admitted free of charge upon presentation of their identification cards.

DE-COE Hosts Annual Banquet For Employers

Lester B. Kesterson, state director of Cooperative Industrial and Distributive Education, was guest speaker last evening at the annual banquet of the distributive education and cooperative occupational educational students of Sikeston high school.

He used as his topic for discussion "Degrees of Education." Mr. Kesterson has been associated with the educational field since 1937.

He has been distributive education coordinator for 14 years and served as professor of education at the Southwest Missouri State College in Springfield.

Mr. Kesterson has been a visiting professor at the University of Missouri for the past eight summers and has been in the state department of education at Jefferson City for eight years.

Banquet was given by the DE and COE students for their employers and employers' wives for their appreciation for selecting them to work at their business establishment while enrolled in high as a DE or a COE student.

Each employer was presented a certificate of appreciation.

Highlight of the evening included the disclosure of the cooperative occupational educational student of the year and the distributive education student for the year. These students will be recognied in the Barker next week.

Approximately 90 persons attended the banquet at the Holiday Inn.

Earl Henderson directs the COE group, and Norman Woods is the leader of the DE students.

Toni Zaricor Is Cayenne; Peppers Sponsor Banquet

Junior Toni Zaricor was named cayenne for 1966-67 at the annual Red Pepper banquet Saturday evening.

Mary Dodd Reid gained the title of vice-cayenne and Barbara Blacker received the position of secretary.

Peg Rafferty became treasurer, and Shearry Frankum was named demerit chairman.

Teresa Hamelmann was given the megaphone signifying her office as head cheerleader. Other cheerleaders for '67 will be Vicki Schindler, Kathy Arnold, Katie Stallings, Vicki Welch, Cyndi Waters, Diane Alsup, and Sharon Hornback.

Charles D. Matthews IV, secretary of the board of education, was the after-dinner speaker. He presented a talk concerning the value of Red Peppers to the Sikeston school system. Mr. Matthews said that organizations such as the Red Peppers help prepare young people for the future.

Theme for the banquet was "Forget Me Not." Officers for '66 used daisies as the basis of their decorations. Each senior pepper with no demerits received a bunch of daisies to distinguish her.

Following the banquet in the senior high cafetorium, the dance began in the middle school's auditorium.

Senior girls decorated for the dance using "The Scene" as their theme.

Couples entered the gym through a tunnel to see a ceiling of paper mobiles and a wall of bamboo.

Abstract paintings and black cats composed the wall murals. Centerpiece for the event was a large a-go-go cage with a mannequin enclosed.

New and old officers, as well as senior Red Peppers were escorted and introduced during the traditional grand march which began at 9:30.

Paducah Dukes of Murray State College provided music for the event.

Guess Who?

"Guess who column" this week features a senior girl.

When she isn't experimenting with new menus in the kitchen, she may be found driving her pride and joy - a little red Volkswagon.

Miss _____ has lived in Sikeston all of her life (17 years), but she plans to work in St. Louis after graduation.

She is a member of marching band, concert band, Red Peppers, and she was a candidate for Miss Sikeston last fall.

Diplomacy is to do and say The nastiest thing in the nicest way. ---Isaac Goldberg

Emotion Changes Students

by Dianne Caskey

As seniors approach the final 20 school days, sudden changes occur.

For instance, Red Pepper officers break out in tears at the mention of graduation; Independent Research students panic at the thought of the final research paper.

College-bound seniors shudder at the thought of preparing for their first year of higher education; teachers cringe at the realization of the nearness of tallying final grades.

Other than those few examples of wariness for the end of school to arrive, the majority of school inhabitants are exalting over the approaching school termination.

Possibilities of summer jobs occupy the attentions of many pupils making school work unattainable.

Seniors anxiously await their graduation and senior party. Car - washing and earning money for the party take up the time of many upper-classmen.

Juniors and sophomores look forward to being higher up on the school totem-pole. Student council elections command the attention of Sikeston high school students presently.

Last few weeks of school will be busy ones for each class. They will be weeks of work and mixed emotions.

Sam Harbin Gives Talk To Chapter

Sam Harbin, vice-president of the Bank of Sikeston, presented the program for the National Honor Society Monday. His talk concerned one of the seven paths to peace -- the path of progress.

Mr. Harbin called the era in which we live, "the age of great expectations." Also, Mr. Harbin talked of the peasants of the world saying one-half of the population earns less than $100 annually.

At the next scheduled meeting of the Honor Society, new officers will be elected from the junior class. Retiring officers are Phil Barkett, president; Rob Collins, vice-president; Mary Leible, secretary; and Gary Williams, treasurer.

Newly inducted members were informed that they may purchase club pins or charms.

Seven Juniors Attend Boys State

Active Participants Learn Governmental Mechanics

Seven junior boys have been selected to attend Missouri Boys State at Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg during June. Boys are Brian Underwood, James Trimble, Dave Shy, Fred Matthews, Sammy Hopper, Jim Hux, and Sidney Stauffer.

Boys State is a program designed to teach boys about government sponsored by the American Legion. Manner in which this is taught is learning by doing.

When boys arrive, they are grouped into cities, countries, and political parties. First day's activities are spent in organizing the "state" on precinct, ward, city, and county levels.

Offices are the same as they would be in actuality; boys elect their fellow citizens to fill the offices of the "state." Political parties, Nationalists and Federalists, are also organized much the same as they ordinarily are.

At the same time boys staters are attending four different schools of interest in preparation for their offices. These are law, police, legislative, and government executive schools.

After the local offices are filled, elections are held between Nationalist and Federalist candidates for state offices. Supreme court justices state legislators and executive positions are filled in this manner.

When these offices are filled, the various agencies function as they would in regular state government.

Supreme court and lesser courts hear cases, legislative passes laws, and executive branch enforces the acts with the aid of the highway patrol.

Sikeston Area Music Students Hear Orchestra

St. Louis Symphony orchestra entertained music students from Sikeston schools and surrounding schools Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Sikeston Armory.

Works by Beethoven, Rimsky-Korsakov, and others were performed by the musicians. St. Louis Symphony orchestra was conducted by the associate director, Edward Murphy.

Conductor Murphy explained parts of each selection for which the audience would listen, and pointed out various solos by violinists, flutists, cellists, the harpist, and brass members.

Aside from the fact that all the music presented was of a classical nature, the audience of students enjoyed the concert and showed their appreciation by giving several loud ovations.

St. Louis Symphony orchestra performed for the public Tuesday evening at the Sikeston Armory.

Local Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Cohn are now visiting at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil D. Williams, of 722 E. Kathleen. They will be here until the 2nd of May, when they leave for Newport, Rhode Island. Mrs. Cohn is the former Miss Frances Williams of Sikeston. Mr. Cohn is CS. 1 in the Navy and has been stationed at Guam in the Mariannes for the last three years. The Cohns also plan to make a visit to another sister, Mrs. Everett Stickney of New Hampshire.

Spending a month with her daughter in Creston, Illinois, is Mrs. Lem Council of this city. Mrs. Council is helping out with the new baby daughter that is such a recent addition to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brannon. Mrs. Council expects to be home sometime around the first of May.

Mr. Harry Powers was a visitor at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Powers of Tanner, Mo., last Tuesday.

Here this last week to visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Corlies of R.F.D. 3, were Mr. and Mrs. Coy Corlies of Tucson, Arizona. They spent much of the time visiting with old friends and old places and renewing pleasant memories.

Mr. Wilbern Martin of Richmond, California, died last Saturday and will be buried some time today. He is the brother of Mrs. Nola Cantrell of Blodgett, and is survived by his wife Nellie, and five daughters.

Home this last Tuesday from a rather disappointing fishing trip came Robert Graff, R. W. Choate, Johnnie Watkins, "Banker Watkins, of Sikeston, John Benjamin of Cairo, and Russ Melton of St. Louis. They spent four days staying at Narrow's Inn at Greer's Ferry, and although they didn't bring home many fish, like all good fishermen, they brought home a "fish story" about that five pound bass.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Branum who reside at 410 E. Gladys, spent the week in Leonard, Texas, as guests of the Reverend and Mrs. James Denton and their son Greg. They also visited with a sister, Mrs. Lizzie Faries of Dallas, Texas.

Mr. Charlie Cooper of Crowder, was taken to the Veterans Hospital in Poplar Bluff, early Sunday morning. His condition is much improved, although he will be there awhile yet. Some of his visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Cooper of Sikeston, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cooper of Cape Girardeau, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cooper and their three children from Bertrand.

Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Lewis H. Conley and Major and Mrs. Hal Robertson, both of Sikeston, left today for a weekend trip to Jefferson City, to attend the Missouri State National Guard Convention. They will be guests this evening at a Gay Nineties Mixer which is in costume. Saturday, there is luncheon for the ladies, and then tea with the Governor at his mansion, and that evening a dinner and formal dance. Both families will return Sunday, after what seems to be a perfectly delightful weekend away.

Youth Sunday Planned

Youth of the First Assembly of God Church, 310 South Kingshighway, known as the Christ Ambassadors, will join over 100,000 young people of Assemblies of God churches throughout the United States in observing National Youth Day Sunday.

A special sunday morning service will feature members of the local youth organization, directed by President Mrs. Bob Ballard.

During the public service, scheduled for 10:45 a.m., young people of the church will be speaking. The theme for this service is a simple one, "Christ's." It places emphasis on the recognition of the Assemblies of God Youth as a possession of God. Bob Ballard, Jean Frala, and Vernalee Wofford will be speaking on this theme. Other young people will serve as ushers and provide special music. There will also be a choir composed of the youth of the church.

A banquet is being served to the C. A.'s on Saturday night, in the fellowship hall, in recognition of the service that the young people contributes to the church. Mrs. Larry Davis is the chairman of this banquet.

Officers of the Christ Ambassadors organization, in addition to President Mrs. Bob Ballard, are Max Teague, vice president; Frances Catlett, secretary; and Jeanetta McDonough, treasurer.

The Rev. T. A. McDonough is the pastor of the church. Mrs. McDonough serves as counselor of the youth group.

Belsheim Speaks at Banquet

MATTHEWS -- The Rev. Harold Belsheim, of Concordia Lutheran Church of Sikeston, gave honor students of Matthews R-V school and their parents a preview of things to dome by the year 2000 when he addressed them Monday evening following the annual dinner given by the Parent-Teachers Association. Noting the many changes predicted by scientists for the future, many of which seem fantastic at the moment, the Rev. Belsheim reccommended the Ten Commandments as a dependable guide to follow in our daily living in the space age.

Student Council president, Linda Buchanan, served as toastmaster at the ham dinner served in the cafeteria preceding the program. The invocation was given by Linda Tollison Collier. Following the address presentation of honor certificates and scholarship letters were made by High School Principal Benton B. Conrad. Roll call of honor students was made by the first named students in each class.

Grade Eight -- Sonja Harwood, Twyla Leach, Debra Porter, James Lindley, Roger Graham, Kenneth Burch, Gary DeWitt, Paula Tollison, Augusta Speed, Virgie Walton, Jerry Jackson, Josephine Johnson, Clarence Brooks, Lynn McCaster, Carl Bishop.

Grade Nine -- Linda Bird, Ronnie Atwell, Sandra Greene, Terry Lape, Sondra Warren, Dennis Clark, Diane Graham, Jerry McCoy.

Grade Ten -- Eugene Gruen, Reece Reeder, Michael Geske, Connie Griffin, Paul Lomax, Pat McMillen, James Myers, Cynthia Slusher, June Pruett, Jo Ann Hartlein.

Grade 11: Joel Buchanan, Charles Conrad, Sidney Fraley, Sue DeWitt, Peggy Lathum.

Grade 12: Diane Bratton, Linda Spencer, Randy Porter, Linda Tollison, Linda Buchanan, Jeanie Geske, Mamie Flowers, Alan Hartlein, Douglas Moore, Sandra Porter, Emma Smith, Bobby Rodgers, Barbara Roach, Patsy Ritchie, Leslie Jackson, Brenda Jenkins, Cheryl Lowery, Doris McClain, Glennie Hoggatt.

Mud holes under outdoor faucets can be prevented. Remove some soil under the spout, then fill the area with gravel. This is a big help where small children play in the yard and turn on the water often to get drinks.

Portageville On Fast Time

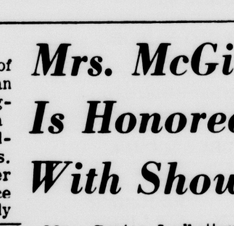

PORTAGEVILLE -- It means all residents of Portageville should set their clocks up one hour when they retire Saturday night.

An ordinance was adopted by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen last year to go on Daylight Saving Time, for the period of April 25, 1965 at 2:00 a.m., and ending Oct. 31, 1965. This portion of the ordinance appeared in section one.

Section two of that ordinance in part stated: "That Daylight Saving Time is hereby adopted as the official time for the City of Portageville, Mo., for the similar time in 1966 and each year thereafter, said specific beginning times of each year and ending times of each year to correspond with the times set by the City of St. Louis, Mo., so that Daylight Saving Time in Portageville shall correspond exactly with Daylight Saving Time enacted for the City of St. Louis, Mo."

Morehouse News

MOREHOUSE -- Since Morehouse has adopted daylight saving time, the schools will go on it Monday. Schools will open at 8 a.m. DST and close at 2:45 p.m.

Five of our elementary teachers will attend a workshop for teachers in this area on Friday of this week. The workshop will have to do with study of Initial Teaching Alphabet.

The members of the senior class of Morehouse High are working on a variety show to be held in the auditorium on Thursday, April 28, 1966. The purpose of the show is to raise additional funds to help finance the senior educational tour of the South.

The Morehouse - Parent-Teacher Organization held their final meeting of the year in the school cafeteria Tuesday April 19. The main feature of the meeting was a fashion show presented by Miss Roberta Rievley and her F. H. A. girls who modeled many beautiful dresses which they had made during the year. The group also voted to pay a portion of the cost of the new P. A. system which will be an asset to the school

Following the P. T. A. meeting, many of those present went by the school shop to observe about one dozen of the Industrial Arts Students at work on their projects which they will be entering in the Industrial Arts exhibits at Southeast Missouri State College on Saturday, April 29. Mr. Lindsay Wilburn, the Industrial Arts instructor was present to show the parents around the shop. Mr. Wilburn is doing a fine job with the Industrial Arts Dept. this year.

Mrs. Stephen Rahm, music instructor in our schools, will present her Spring Music Program on Tuesday evening, May 3rd. All parents are invited to attend.

This year's Junior - Senior Prom and Banquet will be held on Friday, May 13 in the school cafeteria and auditorium. Music for the Prom will be furnished by the Runaways of Cape Girardeau.

Baccalaureate Services for this year's Commencement program will be held in the high school auditorium on Sunday evening, May 15th. Rev. Glen Bohannon, pastor of the First Baptist Church will address the seniors beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Final examinations for the entire school for all classes will be given on Monday and Tuesday, May 16 and 17.

The Commencement Program will be held on Thursday evening May 19. Mr. T. L. Arnold, attorney - at - law, from Benton, Missouri, will give the address.

Morehouse Schools will close for the 1965-66 school year at the close of the day on Friday, May 20th.

Each year, the high school goes to Reelfoot Lake for a school picnic. The group will do this on Saturday, May 21st.

The senior class will leave on its tour of the South on Saturday, May 21. All seniors are anxiously looking forward to this highly educational tour with much enthusiasm as they expect to enjoy every minute of the tour.

Former U.S. Bar President Will Speak

COLUMBIA -- Ross Malone, former president of the American Bar Association, and Prof. Robert J. Farley of the University of Florida will speak at the Law Day program at the University of Missouri next Friday and Saturday.

Professor Farley, former dean of law at the University of Mississippi, will speak at a banquet that concludes the program.

Guests of honor will include Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, members of the Missouri Supreme court and judges of United States courts in Missouri.

Malone, attorney in Roswell, N. M., will speak on the opening night at a dinner given by the Law School Foundation honoring student members of the Missouri Law Review. Guests will include foundation trustees and former trustees and first-year law students.

In addition to the banquet and dinner at Memorial Student Union, the program also includes the annual alumni dinner April 29 at the Daniel Boone Hotel, an affair that includes no formal program and no speeches. Classes that were graduated in 1916, 1921, 1926, 1931, 1936, 1941, 1946, 1951, 1956 and 1961 will hold reunions as a part of the dinner program.

Other general activities will include junior finals in moot county competition on the final afternoon, heard by a special court consisting of Judge Robert T. Donnelly of the Missouri Supreme Court, Judge Fred Howard of the Kansas City Court of Appeals, and Judge W. Osler Statler of Cape Girardeau, judge of the thirty - second judicial circuit. Student finalists in the competition will include C. Eugene Hamilton, Auxvasse; Philip M. Moomaw, Verona; Thomas N. O'Donnell, Normandy, and Ronald C. Spradley, Carthage.

Governor Hearnes, a Missouri law graduate as of 1952, will be the honorary initiate of the Order of the Coif, legal scholastic society, in morning ceremonies following sessions of the Law Alumni association and the Law School foundation.

The alumni, over which Ralph Duggins of Jefferson City will preside, will present their distinguished awards to Paul G. Koontz of Kansas City, a Missouri law graduate in 1918, and to James M. Douglas of St. Louis, former justice of the Missouri Supreme Court and a graduate of Washington University. The University Alumni association's citation of merit will go to Irvin Fane of Kansas City, a law graduate in 1928.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK. --- United States Air Force Thunderbird pilots put their F-100 Super Sabres through a six-ship wedge loop---one of many such maneuvers---during their 30-minute performance. The Thunderbirds will perform at Blytheville Air Force Base at 4:30 p.m. May 12 in conjunction with the 75th anniversary observance of the city of Blytheville. The public is invited to attend.

Man Injured By Artillery Flash Stimulators

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Jimmy McClanahan, 23, of Caruthersville, was injured Monday while experimenting with an artillery flash simulator which he and a friend found in the Mississippi river while boating on Sunday.

A U. S. Coast Guard officer at Memphis, Tenn., has issued a warning to all Mississippi River boaters against trying to recover any of the flash simulators.

McClanahan reported that he shook about one teaspoon of powder out of the simulator and lit it with a match. The resulting flash -- there was no explosion -- sent him to a clinic for treatment of minor burns and left his eye lashes and moustache singed.

The Coast Guard officer had no explanation as to how the simulators got into the river. He warned that anyone who sees one of the flash simulators, which are about two inches long, should leave it alone but should immediately telephone the Coast Guard at Memphis -- Area Code 1-901, 534-3556.

U. S. SENATORS AND GOVERNORS ENDORSE FLAG-FLYING EFFORTS OF U. S. NEWSPAPERS

Karl E. Mundt, U. S. Senator from South Dakota:

"The patriotic program of encouragement of American citizens to proudly fly our flag as carried on by organizations and firms such as the Daily Standard is deserving of the highest commendation. While I think virtually every American citizen maintains a deep and abiding love of country and is cognizant of the many sacrifices which have been made to 'keep our flag high,' a program of encouragement to fly the flag from our homes on national holidays serves as a reminder that we can all demonstrate our dedication to the rich heritage that is this wonderful land of freedom.

Perhaps the best demonstration of this rich heritage concerns the flag itself. As individual citizens there is no responsibility, or law requiring that we must display the flag. That is as it should be. In my opinion, the citizen who does fly the flag is exercising a privilege of freedom which he personally feels is his.

Ross Bass, U. S. Senator from Tennesses:

Throughout our history, our nation's flag has been a source of pride and patriotism. Today, when communist aggression has brought about a fighting war in Southeast Asia, it is more important than ever that every American "show his colors" and present to the world a united front of dedication to our heritage of freedom.

I urge every citizen to fly our nation's flag, particularly on national holidays, and I congratulate the Daily Standard for its efforts in fore-running this display of patriotism.

Warren Hearnes, Governor of Missouri:

"The efforts of the Daily Standard should be an incentive to every Missourian to fly the flag on national holidays. I believe such a display at every home is a step in the right direction, in solidifying the national effort to show the free world that the Spirit of '76 is still as strong in the hearts of Americans today as it was 190 years ago when it began. I urge every home in Missouri to fly the flag on national holidays.

This time of year, going to work in the daylight makes it almost a pleasure.

When the kids complain of nothing to do, mom knows they just haven't looked around the house.

One thing husbands and golfers have in common—both sometimes get caught in a bad lie.

A HIGH-GEAR GAL — She describes Marlon Brando as "the most marvelous thing"; she would like to work in Hollywood; she's happy about the good reviews she won in her latest picture, "A Man Could Get Killed," with James Garner. Who? Melina Mercouri, of course, of "Never on a Sunday" fame.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING of Kent Library addition at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Existing Library Will Be Incorporated in Addition

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The incorporation of a 24,000 - square-foot existing building into a new 120,000 - square-foot addition is the design highlight of Kent Library at Southeast Missouri State College, Dr. Mark F. Scully, president of the college, has announced.

Bids totaling $2,659,079 for construction and alteration work were received last week.

The Pearce and Pearce, Inc., St. Louis architects and engineers, will hold 350,000 volumes, seat up to 2,200 and be administered by a staff of 45.

Features of the four - level reinforced concrete structure are a year-round automatic temperature and humidity control system, 440 individual study carrels; centrally - controlled recessed fluorescent lighting providing 80 foot - candles throughout all spaces; fire detection devices; and large fan systems delivering 120,000 cubic feet of efficiently - filtered air per minute, through high velocity ducts, to all occupied areas.

Construction will begin upon receipt of the House and Home Financing Agency's approval of the award, Dr. Scully said, with completion scheduled in time for use in the fall of 1967.

Financing is provided by federal assistance of $1,000,000 and the remainder in state funds.

McCarthy Brothers Construction Company of St. Louis and J. E. Hathman, Inc., a joint venture, hold the prime construction contract. Major subcontractors include Burnett Plumbing and Heating, Inc., St. Clair, plumbing; Sears and Piou, St. Louis, heating, ventilating and air conditioning, and Acme Electric Company, electrical work.

Consulting engineers, all from St. Louis, include Bergmeier & Siebold, Inc., structural; Charles J. R. McClure & Associates, mechanical, and Wilbert F. Rath, electrical.

Kent library will have aluminum entry doors. Floors will be rubber tile on circulation levels, ceramic tile in toilets and vinyl asbestos elsewhere. Walls will generally be plaster carrying a vinyl base. Vinyl fabric wall covering will be used in high traffic areas, and ceramic tile on toilet walls.

Special reflecting - surface insulated glass will be installed in the building, to reduce heat loss and to prevent condensation arising out of the controlled interior humidity. One of the rooms in the new addition will be a paneled book treasury in which valuable volumes will be stored on wood shelves.

Program requirements for the 500 per cent expansion of Kent Library were established by a library planning committee consisting of Felix E. Snider, chairman; Dr. Harold O. Grauel; Dr. Stanley G. Diehl; Dr. Wilbur T. Meek; Dr. Willard J. Morgan; N. Lynn Barber, and William Leroy.

The committee worked closely with Architects Pearce and Pearce, Inc., and with Consultants Donald O. Rod of the State College of Iowa, Dr. Andrew Eaton of Washington University and Dr. Francis G. Cornell of Educational Services, Inc.

Legal Notices

Required by law to inform citizens of matters affecting them or their property.

LEGAL LOCATION NOTICE

All interested persons are advised that reconstruction of a portion of Route Y, Scott County, is being planned by the State Highway Commission.

The contemplated improvement will begin at Route Z and proceed easterly generally along the present location to Business Route 61 in Sikeston. The tentative location of this improvement is available at the office of the District Engineer of the State Highway Commission in Sikeston, Missouri.

Any interested citizen from the named community affected by said improvement may request that a public hearing be held respecting such proposed location and the economic effect of such location by delivering a written request to the District Engineer, State Highway Commission, Sikeston, Missouri, on or before the 2nd day of May, 1966. In the event such request is received, a further notice of the time and place of the hearing will be published.

Looking Back Over the Years

50 years ago
April 22, 1916

Stroud Craine's Marshall Hotel pool room is being enlarged, repainted and thoroughly overhauled. New tables have arrived and an onyx soda fountain of the latest pattern has been installed. This will be the finest pool room in Southeast Missouri when the final touches have been added.

The house of R. C. Finley, a farmer north of town, burned Saturday afternoon. Nothing was saved but the clothing worn by the family at the time.

The new Marmon cars belonging to Lynn Stallcup, E. C. Matthews and C. D. Matthews, jr., were driven down from Commerce Wednesday afternoon.

40 years ago
April 22, 1926

Mrs. Marshall Myers, who has been very ill at her home, is reported to be some better.

Miss Gladys Shrum expects to make her home in Caledonia in the near future.

Mrs. J. E. Alsup, who has been with The Standard since the first of the year, leaves for her home in Willow Springs, tonight, to spend the summer months.

Four Illmo High School men students will come here today for tennis matches with the Bulldogs on the new courts NYA workers have built north of the high school. Coach W. E. Mahew will choose his team from men now out for tennis. Among them are: Bill Van Horne, Clint Denman, Kenneth Hocker, Tommy Marshall, and Charles Yanson.

Four new grammar school instructors were elected and all other teachers except two were re-elected for next year at a board of education meeting Thursday night. The new teachers are: Mrs. Irma Wilson Allen of Sikeston, formerly of St. Joseph; Miss Elizabeth Emory of Essex; Miss Gwendolyn Duncan of Sikeston; and Miss Edna Howard of Benton. Miss Emily Blanton and Miss Mignon Newton, grammar school teachers, did not request re-election since they are to be married this spring.

Roy V. Ellise was re-elected superintendent for his 16th year and W. E. Mahew principal of the high school for the sixth time. Miss Florence Crisler was retained as grammar school principal, and Miss Dorothea Miller was chosen principal of the new grade school to be constructed this summer. These teachers were re-elected: High school building—Mrs. Josephine Vieth, Miss Isabell Hess, Miss Frances Burch, Miss Daisy Evans, Miss Uriel Haw, Cletis Bidewell, Glenn S. Duncan, Mrs. Geraldine Young, Miss Adilda McCord, Miss Electa O'Hara, Miss Madge Davis, Miss Agnes Erley, Tharon Stallings, Miss Nellie Goodman, Miss Myra Tanner, Reid Jann, Miss Mary Kirkendall, Miss Myrtle Dalton, and Miss Marian Sample.

Grammer school — Miss Wilma Ragains, Miss Lucille Finley, Miss Lucille Mount, Miss Nell Yanson, Miss Helen Baker, Miss Ruth Bateman, Miss Lucille Stubblefield, Miss Jewell Mouser, Miss Lydia Chaney, Mrs. E. W. Davis, Miss Margaret Clymer, Miss Georgia Houchens, Mrs. W. W. Hinchey, Miss Lillian Putnam, and Miss Pauline Meredith. Sunset school — Iola Huddleston, U. S. Hunt, and Charlotte Madison.

George Hale, sr., who some weeks ago entered into a contract to purchase the Front street building now occupied by the A and P Co., from the P. M. Malcolm estate heirs, announced today that he had received the deed and now owned the property. Mr. Hale also announced that he had leased the building on New Madrid street, formerly occupied by the Bijou and would move his jewelry store, now located on 105 East Malone, to the new quarters on June 1.

The Sikeston High School baseball team defeated Chaffee 9 to 7 in a game played at Chaffee Friday afternoon.

The Charleston High School track team won the annual Scott-Mississippi County track and field meet at Charleston last Thursday, nosing out Sikeston 63 points to 57⅝. East Prairie came in third with 26½ points, while Anniston was fourth with 2 points.

Rex Theatre, tomorrow, double feature, "Louisiana Hayride" with Judy Canova plus "Swing Fever" with Kay Kyser. Malone Theatre, tomorrow, "Man Alive" with Pat O'Brien.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the son of God. (I John 5:13)

PRAYER: Eternal God, we know not what is coming tomorrow, but we know what is coming in eternity. May we abide in Thy love and be instrumental in assuring others that a Christ-centered life brings life eternal. With thankful hearts we pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet you've had thousands of letters from readers who felt sorry for the high school girl who wanted you to help her find a job. She was the one who couldn't sing in the choir because she needed a blue sweater and her folks couldn't spare the money.

I was in the spot a few years ago. When I was 14 I got my social security card and right away I began to hunt for after-school work. It's against the law in this state to hire anyone under 16 so, naturally, I didn't find anything. Baby-sitting was the best I could do.

I turned 16 and made the rounds again and found a job as a waitress for $13 a week. I was a junior in high school that year and saved my money for senior year expenses. I paid for my own clothes, medical and dental bills and had enough left for a class ring, senior pictures and a yearbook.

When I graduated from high school I knew from my search for part-time work that it was going to take perseverance to find a job. I went out every day and made call after call until I landed a position in a stenographic pool. By December I was in charge of the pool. I now run an office and make an excellent salary.

My advice to teen-agers who want part-time work is to wait until your 16th birthday. After that you can do anything you want to do -- and be anything you want to be. You can make something of your life or you can sit around blaming "the times" and feeling sorry for yourself. -- SEVEN YEARS BACK

Dear Seven Years: Thank you for an inspiring letter. I know of no better way to encourage people who think they can't do it, than to read a letter from someone who did. And you did it, Doll.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll level with you because I need a straight answer. Here are the facts and I know they are not pretty.

Two years ago I came to Los Angeles from a little burg in Idaho -- a dumb kid of 20. I was sure I could make it big in modeling. I got plenty of propositions, but no job offers. After two months my money ran out and I was behind in my room rent, so I moved in with Wally.

Wally was lucky for me. I got a job that same week (cocktail waitress) and I make good money. But Wally doesn't believe in marriage and that's that. The trouble is, everybody thinks we ARE married.

Three months ago I met the most wonderful man in the world. I lied and told him I was living with my brother. Last night he asked me to marry him. This is the highest compliment any man ever paid me and it's the first legit proposal I've ever had. I am dying to say yes, but I'm afraid of what Wally will do if I leave him. Please help me.-- GIGI

Dear Gigi: If you don't own a suitcase, get some cartons and move into a place of your own -- even if it's only a room. You owe Wally nothing but a farewell handshake.

Tell "the world's most wonderful man" the truth about yourself and, if he still wants you, you are the world's luckiest girl. And don't move in with Mr. Wonderful until you are MRS. Wonderful.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Bell City School Board rejected the Great Society and, "Why?", is still a question of interest, not only to the news media, but to a lot of people in the community. Let us put one thing across to the readers and that is the simple fact that HALF of the school board rejected some badly needed help and the other HALF did not! When we say, help, it covers several things, such as, books that were bought with Federal Aid Money, several different kinds of equipment, encyclopedias or World Books, for each and every room. Why were these books bought? Because parents were having to take students to Sikeston, Cape Girardeau and Dexter to the libraries in order that they might get material for some of their school work. We now have one of the best equipped science and lab departments of any school around of comparable size. Part of this was made possible by Federal Aid Money in purchasing new equipment. (Don't you think Federal Aid Money sounds better than Welfare money?)

It is surprising to note in Tuesday's, April 19, letter that there are so many people "holding out their little hands to see what Santy Claws will give them." It is even more surprising to note how fast some of our more prominent farmers get to Bloomfield every time there is a change in our farm program. (Federal Money to farmers, if you please.) We all know Santy Claws is there too and there are "little hands" reaching out there to receive the "give away money". (your term, not ours.) The most surprising thing of all would be for some of the smaller farmers to know exactly how much of this give away money the big boys get.

It seems that there is quite a bit of controversy about qualifications in our school system. This is pointing directly to the twenty ladies hired as teacher's aides. Qualifications cover quite a field if one wants to delve into it thoroughly. One thing that should be clarified is that fact that none of the aides are qualified teachers. One other thing is the fact that they ARE NOT in the class rooms teaching. They are AIDES, and that is just what they are doing; aiding and assisting the teachers in ways supervised by the teachers themselves.

Speaking of qualifications in a broader sense, it seems odd that a 7th grade "drop-out", (your term, not ours) can put himself up as one sixth of the school board and know more about running a school than the superintendent himself. So, you see, qualifications when applied all the way around, can cover quite a bit of territory.

It is true that farm labor is getting more scarce each year. We can't help but wonder if the twenty ladies working at Bell City created this problem. This program has been in effect only about nine weeks now and it seems to us that there was quite a shortage of farm labor even last year. Most of these ladies when school is out for the summer vacation will continue working at different jobs. Some of them will return to the farm, driving tractors, chopping beans and hauling fertilizer. This was done long before the Federal Aid Program was started.

We also wonder if George Washington would have turned down $81,000 Federal Aid money when he and his troops were freezing to death at Valley Forge. A little help in any way at that time would have been appreciated.

In conclusion, let us say, it seems rather strange that one having so much interest in the affairs of our school would run his "flunky" rather than himself.

J. T. Scherffius

Poplar Bluff Firm Bids Low

KENNETT -- Missouri Petroleum Products, Inc., of Poplar Bluff was the apparent low bidder last night on the blacktopping of 19 streets in Kennett.

The company submitted a total bid of $72,677.64. The only other company to bid on the project was Bituminois Paving, Inc., of Kennett with $94,255.24. A spokesman for Bituminous Paving told The Daily Democrat that his bid was much higher than that of Missouri Petroleum because he bid on a limestone base instead of rock.

Missouri Petroleum's bid will be examined by the city engineer and the awarding of the contract will probably be made at the next regular council session.

Streets included in last night's bid included: Richard Avenue, Russell, West Fifth, Harris, Ely, Dunklin, West, Willoughby, Pruitt (two sections), Carter, East Avenue, Independence, East Second, West Seventh, Beaton, Central, Wimberly and East St.

Mayor Sol Astrachan announced that funds are already committed for street improvement projects this year and petitions are being accepted for 1967. Among those high on the list for 1967 will be Walnut St., from Eighth to Harrison, which was approved Tuesday.

Tuesday night's first order of business was the swearing in of newly-elected council members. They are: Dr. Harry Goddard, Ward 1; Dr. John Scott, Ward 2 (full term); Garland Sewell (one year unexpired term); Arthur Bell, Ward 3; Thurman Tinker, Ward 4; and Winford Henry, Ward 5.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, April 22, the 112th day of 1966. There are 253 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1864, Congress authorized the motto "In God We Trust" -- and it first appeared that year on two-cent pieces.

On this date

In 1783, George Washington issued his proclamation of neutrality in the war between Britain and France.

In 1898, the first shot was fired in the Spanish-American War.

In 1930, the United States, France, Britain, Italy and Japan signed a naval reduction treaty in London.

In 1942, British commandos raided enemy defenses near the French port of Boulogne.

In 1946, the body of Benito Mussolini was stolen from an unmarked grave.

Ten years ago -- Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev were received by Queen Elizabeth at Windsor Castle.

Five years ago -- A right-wing rebellion against the government of France was launched in Algeria under the leadership of four retired French generals, with the aim of keeping Algeria part of France.

One year ago -- Italian Premier Aldo Moro ended a four-day visit to Washington.

Jaycee Post To Chiropractor

KENNETT -- Dr. Larry Webster, a chiropractor, was elected state vice president of the district 13 Jaycees at their spring meeting in Malden.

Webster, who faced no opposition in the election, succeeds Erwin Lloyd, editor of the Portageville Review. The new vice president, along with other District 13 officers, will assume office early in June.

At the meeting the District 31 Jaycees endorsed the Highway 25 Association in its project motives.

The district is composed of three counties in Southeast Missouri -- Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid -- where the following chapters are maintained: Kennett, Malden, Gideon, Hayti, Steele, Caruthersville, Portageville, New Madrid and Lilbourn.

A bevy of beefy ladies, hiking to reduce, stumbled, after a long, hot trek, on a place offering luscious ice-cream concoctions. "Oh, goody," shrilled one, "let's stop here and catch our breadth!"

Three Student Job Holders Get Plaques

"It's not the number of hours you spend in high school or college that determines your success, but the number of hours you spend toward some specific training," Lester B. Kesterson, Jefferson City director of cooperative industrial and distributive education, told more than 100 students holding jobs and their employers.

Kesterson, who works in the state department of education, in his address last night at the Holiday Inn, pointed out the responsibilities of youths in their occupations.

Larry Kinsey, president of the cooperative occupation education program, presided, and Dickie Long, president of distributive education, gave the invocation.

Both received plaques as outstanding students, together with David Johnson, who also received a plaque.

They were presented by their coordinators Earl Henderson and Norman Woods.

Represented were students and employers from 29 businesses and industries.

"Times have changed at such a rapid pace, that the values of education also has been changed, including the needs of education," Kesterson said. The most serious thing facing the nation today is the drop out student, because all employers demand at least high school graduation.

"An employer may ask a new employe to sweep out, but that is not a permanent order. He may well expect that student to climb up the ladder of success and take an important position with the firm. The serious part of it is that only two of ten youths finish high school, and two of ten complete college.

"The rat race is on in the college program, and cause many to leave because they did not receive enough background education in high school to continue. I am reminded of a graduate engineer I knew, who after his graduation from college, spent his first two years by his company on a special training course.

"Basic requirements that can be learned in your high school work program can be defined as loyalty, honesty, dependability and promptness. For loyalty, we find many young persons who bite the hand that feeds them; for honesty, give a good hour's work for a good hour's pay; dependability, may be the difference of the firm's profit and loss; and for promptness it would well be worthwhile for you to be five minutes early rather than late.

"You will not learn everything from books, which is the same in swimming, but you learn most by doing, and it is up to you employers to give them the experience they need to forge ahead.

"It has been said that a person is worth an hourly wage from his shoulder on down, but that your best abilities will come from the efforts produced from the shoulders up.

"Some of your employes may loaf on the job, but I urge you students not to be among this group. I do not find that many employers still complain of students who lack in customer contact, which would be helpful to both. Give the student every assistance to obtain the training necessary under your leadership, it will be beneficial to both of you."

First Oscar Goes Behind Iron Curtain

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The first Oscar to go behind the Iron Curtain will be carried there by a couple of Czech film makers who represent the "new wave" of that small country.

Followers of film festivals have remarked on the high quality of Czech films during the past two years. Last Monday night, the Motion Picture Academy took cognizance of this trend and chose Czech-made "The Shop on Main Street" as best foreign language film of the year over movies from Italy, Greece, Sweden and Japan.

The Oscar was claimed by Jan Kadar and Elmar Klos, two film veterans who codirected the movie. It was their eighth such collaboration.

Codirection is virtually unknown in American films. That isn't the only element in the Czech film industry that is dissimilar.

"We have no star system," explained Klos, 55 and a Czech. "Our most important actors might do supporting roles in films."

"Directors earn more than actors," Kadar, 46 and a Slovak, added with a degree of pleasure. "The actors are paid according to what category they are; the quality of their work determines their category."

The film industry is completely nationalized in Communist Czechoslovakia, of course. There are three studios in the country producing 36 features a year, plus numerous shorts, cartoons and TV subjects.

In the last few years the Czech movie goers have had much to shout about. I asked the Klos-Kadar combination why their industry has flowered.

"It is because of a new cultural atmosphere that began about four years ago," explained Klos. "Since that time 20 new, talented directors have graduated from the academy and they are doing exciting things."

"The Shop on Main Street" is now a hit on the art-house circuit in this country and may achieve general release on the strength of its Academy Award.

Castro Denies Missile Story

HAVANA AP -- Prime Minister Fiedel Castro denies that he gave an interview to a West German magazine which quoted him as saying Cuba still has Soviet missiles capable of hitting the United States.

The purported interview was published Tuesday by Bunte Illustrierte, a weekly in Bonn, Germany. The magazine said it obtained the interview with Castro in Havana early this year.

HOW CAN THE DEAD RETURN TO LIFE?

It's difficult for many people to believe that the dead will rise as Christ promised.

The common question is: "How can the human body, decomposed and broken into countless atoms be restored?" On the surface this is a reasonable doubt. But if you ask this question, are you taking into account the immeasurable power of God?

If God can overcome nothingness to give us human bodies, can he not also overcome death and dissolution to restore them? How God will do this is just as difficult to understand as how he created the wonders of nature we see all about us.

HISTORICAL PROOF — The fact that God intends to resurrect the dead is verified by the undeniable testimony of history. Christ promised that man, like Himself, would return from the dead and live again forever.

When he proved his prediction and returned from beyond the grave, his reappearance was witnessed by the apostles . . . and on one occasion by more than 500 people!

WHAT CATHOLICS BELIEVE — Catholic beliefs about what will happen after death differ from those of other Christians. If you are a fellow Christian and would like to understand why Catholics believe as they do, you will find the free Knights of Columbus pamphlet entitled "What Happens After Death" most revealing.

If you do not formally belong to any Church group, you might find in the pages of this literature sound reasons for becoming a practicing Christian . . . for among the questions it probes are:

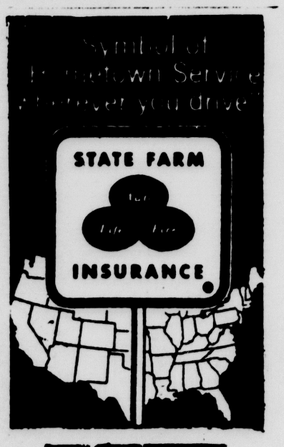

What will man be like after his resurrection? Why does man go through two judgements? What kind of an existence can we expect in the next world? For a free copy of "What Happens After Death", simply mail the coupon. The pamphlet will be sent in a plain wrapper and no one will call on you.

Pierce Will Quit

CHARLESTON -- W.R. "Dub" Pierce, Jr., Superintendent of Charleston R-1 Schools, has announced his resignation effective June 30.

The school board previously had asked for his resignation at the end of this school year, but earlier in the year refused to release him from his contract so that he could take another job.

Pierce had stated that he had a valid contract with the board of education for the 1966-67 school year. Until yesterday he gave no indication whether he would contest the board's right to release him.

Earlier Pierce said he thought this release by the board was an unwarranted action. He had said that the board's action had damaged him professionally and financially and that he would expect the board to compensate him.

A statement was released yesterday, which related: "The board of education and the superintendent of schools have resolved their difference concerning the superintendent's contract for next year. A new contract has been entered into for the remainder of this year, and will terminate June 30, 1966. A vacancy will occur in the superintendency of this district as of July 1, 1966."

No mention was made of the terms of the "new contract for this year," and there was no immediate record of such an action in the minutes of the board.

Official action will be taken April 27 in a special board meeting and at that time it will be disclosed what the new contract consists of between Pierce and the school district.

Price Rise Slowed

WASHINGTON AP -- The consumer price rise has slowed a bit since February, but not nearly enough to erase the possibility that President Johnson may seek an anti-inflation tax boost.

The Labor Department reported Thursday a climb of four-tenths of 1 per cent in the living cost index in March, following a February jump of one-half of 1 per cent.

The successive increases added up to the biggest two-month rise since 1958. But wholesale prices held steady and now have turned downward. In the week ended Tuesday they were three-tenths of 1 per cent below the February level.

One Emergency

A single patient, Deloris Stroud, Morehouse, was admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital, for treatment of an injured finger, received in a fall, Thursday.

Assualt Charged

Charles Heavener, 1618 East Kathleen, was charged yesterday by police with assault.

$141,828 Grant Given Richland

ESSEX -- The Richland school district R-1 has been notified that it has been approved for a $141,828 grant for a basic skills improvement program, grades 1 through 12.

The program will provide additional work and instructors for pupils who score at least one grade level below the national average for pupils of their age and grade on standardized achievement tests in any of four basic areas of reading, mathematics, science, and history, government or sociology.

Greatest emphasis will be placed on reading improvement and communications.

Other programs, which will supplement the basic skills and remedial reading improvement programs, include a health program, including a school nurse, a counselor to work with junior high and elementary pupils and teachers, a junior high-elementary library, and additional library materials and equipment, a social worker to aid in achieving a closer relationship between the school and home, educational aides to relieve teachers and other school personnel of clerical and mechanical duties to permit these people to spend more time in planning their work and in presenting it to pupils.

A great part of the program will be carried out during an eight-week summer program.

Brain May Be Damaged

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A 65-year-old patient with a partial artificial heart may have suffered some brain damage after a dramatic operation to save his life, doctors said today.

However, almost 24 hours after the device —about the size of a grapefruit — was implanted inside the man's chest his condition was generally reported as satisfactory.

Physicians feared there may be brain damage because the patient, Marcel L. DeRudder of Westville, Ill., had not regained consciousness.

A team of noted specialists from Baylor and Rice universities headed by Dr. Michael E. DeKakey, 57, performed a six-hour operation on DeRudder Thursday at Methodist Hospital.

They hope it will prolong his life and usher in a new era in the treatment of heart disease that could help thousands of other heart patients.

The latest medical advisory said it was too early to tell the extent of the brain damage DeRudder may have suffered.

The advisory noted that the heart device was functioning normally as expected.

Strike Barred

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson has barred a strike by the International Association of Machinists against five major airlines for at least 60 days by ordering an emergency board to investigate the dispute.

Telephone Building Will Be Enlarged

John Donoho, manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, today announced that construction of a part of a second floor and a new third story on the telephone building will begin in four to five months.

He said the cost of the construction hasn't been determined.

The new facilities will contain space for additional equipment and offices for personnell.

Acceptance of bids for construction has closed. They are being reviewed in St. Louis.

The business office of the company will be moved to another location, temporarily during construction.

The move is necessary because a stronger foundation must be built to support the new construction.

Donoho said that the telephone company planned to construct a fourth story in the future.

The second story now covers two thirds of the first floor. It will be completed to cover all of the first floor.

Bell Telephone has been in Sikeston since 1951 and employs 130 persons.

Donoho said that he doesn't expect any sizeable number of new employes to join the company as a result of the construction of the new facilities.

$32,197 to Be Used to Aid Reading

MATTHEWS -- A federal grant of $32,197 has been allocated to the R-V school district for a reading program for slow learners and related services, Supt. Lester M. King said.

The grant came through the state department of education under title I of the federal elementary and secondary education act.

King said that the grant will extend through July and that under the program, classes will be taught at the Matthews elementary school. He pointed out that the purpose of the grant is "to help educationally and economically deprived children who have fallen behind in their school work to have remedial classes."

Along with this remedial program there are provisions for a library and materials and a full time librarian and library aide.

The library portion of this program will be extended into the next school year, King said.

This is the third project that is in operation for the Matthews school under the federal education act. The other two are the dental cooperative unit with the other eight schools in the county and the county cooperative film project. All three projects total approximately $50,000.

Beginning in June will be the headstart program.

The programs will operate for a half day only, beginning June 3 and closing July 29. The remedial program will employ nine teachers. Headstart will have five teachers.

Senate Takes Up Last of Big Budget Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate today took up the last, and perhaps most controversial of the major budget bills.

It provides some $20.5 million in funds for major repairs and new construction at state institutions.

Thursday, in day and night sessions the Senate cleared the rest of the $1.1 billion in budget bills, to have them ready for a certain Senate - House conference committee when both houses come back to work Monday.

With pressure from local senators, the money was restored for first operations of the new four-year colleges at Joplin and St. Joseph.

Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, got $181,670 put back in a bill for Missouri Southern College at Joplin. And Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, won restoration of $40,000 for Missouri Western College at St. Joseph.

Other changes included:

An additional $75,000 for industrial machinery at Missouri Penitentiary in Jefferson City.

An extra $36,000 for Missouri Sanatorium at Mt. Vernon for care of 60 indigent tuberculosis patients being trasnferred from Leeds Hospital, Kansas City.

Standards for Draftees Cut

WASHINGTON AP -- The Defesne Department has lowered its mental standards for draftees.

Men with percentile scores between 16 and 30 on the armed forces qualification test now are being inducted if they score 90 or better on any two components of the test.

Previously, such men were eligible for induction only if they scored 80 or more on the general technical area of the test.

Selective Service officials said Thursday the change, which went into effect April 1, makes "only a very, very small number of additional men available for induction" because it applies to a limited number of registrants.

$17,045 for Parma Course

PARMA -- The Parma school system has been notified that its application for a summer remedial program has been approved at a cost of $17,044.70 and will be financed by the federal government.

The Program will begin May 31 and will run for 40 school days. The school will offer remedial work in reading, arithmetic, and language arts for grades 1 through 6, and science and mathematics for grades 7 through 12.

Transportation and lunches will be provided.

Teachers in the Parma system will be used. The board of education decided to use students who are going to college as aides.

New Signals Ordered at Intersections

It will be six weeks before downtown traffic lights will be back to normal City Manager W. Raymert Miller said today.

He said that signals at the intersections of New Madrid and Center Streets and New Madrid and North Streets have faulty mechanism and wiring. New signals have been ordered. Delivery will be made in approximately six weeks.

Four way stop signs are being installed at each of the intersections pending installation of new signals.

Trouble developed in the stop lights in the downtown area Tuesday night. Since two new lights and wiring have been erected on Malone Avenue.

One Quadruplet Dies. Others Ill.

ATLANTA, Ga. AP -- The three remaining babies of the quadruplets born to Christine Robbins six days ago remained in critical condition today after the death of one child Thursday.

The child who died was named Joan, second of the four infants to be born. The other three babies, two girls and a boy, have been named Jane, June, and John.

$25.000 Truck Unit Stolen from Lot

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. AP -- A tractor-trailer unit was stolen off a parking lot.

Harris Truck and Trailer Sales reported the theft Thursday and said the unit was valued at $25,000.

Waldman in Charge of Event

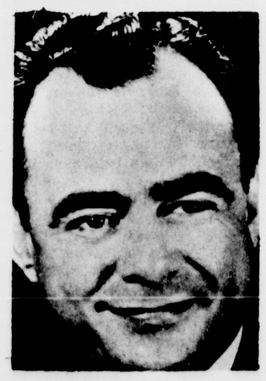

Phil Waldman, Jr., has been elected general chairman of the annual Masonic Bar - B-Que May 19 at the Masonic Temple.

This will be Waldman's second year as chairman.

Tickets can be obtained from any Mason.

The menu will be bar-be-qued chicken and fried fish.

Waldman said that last year the carry - out box lunch service was so great that this year a table will be set up to handle these orders.

Baptist Church Will Dedicate New Building

Fellowship Baptist Church, 228 Missouri Ave., will dedicate its education building Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Rev. Morton Rose of Jefferson City, an associate in the office of missions of the Missouri Baptist convention, will deliver the dedicatory address.

Others on the program are Rev. Liston Smith, pastor of the Morley Baptist Church and moderator of the Charleston Baptist association, Rev. C. D. Butler, pastor of the Murray Lane Baptist church and clerk of the Charleston association, and Bill Blackman, chairman of the Deacons of Fellowship Baptist Church.

The church was originally a mission of First Baptist church, and Miner Baptist Church. It became an independent congregation in 1950 and dedicated its present auditorium in 1961.

Following the ceremonies open house will be observed. Jim Fitch, pastor of Fellowship, invites the public to attend.

Bomb Deal OFF

WASHINGTON AP -- The Defense Department says it no longer is considering efforts to buy or otherwise reacquire about 500,000 U. S. surplus bombs and shells that had been sold or given to West Germany.

Scott Tops In Sales Tax Collections

JEFFERSON CITY -- Thomas C. Gilstrap, state collector of revenue, announced today that Scott County sales and use tax collections of $279,379.15 for the quarter ending March 31 exceeded that of any other county in the Bootheel during that period.

Butler County was second with $250,714.44 followed by Dunklin county's $250,533.02.

Stock Curbs On Credit

NEW YORK AP -- A wave of speculative trading, much of it reportedly by small investors, has led the New York and American Stock Exchanges to restrict use of credit in buying stocks.

The action, announced late Thursday, will force traders to show more money, restrict the buying and selling of the same stock in a single day and discourage "uninformed speculation."

Lunch and Milk Programs Are Restored in Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson's proposals for cuts in spending for some popular domestic programs — such as free school lunches and milk—ran afoul of the House Appropriations Committee today.

In a move expected to be upheld by the House, the committee refused to approve cuts of about $128 million proposed by the President.

Its recommendations were included in the annual appropriation bill for the Agriculture Department, which the House will consider next Tuesday.

The committee said the increases it recommended would continue the programs at close to current year levels.

The President had proposed that the special milk program be limited to needy children.

Cars Collide On Parking Lot

Police report one accident yesterday. It involved no injuries.

A 1962 Pontiac, driven by John Sargent, 614 Moore, hit a 1959 Oldsmobile driven by Mary Rowell, Morehouse, on the parking lot of the Mid-Towner Village Shopping Center.

Slight damage was reported.

Cyclist Dies After Crash

A 15-year-old motor cyclist, Joseph Coffman, Poplar Bluff, died as the result of injuries in a collision Thursday at 4:45 p.m. at the intersection of Maude street and route PP, Poplar Bluff.

A 1956 Oldsmobile, driven by Frank Smody, 48, Neelyville, was passing another vehicle, when young Coffman attempted to make a left turn in front of the Smody car.

Smody told the highway patrol he did not see the cyclist in time to avoid the accident. Poplar Bluff police investigated the accident.

Bussey Files For Clerkship

BENTON -- Henry Sleeper Bussey, 117 East Gladys, filed today for county clerk in Scott county, subject to the Democratic primary, Aug. 2. He is vice president of Memorial Park cemetery.

He is the second to file. Clerk Phil Waldman Jr., filed previously.

The deadline for filing for any county office is Tuesday.

Red Regiment Threatened

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops threatened today to wipe out an entire Communist regiment after killing at least 257 Reds in the bloodiest fighting in a month.

Backed by artillery and air strikes, the allied battalions nailed down the mixed North Vietnamese-Viet Cong force in the scrub hills 10 miles northwest of Quang Ngai on the northern coast.

Blocking units moved in to cut off a Communist flight to the mountains in the east. U.S. officers reported from the battleground that the Communists were caught in a trap and said the fighting was continuing.

The Communists set up a blaze of automatic-weapons fire from the villages of Binh Back and Chau Nhani, but the Leathernecks took both in their eastward drive. The rain of steel from the air reduced Communist ground fire to a minimum on the second day of the allied strike.

The battle brought government troops into a big action for the first time after weeks of political crisis.

The U.S. Air Force and Navy continued hammering at North Viet Nam, hitting military bases, roads and bridges. Air Force pilots claimed they destroyed the Lang Bun and Phu Tho railroad bridges on the Red River valley line leading northwest of Hanoi to Red China.

The Navy lost an A6 Intruder from the carrier Kitty Hawk over North Viet Nam, 12 miles north of Vinh.

Matthews R-V District Will Be Integrated

MATTHEWS -- Beginning this fall the R-V district will operate an integrated school.

Two formerly Negro schools, Ogden and Big Ridge, will be closed. Those children, who attended Ogden, will attend the Matthews Elementary school. Those children, who attended Big Ridge, will attend the Canalou school.

Children in grades 7 through 12 will attend the junior and senior high school at Matthews. This will eliminate two grade teachers and equalize teaching loads. Grades 1-8 had been taught at Canalou, Ogden and Big Ridge.

The board of education earlier planned to bring all students in grades 7 through 12 to the junior and senior high school at Matthews, to close Big Ridge and then permit all pupils in the district to select a school to attend either at Canalou, Ogden or Matthews elementary.

Letters of explanation were mailed, by first class mail, to every parent in the district, concerning this plan.

After a large portion of the return forms were in and showing that a large percentage of the Negro students at Ogden selected Matthews elementary, the board decided to integrate the system. Freedom of choice would be permitted, by the federal government only one more year.

If Ogden should be operated another year it would be at a financial loss and unbalance the teacher-pupil ratio in the teaching load," Supt. Lester M. King said.

Outline for Civil Rights Conference Announced

PORTAGEVILLE -- Details of civil rights problems in the Bootheel are to be discussed at an open meeting in the high school by the Missouri state advisory committee to the U. S. commission on civil rights Friday and Saturday were announced today.

Rev. Richard P. Ellerbrake, chairman of the Missouri state advisory committee, said the meeting Friday will begin at 7 p.m. and conclude at 10 p.m.

The session on Saturday will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 5 p.m.

Subjects to be considered at the meeting, he added, will include school desegregation, job training, and the problems of agricultural workers.

On the subject of school desegregation, the committee will hear from school superintendents of New Madrid, Mississippi, and Pemiscot counties. A representative from the equal educational opportunities program of the U.S. office of education, Washington, D. C., will explain the new guidelines and other procedures pertaining to school desegregation.

Managers of the three offices of the Missouri division of employment security which serve the area, will discuss employment and job training programs. A representative of the bureau of employment security of the department of labor will participate.

County agents from four counties, as well as a representative of the Missouri extension service, will describe programs to aid farmers and farm workers.

Representatives of civil rights and other community organizations in New Madrid, Mississippi, Pemiscot, and Scott counties have been invited to participate. Portageville Mayor Joe Christian will welcome participants at the opening session.

The Missouri state advisory committee is one of 51 such units whose members serve without pay to inform the commission of civil rights matters in their communities and to disseminate information about federal law and policies.

Forrest P. Carson, an attorney in Jefferson City, is vice chairman of the state committee. Stanley D. Rostov, a Kansas City attorney, is secretary. Members of the Missouri State Advisory Committee are: John W. Bennett, a professor

$32,197 to Be Used to Aid Reading

MATTHEWS -- A federal grant of $32,197 has been allocated to the R-V school district for a reading program for slow learners and related services, Supt. Lester M. King said.

The grant came through the state department of education under title I of the federal elementary and secondary education act.

King said that the grant will extend through July and that under the program, classes will be taught at the Matthews elementary school. He pointed out that the purpose of the grant is "to help educationally and economically deprived children who have fallen behind in their school work to have remedial classes."

Along with this remedial program there are provisions for a library and materials and a full time librarian and library aide.

The library portion of this program will be extended into the next school year, King said.

This is the third project that is in operation for the Matthews school under the federal education act. The other two are the dental cooperative unit with the other eight schools in the county and the county cooperative film project. All three projects total approximately $50,000.

Beginning in June will be the headstart program.

The programs will operate for a half day only, beginning June 3 and closing July 29. The remedial program will employ nine teachers. Headstart will have five teachers.

He said the cost of the construction hasn't been determined.

The new facilities will contain space for additional equipment and offices for personnell.

Acceptance of bids for construction has closed. They are being reviewed in St. Louis.

The business office of the company will be moved to another location, temporarily during construction.

The move is necessary because a stronger foundation must be built to support the new construction.

Donoho said that the telephone company planned to construct a fourth story in the future.

The second story now covers two thirds of the first floor. It will be completed to cover all of the first floor.

Bell Telephone has been in Sikeston since 1951 and employs 130 persons.

Donoho said that he doesn't expect any sizeable number of new employes to join the company as a result of the construction of the new facilities.

Red Regiment Threatened

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops threatened today to wipe out an entire Communist regiment after killing at least 267 Reds in the bloodiest fighting in a month.

Backed by artillery and air strikes, the allied battalions nailed down the mixed North Vietnamese-Viet Cong force in the scrub hills 10 miles northwest of Quang Ngai on the northern coast.

Blocking units moved in to cut off a Communist flight to the mountains in the east. U.S. officers reported from the battleground that the Communists were caught in a trap and said the fighting was continuing.

The Communists set up a blaze of automatic-weapons fire from the villages of Binh Back and Chau Nhani, but the Leathernecks took both in their eastward drive. The rain of steel from the air reduced Communist ground fire to a minimum on the second day of the allied strike.

The battle brought government troops into a big action for the first time after weeks of political crisis.

The U.S. Air Force and Navy continued hammering at North Viet Nam, hitting military bases, roads and bridges. Air Force pilots claimed they destroyed the Lang Bun and Phu Tho railroad bridges on the Red River valley line leading northwest of Hanoi to Red China.

The Navy lost an A6 Intruder from the carrier Kitty Hawk over North Viet Nam, 12 miles north of Vinh.

Senate Takes Up Last of Big Budget Bills

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate today took up the last, and perhaps most controversial of the major budget bills.

It provides some $20.5 million in funds for major repairs and new construction at state institutions.

Thursday, in day and night sessions the Senate cleared the rest of the $1.1 billion in budget bills, to have them ready for a certain Senate - House conference committee when both houses come back to work Monday.

With pressure from local senators, the money was restored for first operations of the new four-year colleges at Joplin and St. Joseph.

Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, got $181,670 put back in a bill for Missouri Southern College at Joplin. And Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, won restoration of $40,000 for Missouri Western College at St. Joseph.

Other changes included:

An additional $75,000 for industrial machinery at Missouri Penitentiary in Jefferson City.

An extra $36,000 for Missouri Sanatorium at Mt. Vernon for care of 60 indigent tuberculosis patients being trasnferred from Leeds Hospital, Kansas City.

Standards for Draftees Cut

WASHINGTON AP -- The Defesne Department has lowered its mental standards for draftees.

Men with percentile scores between 16 and 30 on the armed forces qualification test now are being inducted if they score 90 or better on any two components of the test.

Previously, such men were eligible for induction only if they scored 80 or more on the general technical area of the test.

Selective Service officials said Thursday the change, which went into effect April 1, makes "only a very, very small number of additional men available for induction" because it applies to a limited number of registrants.

$17,045 for Parma Course

PARMA -- The Parma school system has been notified that its application for a summer remedial program has been approved at a cost of $17,044.70 and will be financed by the federal government.

The Program will begin May 31 and will run for 40 school days. The school will offer remedial work in reading, arithmetic, and language arts for grades 1 through 6, and science and mathematics for grades 7 through 12.

Transportation and lunches will be provided.

Teachers in the Parma system will be used. The board of education decided to use students who are going to college as aides.

New Signals Ordered at Intersections

It will be six weeks before downtown traffic lights will be back to normal City Manager W. Raymert Miller said today.

He said that signals at the intersections of New Madrid and Center Streets and New Madrid and North Streets have faulty mechanism and wiring. New signals have been ordered. Delivery will be made in approximately six weeks.

Four way stop signs are being installed at each of the intersections pending installation of new signals.

Trouble developed in the stop lights in the downtown area Tuesday night. Since two new lights and wiring have been erected on Malone Avenue.

One Quadruplet Dies. Others Ill.

ATLANTA, Ga. AP -- The three remaining babies of the quadruplets born to Christine Robbins six days ago remained in critical condition today after the death of one child Thursday.

The child who died was named Joan, second of the four infants to be born. The other three babies, two girls and a boy, have been named Jane, June, and John.

Baptist Church Will Dedicate New Building

Fellowship Baptist Church, 228 Missouri Ave., will dedicate its education building Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Rev. Morton Rose of Jefferson City, an associate in the office of missions of the Missouri Baptist convention, will deliver the dedicatory address.

Others on the program are Rev. Liston Smith, pastor of the Morley Baptist Church and moderator of the Charleston Baptist association, Rev. C. D. Butler, pastor of the Murray Lane Baptist church and clerk of the Charleston association, and Bill Blackman, chairman of the Deacons of Fellowship Baptist Church.

The church was originally a mission of First Baptist church, and Miner Baptist Church. It became an independent congregation in 1950 and dedicated its present auditorium in 1961.

Following the ceremonies open house will be ooserved. Jim Fitch, pastor of Fellowship, invites the public to attend.

Bomb Deal OFF

WASHINGTON AP -- The Defense Department says it no longer is considering efforts to buy or otherwise reacquire about 500,000 U. S. surplus bombs and shells that had been sold or given to West Germany.

Scott Tops In Sales Tax Collections

JEFFERSON CITY -- Thomas C. Gilstrap, state collector of revenue, announced today that Scott County sales and use tax collections of $279,379.15 for the quarter ending March 31 exceeded that of any other county in the Bootheel during that period.

Butler County was second with $250,714.44 followed by Dunklin county's $250,533.02.

Stock Curbs On Credit

NEW YORK AP -- A wave of speculative trading, much of it reportedly by small investors, has led the New York and American Stock Exchanges to restrict use of credit in buying stocks.

The action, announced late Thursday, will force traders to show more money, restrict the buying and selling of the same stock in a single day and discourage "uninformed speculation."

Lunch and Milk Programs Are Restored in Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson's proposals for cuts in spending for some popular domestic programs — such as free school lunches and milk—ran afoul of the House Appropriations Committee today.

In a move expected to be upheld by the House, the committee refused to approve cuts of about $128 million proposed by the President.

Its recommendations were included in the annual appropriation bill for the Agriculture Department, which the House will consider next Tuesday.

The committee said the increases it recommended would continue the programs at close to current year levels.

The President had proposed that the special milk program be limited to needy children.

Cars Collide On Parking Lot

Police report one accident yesterday. It involved no injuries.

A 1962 Pontiac, driven by John Sargent, 614 Moore, hit a 1959 Oldsmobile driven by Mary Rowell, Morehouse, on the parking lot of the Mid-Towner Village Shopping Center.

Slight damage was reported.

Cyclist Dies After Crash

A 15-year-old motor cyclist, Joseph Coffman, Poplar Bluff, died as the result of injuries in a collision Thursday at 4:45 p.m. at the intersection of Maude street and route PP, Poplar Bluff.

A 1956 Oldsmobile, driven by Frank Smody, 48, Neelyville, was passing another vehicle, when young Coffman attempted to make a left turn in front of the Smody car.

Smody told the highway patrol he did not see the cyclist in time to avoid the accident. Poplar Bluff police investigated the accident.

Coffman was taken to the Doctor's Hospital, where he died at 6 p.m.

Matthews R-V District Will Be Integrated

MATTHEWS -- Beginning this fall the R-V district will operate an integrated school.

Two formerly Negro schools, Ogden and Big Ridge, will be closed. Those children, who attended Ogden, will attend the Matthews Elementary school. Those children, who attended Big Ridge, will attend the Canalou school.

Children in grades 7 through 12 will attend the junior and senior high school at Matthews. This will eliminate two grade teachers and equalize teaching loads. Grades 1-8 had been taught at Canalou, Ogden and Big Ridge.

The board of education earlier planned to bring all students in grades 7 through 12 to the junior and senior high school at Matthews, to close Big Ridge and then permit all pupils in the district to select a school to attend either at Canalou, Ogden or Matthews elementary.

Letters of explanation were mailed, by first class mail, to every parent in the district, concerning this plan.

After a large portion of the return forms were in and showing that a large percentage of the Negro students at Ogden selected Matthews elementary, the board decided to integrate the system. Freedom of choice would be permitted, by the federal government only one more year.

If Ogden should be operated another year it would be at a financial loss and unbalance the teacher-pupil ratio in the teaching load," Supt. Lester M. King said.

Outline for Civil Rights Conference Announced

PORTAGEVILLE -- Details of civil rights problems in the Bootheel are to be discussed at an open meeting in the high school by the Missouri state advisory committee to the U. S. commission on civil rights Friday and Saturday were announced today.

Rev. Richard P. Ellerbrake, chairman of the Missouri state advisory committee, said the meeting Friday will begin at 7 p.m. and conclude at 10 p.m.

The session on Saturday will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 5 p.m.

Subjects to be considered at the meeting, he added, will include school desegregation, job training, and the problems of agricultural workers.

On the subject of school desegregation, the committee will hear from school superintendents of New Madrid, Mississippi, and Pemiscot counties. A representative from the equal educational opportunities program of the U. S. office of education, Washington, D. C., will explain the new guidelines and other procedures pertaining to school desegregation.

Managers of the three offices of the Missouri division of employment security, which serve the area, will discuss employment and job training programs. A representative of the bureau of employment security of the department of labor will participate.

County agents from four counties, as well as a representative of the Missouri extension service, will describe programs to aid farmers and farm workers.

Representatives of civil rights and other community organizations in New Madrid, Mississippi, Pemiscot, and Scott counties have been invited to participate. Portageville Mayor Joe Christian will welcome participants at the opening session.

The Missouri state advisory committee is one of 51 such units whose members serve without pay to inform the commission of civil rights matters in their communities and to disseminate information about federal law and policies.

Forrest P. Carson, an attorney in Jefferson City, is vice chairman of the state committee. Stanley D. Rostov, a Kansas City attorney, is secretary. Members of the Missouri State Advisory Committee are: John W. Bennett, a professor

The cultural level of a community cannot be measured by attendance at any particular performance.

But Sikeston did not dispaly and gratifying appetite for good music when between 300 and 500 turned out to hear a concert of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra.

After a long winter of television entertainment, the appearance of the orchestra in the community gave its residents the opportunity to see and hear live entertainment of the highest caliber. The price of the tickets was unbelievably low--only $1 per person.

While the project was not a failure or a debacle, attendance could be rated only as fair. Ideally a thousand or more might have been expected to come out for a chance of a lifetime opportunity.

The appearance was made possible by the efforts of the community's Council of the Arts, a willingness by this newspaper and the Bank of Sikeston, the First National Bank and the Security National Bank to financially guarantee it and a disposition by the orchestra members themselves to accept less than their usual concert fee just to give Missourians living in the smaller communities an opportunity to hear a concert at a low cost.

This involved more than financial sacrifice. Any tour to the smaller communities is harder than appearing in the larger cities. One night stands always are more tiring than presenting a series of concerts. Facilities in the smaller towns for the concert often are less than adequate.

That brings up another Sikeston deficiency.

If ever any proof was needed that this community could use a modern auditorium, the concert of the St. Louis Symphony provided it.

Even the musicians shuddered when the brass section put their musical instruments to their lips.

In the poor acoustics that prevailed the notes from horns rattled and boomed, crackled, roared echoed and reverberated into the giant chamber in a deafening, ear shattering, thunderous roar.

This brought painful grimaces from the audience, who sat with hands to ears.

The Editor did not need his hearing aid even.

Perhaps anticipation of a poor acoustical reception for the music held down the size of the audience.

It would be comforting to believe that was the reason.

Anyway bringing the St. Louis musicians to Sikeston was a noble experiment in spreading culture a little more widely.

General Motors public relations aren't always as good as its cars.

GM executives occasionally display an arrogance to others, an attitude toward the company bordering on reverence, and a public welfare viewpoint that is astonishing to say the least.

The late Charley Wilson, a member of President Eisenhower's cabinet, often put his foot in his mouth during his early days as a government official.

But to his everlasting credit, he learned the ropes and was able to overcome the earlier handicap of speech and the blind spot in his viewpoint that came from long years of General Motors training.

A Senate committee recently produced shocking evidence of a gum-shoe operations against Ralph Nader, a nationally known safety expert who has criticized the automobile industry for failure to remove hazards to safety in car design. Testimony was offered that Nader had been harassed by private detectives employed by the giant motor maker and that they had investigated into every aspect of his private life.

Senators chided General Motors executives for this investigation and rightfully pointed out that Nader's private life had no bearing on his qualifications as a motor car safety expert.

The president of the company apologized for it.

But the chief counsel of the company complained in an effort to justify the investigation that Nader had the audacity and temerity to question the safety of General Motors cars--just as if there was something sacred about it or that it somehow was above criticism.

If car safety standards in the future are enforced primarily by federal government regulations rather than by voluntary efforts of the car makers, it will be because General Motors has been too slow to eliminate a blind spot in its public relations approach.

Too many of their executives take one whiff of that rarefied air in Detroit and lose touch with the best interests of the people who are buying their cars.

General Motors has an enviable record but it isn't infallible. It isn't always right.

ISLAND GRAVEYARD

Sable Island, off the coast of Nova Scotia, is often called, "The Graveyard of the Atlantic" because of the ships wrecked on the shore. The area is about 20 square miles, but the island is gradually sinking into the ocean. The only inhabitants are men tending the lighthouses, a life-saving station and a radio station.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK 1966

National Library Week will be observed in Missouri and throughout the nation April 17-23. For the past nine years, more than 65 cooperating organizations have helped call attention to our nation's libraries, their resources and needs.

A recent inventory of library needs was conducted by the U.S. Office of Education, and the American Library Association. This inventory demonstrated that most of the nation's libraries are ill-housed, ill-equipped, and poorly staffed. Sixty-nine percent of the public libraries are below standard in the number of volumes in their collections with 97 per cent of these libraries failing to meet the standard for operating expenses. Conditions in college and university libraries are becoming worse. Seventy-three per cent of the four year schools and 91 per cent of the two year schools do not meet basic minimum standards for good library service to students and faculty. Two-thirds of the nation's elementary schools do not have libraries and the schools that do have libraries need to double their present collections to meet minimum standards.

With more emphasis being placed on reading, productive use of leisure time and further education, the library looms as one of the most important institutions in a community for self-improvement, entertainment and inspiration.

National Library Week will be observed throughout Missouri with essay contests, newspaper stories and features, television and radio appearances by literary personalities, author luncheons and library open-houses. The climax to National Library Week will be a Governor's Conference in Saint Louis on April 23. The featured speaker at this conference will be Harry Reasoner, White House Correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

NEW YORK (AP) — Do people cross the street when they see you coming?

Do they yawn when you start to speak? Do they squirm, fidget or flee in terror when you open your mouth?

These are all signs that you haven't mastered double-talk, the greatest social art of the 20th century.

It is simply a matter of saying exactly what you don't mean, and meaning exactly what you don't say.

For your guidance here are a few typical examples of modern, everyday double-talk followed by their literal translations:

"So sorry, Molly, I brushed my cigarette against your new dress." What I would far rather do is pour a plate of beef stew on it.

"I don't know what we'd do without this little place in the country." Probably live in the city and really enjoy life, I suppose.

"We feel that we have an up and coming community." Next year we're installing lights in the cemetery.

"I tell you what let's do. Let's play charades." Anything to get these bums out of the kitchen. We're running out of liquor.

"Well, if you feel it was against your principles, senator, I can understand why you didn't back my bill". But when you want a vote for that new dam in your state, pal, don't come crawling to me.

"Before I pass out the final exam questions, students, I want to remind you that here we all operate under the honor system." That's why I have stationed three assistants around the room — to see that you don't cheat.

"After all, money isn't everything." There are also things like stocks and bonds, diamonds, real estate and a good credit rating.

"You look so svelte and slim, Marge. What's your secret?" Even that $49.50 girdle can't hide those six malted milks a day.

"We're sending Debbie to a new school next year. It's supposed to be very exclusive." It only takes students that have flunked out of other schools.

"Oh, Jane, I've never tasted such a yummy sauce. You'll just have to let me have the recipe." Then, when I stop at the hospital on the way home, the doctors will at least know what antidote to give me.

"Do I think the difference in our ages will make any real difference? Of course not, you sweet old silly." When a girl marries a guy with one foot in the grave, she's got the battle half won.

"Well, well, well. And where have you been hiding?" Wherever it was, go back and hide there some more.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ... "Safety Last" by Jeffrey O'Connell and Arthur Meyers. Jeffrey O'Connell, a lawyer with experience in automobile accident law, is hopping mad about the state of vehicular safety and determined to tame the Detroit tiger. His book appears at a time when Federal legislation has already been aimed at some control of the 1967 models; consequently, the edge of urgency has been taken off his argument. But it still touches on the lives of every citizen and should stir active support for supplementation of such legislation. O'Connell, with Arthur Myers, blasts the automotive industry for what amounts to criminal negligence. The basic problem is that industry doesn't think safety pays (Ford tried it once in 1956), and the author's document is industry's willingness to pay with consumer lives instead. The book is full of horror stories. It also details efforts on the part of individuals and groups to place safety first, and gives a picture of how unsafe automobiles actually are and how much safer they might be without listing makes and styles. O'Connell hopes to do to the hazards of the automobile what Rachel Carson did to pesticides. He thinks legislation is the only way to police an industry which will not police itself, and his book offers fuel for further action.

A CLIFF-HANGER'S HAPPY ENDING

At the same time as the negative side of the Gemini-8 mission - just what went wrong with the capsule -- becomes clearer, its positive accomplishments begin to stand out, too.

No one can feel keener disappointment over the cutting short of the flight than the two astronauts, Neil Armstrong and Maj. David Scott -- particularly the latter, who was scheduled to take the first round-the-world space "walk." "walk."

But the two men can take pride in the fact that before the trouble developed they performed the first physical coupling of two separately orbiting vehicles, a vital milestone on this nation's path to the moon.

And they are undoubtedly pretty happy -- like a couple hundred other people -- that they managed the first energency landing of a disabled capsule. If, as the airplane pilots say, any landing you can walk away from is a good landing, no space flight you come back from safe and sound is a failure.

Americans can feel a new confidence in the caliber of their astronauts and of the unsung slide-rule boys on the ground who plucked them down with such precision.

The worst could have happened, but it didn't. That it didn't happen this time makes it less likely that it will happen on a subsequent flight.

In a way, this is better proof of the solid strength of our space program, and a better augur of its future success, than a routinely completed Gemini-8 mission would have been.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Confessed Ace Hi jackers' 'Brain' Ran Dummy Union Network.

New York: -- Hijacking is an art and few are as creative in this field as -- by his own admission -- Johnny Amalfitano.

On April 11, he pleaded guilty in Federal court to planning the appropriation, without benefit of title, of some 40,000 transistors from a truck making the final delivery with the shipment, which originated in Tokyo. The lot, worth about $100,000, had been purchased by a Manhattan wholesaler.

Mr. Amalfitano will be sentenced late in May. But this will not be the end of the saga of a hijacker who picked on the wrong truck -- one that could be traced. There is social significance in "Johnny A." He is a vital discovery because he is the provable criminal link between the loosely integrated underworld and the do-it-yourself dummy unionism, which has terrorized small businessmen for years in many a megalopolis.

Parole officers looking into Mr. Amalfitano's background for the benefit of the sentencing judge have discovered that the confessor had been virtually a one-man labor federation.

In the opinion of at least one witness appearing before the McClellan racket committee, "Mr. A." had dominated at least one local union which had been launched by those considered the successors to Murder, Inc.

They are an un-amusing lot known as the Gallo Brothers, who get a laugh now and then between gun plays, by dissembling as Damon Runyan characters.

Mr. Amalfitano apparently still has a better head on his shoulders. He helped to create something called the Federated Service Workers Union, a holding company thing which issued charters whenever it so pleased him.

It had a small office in Lower Manhattan. And a phone -- which was rarely used. Phone booths are better.

Mostly it operated out of Mr. Amalfitano's hat. He printed business cards listing him as an officer. He hired pickets from an "employment" agency and paid them a dollar an hour. These were then placed in front of stores, restaurants, cafes, laundries, etc.

When startled proprietors poured out of their stores -- as customers stopped pouring in -- the pickets would say "We don't know nothing," and hand the owners Mr. Amalfitano's card.

Some of the local unions charted by the Federated "international" has no headquarters. Labor - management contracts were signed or business was done when "Mr. A." appeared.

This always was an ominous moment. He had a reputation for getting action -- something which hardly was diluted by his meeting with a Carmine Lombardozzi in a "Jackie's" restaurant some years ago on the eve of the chartering of still another local.

Mr. Lombardozzi was one of the men at the ill-famed Apalachin crime cookout convention some eight years ago. Today he is quite an affluent member of his bet-set.

Always surrounded by this aura of might and muscle, Mr. Amalfitano had little difficulty convincing shop owners and pub operators and restauranteurs to sign with his complex of unions.

Each union had a member -- such as Local 19, Cigarette and Coin Vending Machine Employes; or Laundry Workers Union, Local 12; the Restaurant and Cafeteria Employes, Local 26. "Mr. A." had imagination to match his muscle. There even was a section which was designed for bank clerks.

When some of these went out of business, their leaders simply got charters in some legitimate unions. These locked and interlocked with characters such as the convicts and ex-convicts, Tony "Ducks" Coralo and Johnny Dio, who has been under investigation by one of U. S. Atty. Robert Morgenthau's quiet, but hard - working, grand juries.

It is Mr. Morgenthau who wrapped up the case against Mr. Amalfitano and got the guilty plea. But his service to the country goes far beyond exposure of a hijacking brain.

Mr. Morgenthau has proven that there are steel - like links to a network which can operate much like a labor movement simply because it decides to proclaim itself as such, pay a few dollars for an engraved charter and go into business. This is prevalent.

It is the mark and the shame of many cities. As new McClellan hearings soon will show, it is lucrative for the movement's owners and costly and heartbreaking for its victims.

Yet there actually is no law which can prevent such ersatz unions from usurping the legitimate law of the land.

The case of Mr. Amalfitano proves that the drive for such legislation is long overdue.

H. L. Hunt Says

THE REPUBLIC OF THE UNITED STATES

The philosophical and intellectual giants, Franklin, Jefferson, Adams, Washington and Hancock established for the people of the United States a republic instead of a democracy. In a true democracy the majority rules; the individual has no voice.

We should remember that the United States is a Republic motivated by a political democracy. This is where the difference occurs. The voting for our fellow-citizens to serve in our behalf in government and the voting on bond issues for financing our highways, streets and hospitals is accomplished through majority rule. This then is political democracy, but the role of democracy ends here.

Can you imagine the results if our laws could only be made by majority rule? The individual would lose. A true democracy is government by majority rule. If majority rule were the pattern of the American system where would the minorities or the individual be? No nation, system or individual on earth has anything to offer that compares with the form of government, moral code, and personal enterprise program inherent in the United States.

At no time or place is the United States proclaimed to be a democracy. You will not find it mentioned in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Monroe Doctrine, or Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. To a lady's inquiry about what form of government had been established, Benjamin Franklin replied, "A Republic -- if you can keep it."

We must not permit the result predicted by Lord Macaulay, in 1857, after having read our Constitution: "It will degenerate into a one man, one vote Democracy as soon as the people learn that they can vote themselves largess from the public treasury by electing unscrupulous politicians, and then find themselves doomed."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Ever since Harry Truman accepted a deep freeze there has been much discussion of gifts to public officials, but generally the discussion has been one-sided.

It has been about Democratic presidents, not Republicans; and about members of the executive branch of government, not congressmen.

The deep freeze, valued at about $1,200, was given to Mrs. Truman by a Milwaukee contractor in 1946, through HST's military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan. More recently, a stereo set valued at around $800 was given to President Johnson by an insurance salesman through a then Senate secretary, Bobby Baker.

Both gifts became the subject of Senate inquiries and tremendous national interest. The news was spalshed all over front pages.

Much greater immunity has been given to gifts to members of Congress. Almost never do they investigate themselves. However, the law applies to them as well as to executive officials and the courts have ruled that gifts must be counted as compensation if the recipient performed any service for them either before or after acceptance. This has been applied even to free transporation and free vacations.

The law prohibits a congressman from accepting compensations "for any services rendered. . . in relations to any proceeding, contract, claim, controversy, charge, accusation, arrest, or other matter" before the government.

DODD'S ROLL CALL

Neither President Truman nor President Johnson gave any service for their celebrated gifts. This has not always been true of members of Congress. Unquestionably the most notorious gift-taker has been Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., and a check-up on his gifts shows that he has sometimes rendered service. Incidentally, we do not believe the great majority of other Senators engaged in this practice. Here is part of the Dodd record:

Sapphire ring -- Edgar Parser, New York diamond dealer, gave Mrs. Dodd a sapphire ring. Shortly thereafter, she lost the stone out of the ring. Dodd asked Parser for a new sapphire, which he got.

Sen. Dodd tried to have Parser appointed U.S. ambassador to Belgium, later U.S. ambassador to Luxembourg. Parser was more successful in supplying two sapphires than Dodd was in securing either one of two ambassadorial appointments.

Footwear -- Most of the Dodd family has been outfitted with footwear, from boots to tennis shoes, by the Goodyear Company at Middletown, Conn. When the tariff was cut on the importation of foreign footwear, Sen. Dodd vigorously opposed the cut.

Hair dryers -- Mrs. Dodd received a gift of two hair dryers from General Electric for a charity auction. When the dryers arrived she liked them so much that she kept one for herself and gave one to a friend.

Television set -- This was given to the Senator by Florence Lowe, an executive of Metromedia TV stations at the time Dodd was investigating violence on television. Dodd thereafter gave Mrs. Lowe's son a job on his subcommittee staff, also ordered his aides to stop their investigation of Metromedia.

Wall-to-wall carpeting -- This rich blue carpeting in Dodd's country place at North Stonington, Conn., came from New London furniture dealer Syd Symon. Dodd has boasted to aides that the carpeting cost him nothing. He arranged a presidential pardon at Symon's request for the latter's friend, Philip Levine, convicted of income tax evasion.

Symon, when queried by this column, insisted that Dodd had paid the wholesale price for the carpeting. Asked how the payment was made, Symon replied "by personal check." When Symon was told there was no record in Dodd's accounting of a check to Symon, he shouted, "It's none of your g-- d--- business!" and hung up the phone.

Clocks -- The Senator, a collector of clocks, has a large number in his North Stonington home from the Ingraham Company, which sent him a catalogue and told him to take his pick. Dodd arranged a $1,000,000 area development loan for the Company's new plant in Bristol, Conn.

Wesley Songer, president of Ingraham, admitted the Senator had obtained "several" clocks from the company but claimed Dodd paid wholesale prices for all but one. This had been a gift.

Silverware -- Ralph Bertinni, recently retired president of International Silver, acknowledged that the company had replated some of Dodd's silverware. He also acknowledged that he had persuaded Dodd to intervene at the White House for high silver tariffs.

Air-conditioned Oldsmobile-- We reported earlier that Dunbar Associates supplied Dodd with an air-conditioned Olds in 1964. A new angle has now developed, namely a brand new 1966 Olds has been delivered to the Senator. It is still registered in the company's name. Dodd has secured government contracts for Dunbar Associates.

Foreign gifts -- When Sen. Dodd and wife visited Korea last year, they received so many presents--oriental handicraft, silks, jewelry, silk screen, a hand-carved table--that the gifts were sent home by boat and two of the Senator's aides had to make two trips to Baltimore to bring them to Washington.

Shortly thereafter Dodd delivered a Senate speech hailing President Park of Korea as a "great modern statesman under whose administration Korea has been blessed with political stability and with an almost miraculous degree of social and economic progress."

BEHIND LBJ'S TREMENDOUS RECEPTION

Left wing agitators who would have relished the chance to demonstrate against President Johnson in Mexico City were caught completely off base by the government strategy of delaying any announcement of his trip.

Here are some of the backstage details on how the trip was organized and executed:

Real fact is that Johnson's "surprise" visit was set up more than a week before the public knew it.

It was on April 6 that Johnson accepted President Diaz Ordaz's invitation, but it was agreed to hold off any public announcement until April 12, just before Johnson's arrival. A certain amount of time was needed for telephone workers to install the direct lines to Washington that the President would require, for city employes to put up the banners, posters, signs and flags, and to work out details between the American and Mexican secret services.

So a 48-hour advance notice time was agreed on. Air Force One, bringing the first family and the rest of the official party, was due to land in Mexico City at 5:30 p.m. on April 14. On April 12, the Texas White House put out a press release disclosing the President's "sudden" decision to accompany Lady Bird and the others.

LEFTISTS SURPRISED

The timing was perfect. Mexican leftist leaders held a hasty meeting that evening, with Vicente Lombardo Toledano presiding, at the headquarter of his red-lining Popular Socialist Party (PPS).

Discussion about the possibility of mounting a Viet Nam war protest parade during Johnson's stay was heated. Representatives of Mexico's minuscule Communist party were all for it.

But Lombardo, a wily realist with half a century of experience as a political agitator, argued that anything less than a massive demonstration -- which couldn't be put together in a day and a half -- would be broken up before it could even attract attention. There would be nothing but cracked heads and unpublicized arrests to show for it.

His counsel prevailed, and the Socialist party issued a bland statement commending the visit as "an opportunity for useful contact between heads of state" and calling on its followers to refrain from any show of hostility.

Meanwhile, Mexican authorities did a terrific job of organization. By the time the U.S. delegation arrived, all Mexico City -- now, with more than 6,000,000 inhabitants, the second largest metropolis in the Western Hemisphere -- was decked in gala garb.

So smoothly efficient were all the arrangements that not a single snafu or untoward incident developed during the President's stay.

He and Diaz Ordaz took two hours and 30 minutes to drive the seven and a half miles from the airport to Los Pinos, Mexico's White House, chiefly because they stopped frequently to shake hands with part of the 2,000,000 cheering people lining the route.

BARRY GOLDWATER WELCOMES

Barry Goldwater had been in Mexico City a day and a half when Johnson's visit was announced. A few hours before he arrived, Goldwater addressed students at the International University of the Americas just outside the capital and was asked: "If you were President, what would you be doing now in Viet Nam?"

"Isn't that what President Johnson is coming down here to ask me?" shot back Goldwater.

The GOP leader was present at both the Lincoln statue unveiling ceremony in a Mexico City park and at Lady Bird's formal reception in the American embassy. He and LBJ did not, however, meet.

When the President went down the line of the diplomatic corps at the airport on his arrival, the only man he stopped to chat with was Shimshon Arad, Israel's envoy, whom he had known when Arad was Israeli minister-counselor in Washington.

Later, Arad told friends that shortly before Johnson's jet landed he had been approached by an ambassador from "a Soviet bloc country" who inquired conspiratorially:

"Just what do you make of this? Must be a crisis in the Organization of American States, no?"

"For heaven's sake, man!" Arad replied. "Stop being a Marxist for one day. Johnson just likes to do these things."

The diplomats plus some 50,000 spectators were kept waiting an hour and a half at the airport next day while LBJ and Diaz Ordaz had a convivial time at the luxurious mansion of the famed Mexican film comic, Cantinflas.

Johnson and the actor -- whose real name is Mario Moreno -- have known each other for several years. Cantinflas's Russian-born wife, Valentina, recently died of cancer in a Texas sanitarium. Afterward, LBJ had the bereaved entertainer for a weekend at his Johnson City ranch.

Diaz Ordaz included Cantinflas in the guest list for the luncheon he hosted at Los Pinos following the statue dedication. After lunch, the comic invited the male guests at his table to adjourn to his home. Both presidents promptly accepted.

Note -- One reason the public reception for Johnson was so tremendous was that hospitality-conscious Mexican officials had passed the word to hundreds of thousands of government employees that "our country's honor depends on doing as well this time as we did for President Kennedy four years ago." Best estimates are that the turnout for LBJ topped JFK's by about 15 per cent.

The cultural level of a community cannot be measured by attendance at any particular performance.

But Sikeston did not dispaly and gratifying appetite for good music when between 300 and 500 turned out to hear a concert of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra.

After a long winter of television entertainment, the appearance of the orchestra in the community gave its residents the opportunity to see and hear live entertainment of the highest caliber. The price of the tickets was unbelievably low--only $1 per person.

While the project was not a failure or a debacle, attendance could be rated only as fair. Ideally a thousand or more might have been expected to come out for a chance of a lifetime opportunity.

The appearance was made possible by the efforts of the community's Council of the Arts, a willingness by this newspaper and the Bank of Sikeston, the First National Bank and the Security National Bank to financially guarantee it and a disposition by the orchestra members themselves to accept less than their usual concert fee just to give Missourians living in the smaller communities an opportunity to hear a concert at a low cost.

This involved more than financial sacrifice. Any tour to the smaller communities is harder than appearing in the larger cities. One night stands always are more tiring than presenting a series of concerts. Facilities in the smaller towns for the concert often are less than adequate.

That brings up another Sikeston deficiency.

If ever any proof was needed that this community could use a modern auditorium, the concert of the St. Louis Symphony provided it.

Even the musicians shuddered when the brass section put their musical instruments to their lips.

In the poor acoustics that prevailed the notes from horns rattled and boomed, crackled, roared echoed and reverberated into the giant chamber in a deafening, ear shattering, thunderous roar.

This brought painful grimaces from the audience, who sat with hands to ears.

The Editor did not need his hearing aid even.

Perhaps anticipation of a poor acoustical reception for the music held down the size of the audience.

It would be comforting to believe that was the reason.

Anyway bringing the St. Louis musicians to Sikeston was a noble experiment in spreading culture a little more widely.

General Motors public relations aren't always as good as its cars.

GM executives occasionally display an arrogance to others, an attitude toward the company bordering on reverence, and a public welfare viewpoint that is astonishing to say the least.

The late Charley Wilson, a member of President Eisenhower's cabinet, often put his foot in his mouth during his early days as a government official.

But to his everlasting credit, he learned the ropes and was able to overcome the earlier handicap of speech and the blind spot in his viewpoint that came from long years of General Motors training.

A Senate committee recently produced shocking evidence of a gum-shoe operations against Ralph Nader, a nationally known safety expert who has criticized the automobile industry for failure to remove hazards to safety in car design. Testimony was offered that Nader had been harassed by private detectives employed by the giant motor maker and that they had investigated into every aspect of his private life.

Senators chided General Motors executives for this investigation and rightfully pointed out that Nader's private life had no bearing on his qualifications as a motor car safety expert.

The president of the company apologized for it.

But the chief counsel of the company complained in an effort to justify the investigation that Nader had the audacity and temerity to question the safety of General Motors cars--just as if there was something sacred about it or that it somehow was above criticism.

If car safety standards in the future are enforced primarily by federal government regulations rather than by voluntary efforts of the car makers, it will be because General Motors has been too slow to eliminate a blind spot in its public relations approach.

Too many of their executives take one whiff of that rarefied air in Detroit and lose touch with the best interests of the people who are buying their cars.

General Motors has an enviable record but it isn't infallible. It isn't always right.

ISLAND GRAVEYARD

Sable Island, off the coast of Nova Scotia, is often called, "The Graveyard of the Atlantic" because of the ships wrecked on the shore. The area is about 20 square miles, but the island is gradually sinking into the ocean. The only inhabitants are men tending the lighthouses, a life-saving station and a radio station.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK 1966

National Library Week will be observed in Missouri and throughout the nation April 17-23. For the past nine years, more than 65 cooperating organizations have helped call attention to our nation's libraries, their resources and needs.

A recent inventory of library needs was conducted by the U.S. Office of Education, and the American Library Association. This inventory demonstrated that most of the nation's libraries are ill-housed, ill-equipped, and poorly staffed. Sixty-nine percent of the public libraries are below standard in the number of volumes in their collections with 97 per cent of these libraries failing to meet the standard for operating expenses. Conditions in college and university libraries are becoming worse. Seventy-three per cent of the four year schools and 91 per cent of the two year schools do not meet basic minimum standards for good library service to students and faculty. Two-thirds of the nation's elementary schools do not have libraries and the schools that do have libraries need to double their present collections to meet minimum standards.

With more emphasis being placed on reading, productive use of leisure time and further education, the library looms as one of the most important institutions in a community for self-improvement, entertainment and inspiration.

National Library Week will be observed throughout Missouri with essay contests, newspaper stories and features, television and radio appearances by literary personalities, author luncheons and library open-houses. The climax to National Library Week will be a Governor's Conference in Saint Louis on April 23. The featured speaker at this conference will be Harry Reasoner, White House Correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

NEW YORK (AP) — Do people cross the street when they see you coming?

Do they yawn when you start to speak? Do they squirm, fidget or flee in terror when you open your mouth?

These are all signs that you haven't mastered double-talk, the greatest social art of the 20th century.

It is simply a matter of saying exactly what you don't mean, and meaning exactly what you don't say.

For your guidance here are a few typical examples of modern, everyday double-talk followed by their literal translations:

"So sorry, Molly, I brushed my cigarette against your new dress." What I would far rather do is pour a plate of beef stew on it.

"I don't know what we'd do without this little place in the country." Probably live in the city and really enjoy life, I suppose.

"We feel that we have an up and coming community." Next year we're installing lights in the cemetery.

"I tell you what let's do. Let's play charades." Anything to get these bums out of the kitchen. We're running out of liquor.

"Well, if you feel it was against your principles, senator, I can understand why you didn't back my bill". But when you want a vote for that new dam in your state, pal, don't come crawling to me.

"Before I pass out the final exam questions, students, I want to remind you that here we all operate under the honor system." That's why I have stationed three assistants around the room — to see that you don't cheat.

"After all, money isn't everything." There are also things like stocks and bonds, diamonds, real estate and a good credit rating.

"You look so svelte and slim, Marge. What's your secret?" Even that $49.50 girdle can't hide those six malted milks a day.

"We're sending Debbie to a new school next year. It's supposed to be very exclusive." It only takes students that have flunked out of other schools.

"Oh, Jane, I've never tasted such a yummy sauce. You'll just have to let me have the recipe." Then, when I stop at the hospital on the way home, the doctors will at least know what antidote to give me.

"Do I think the difference in our ages will make any real difference? Of course not, you sweet old silly." When a girl marries a guy with one foot in the grave, she's got the battle half won.

"Well, well, well. And where have you been hiding?" Wherever it was, go back and hide there some more.

April 22, 1899 -- The dramatic high noon race for Oklahoma land started. More than 20,000 people on horseback and in wagons lined the Oklahoma border for the great rush forward that got off at noon.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ... "Safety Last" by Jeffrey O'Connell and Arthur Meyers. Jeffrey O'Connell, a lawyer with experience in automobile accident law, is hopping mad about the state of vehicular safety and determined to tame the Detroit tiger. His book appears at a time when Federal legislation has already been aimed at some control of the 1967 models; consequently, the edge of urgency has been taken off his argument. But it still touches on the lives of every citizen and should stir active support for supplementation of such legislation. O'Connell, with Arthur Myers, blasts the automotive industry for what amounts to criminal negligence. The basic problem is that industry doesn't think safety pays (Ford tried it once in 1956), and the author's document is industry's willingness to pay with consumer lives instead. The book is full of horror stories. It also details efforts on the part of individuals and groups to place safety first, and gives a picture of how unsafe automobiles actually are and how much safer they might be without listing makes and styles. O'Connell hopes to do to the hazards of the automobile what Rachel Carson did to pesticides. He thinks legislation is the only way to police an industry which will not police itself, and his book offers fuel for further action.

A CLIFF-HANGER'S HAPPY ENDING

At the same time as the negative side of the Gemini-8 mission - just what went wrong with the capsule -- becomes clearer, its positive accomplishments begin to stand out, too.

No one can feel keener disappointment over the cutting short of the flight than the two astronauts, Neil Armstrong and Maj. David Scott -- particularly the latter, who was scheduled to take the first round-the-world space "walk." "walk."

But the two men can take pride in the fact that before the trouble developed they performed the first physical coupling of two separately orbiting vehicles, a vital milestone on this nation's path to the moon.

And they are undoubtedly pretty happy -- like a couple hundred other people -- that they managed the first energency landing of a disabled capsule. If, as the airplane pilots say, any landing you can walk away from is a good landing, no space flight you come back from safe and sound is a failure.

Americans can feel a new confidence in the caliber of their astronauts and of the unsung slide-rule boys on the ground who plucked them down with such precision.

The worst could have happened, but it didn't. That it didn't happen this time makes it less likely that it will happen on a subsequent flight.

In a way, this is better proof of the solid strength of our space program, and a better augur of its future success, than a routinely completed Gemini-8 mission would have been.

THE REPUBLIC OF THE UNITED STATES

The philosophical and intellectual giants, Franklin, Jefferson, Adams, Washington and Hancock established for the people of the United States a republic instead of a democracy. In a true democracy the majority rules; the individual has no voice.

We should remember that the United States is a Republic motivated by a political democracy. This is where the difference occurs. The voting for our fellow-citizens to serve in our behalf in government and the voting on bond issues for financing our highways, streets and hospitals is accomplished through majority rule. This then is political democracy, but the role of democracy ends here.

Can you imagine the results if our laws could only be made by majority rule? The individual would lose. A true democracy is government by majority rule. If majority rule were the pattern of the American system where would the minorities or the individual be? No nation, system or individual on earth has anything to offer that compares with the form of government, moral code, and personal enterprise program inherent in the United States.

At no time or place is the United States proclaimed to be a democracy. You will not find it mentioned in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Monroe Doctrine, or Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. To a lady's inquiry about what form of government had been established, Benjamin Franklin replied, "A Republic -- if you can keep it."

We must not permit the result predicted by Lord Macaulay, in 1857, after having read our Constitution: "It will degenerate into a one man, one vote Democracy as soon as the people learn that they can vote themselves largess from the public treasury by electing unscrupulous politicians, and then find themselves doomed."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Confessed Ace Hi jackers' 'Brain' Ran Dummy Union Network.

New York: -- Hijacking is an art and few are as creative in this field as -- by his own admission -- Johnny Amalfitano.

On April 11, he pleaded guilty in Federal court to planning the appropriation, without benefit of title, of some 40,000 transistors from a truck making the final delivery with the shipment, which originated in Tokyo. The lot, worth about $100,000, had been purchased by a Manhattan wholesaler.

Mr. Amalfitano will be sentenced late in May. But this will not be the end of the saga of a hijacker who picked on the wrong truck -- one that could be traced. There is social significance in "Johnny A." He is a vital discovery because he is the provable criminal link between the loosely integrated underworld and the do-it-yourself dummy unionism, which has terrorized small businessmen for years in many a megalopolis.

Parole officers looking into Mr. Amalfitano's background for the benefit of the sentencing judge have discovered that the confessor had been virtually a one-man labor federation.

In the opinion of at least one witness appearing before the McClellan racket committee, "Mr. A." had dominated at least one local union which had been launched by those considered the successors to Murder, Inc.

They are an unamusing lot known as the Gallo Brothers, who get a laugh now and then between gun plays, by dissembling as Damon Runyan characters.

Mr. Amalfitano apparently still has a better head on his shoulders. He helped to create something called the Federated Service Workers Union, a holding company thing which issued charters whenever it so pleased him.

It had a small office in Lower Manhattan. And a phone -- which was rarely used. Phone booths are better.

Mostly it operated out of Mr. Amalfitano's hat. He printed business cards listing him as an officer. He hired pickets from an "employment" agency and paid them a dollar an hour. These were then placed in front of stores, restaurants, cafes, laundries, etc.

When startled proprietors poured out of their stores -- as customers stopped pouring in--the pickets would say "We don't know nothing," and hand the owners Mr. Amalfitano's card.

Some of the local unions charted by the Federated "international" has no headquarters. Labor - management contracts were signed or business was done when "Mr. A." appeared.

This always was an ominous moment. He had a reputation for getting action -- something which hardly was diluted by his meeting with a Carmine Lombardozzi in a "Jackie's" restaurant some years ago on the eve of the chartering of still another local.

Mr. Lombardozzi was one of the men at the ill-famed Apalachin crime cookout convention some eight years ago. Today he is quite an affluent member of his bet-set.

Always surrounded by this aura of might and muscle, Mr. Amalfitano had little difficulty convincing shop owners and pub operators and restauranteurs to sign with his complex of unions.

Each union had a member -- such as Local 19, Cigarette and Coin Vending Machine Employes; or Laundry Workers Union, Local 12; the Restaurant and Cafeteria Employes, Local 26. "Mr. A." had imagination to match his muscle. There even was a section which was designed for bank clerks.

When some of these went out of business, their leaders simply got charters in some legitimate unions. These locked and interlocked with characters such as the convicts and ex-convicts, Tony "Ducks" Coralo and Johnny Dio, who has been under investigation by one of U. S. Atty. Robert Morgenthau's quiet, but hard-working, grand juries.

It is Mr. Morgenthau who wrapped up the case against Mr. Amalfitano and got the guilty plea. But his service to the country goes far beyond exposure of a hijacking brain.

Mr. Morgenthau has proven that there are steel-like links to a network which can operate much like a labor movement simply because it decides to proclaim itself as such, pay a few dollars for an engraved charter and go into business. This is prevalent.

It is the mark and the shame of many cities. As new McClellan hearings soon will show, it is lucrative for the movement's owners and costly and heart-breaking for its victims.

Yet there actually is no law which can prevent such ersatz unions from usurping the legitimate law of the land.

The case of Mr. Amalfitano proves that the drive for such legislation is long overdue.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Ever since Harry Truman accepted a deep freeze there has been much discussion of gifts to public officials, but generally the discussion has been one-sided.

It has been about Democratic presidents, not Republicans; and about members of the executive branch of government, not congressmen.

The deep freeze, valued at about $1,200, was given to Mrs. Truman by a Milwaukee contractor in 1946, through HST's military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan. More recently, a stereo set valued at around $800 was given to President Johnson by an insurance salesman through a then Senate secretary, Bobby Baker.

Both gifts became the subject of Senate inquiries and tremendous national interest. The news was spalshed all over front pages.

Much greater immunity has been given to gifts to members of Congress. Almost never do they investigate themselves. However, the law applies to them as well as to executive officials and the courts have ruled that gifts must be counted as compensation if the recipient performed any service for them either before or after acceptance. This has been applied even to free transporation and free vacations.

The law prohibits a congressman from accepting compensations "for any services rendered, . .in relations to any proceeding, contract, claim, controversy, charge, accusation, arrest, or other matter" before the government.

DODD'S ROLL CALL

Neither President Truman nor President Johnson gave any service for their celebrated gifts. This has not always been true of members of Congress. Unquestionably the most notorious gift-taker has been Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., and a check-up on his gifts shows that he has sometimes rendered service. Incidentally, we do not believe the great majority of other Senators engaged in this practice. Here is part of the Dodd record:

Sapphire ring -- Edgar Parser, New York diamond dealer, gave Mrs. Dodd a sapphire ring. Shortly thereafter, she lost the stone out of the ring. Dodd asked Parser for a new sapphire, which he got.

Sen. Dodd tried to have Parser appointed U.S. ambassador to Belgium, later U.S. ambassador to Luxembourg. Parser was more successful in supplying two sapphires than Dodd was in securing either one of two ambassadorial appointments.

Footwear -- Most of the Dodd family has been outfitted with footwear, from boots to tennis shoes, by the Goodyear Company at Middletown, Conn. When the tariff was cut on the importation of foreign footwear, Sen. Dodd vigorously opposed the cut.

Hair dryers -- Mrs. Dodd received a gift of two hair dryers from General Electric for a charity auction. When the dryers arrived she liked them so much that she kept one for herself and gave one to a friend.

Television set -- This was given to the Senator by Florence Lowe, an executive of Metromedia TV stations at the time Dodd was investigating violence on television. Dodd thereafter gave Mrs. Lowe's son a job on his subcommittee staff, also ordered his aides to stop their investigation of Metromedia.

Wall-to-wall carpeting -- This rich blue carpeting in Dodd's country place at North Stonington, Conn., came from New London furniture dealer Syd Symon. Dodd has boasted to aides that the carpeting cost him nothing. He arranged a presidential pardon at Symon's request for the latter's friend, Philip Levine, convicted of income tax evasion.

Symon, when queried by this column, insisted that Dodd had paid the wholesale price for the carpeting. Asked how the payment was made, Symon replied "by personal check." When Symon was told there was no record in Dodd's accounting of a check to Symon, he shouted, "It's none of your g-- d--- business!" and hung up the phone.

Clocks -- The Senator, a collector of clocks, has a large number in his North Stonington home from the Ingraham Company, which sent him a catalogue and told him to take his pick. Dodd arranged a $1,000,000 area development loan for the Company's new plant in Bristol, Conn.

Wesley Songer, president of Ingraham, admitted the Senator had obtained "several" clocks from the company but claimed Dodd paid wholesale prices for all but one. This had been a gift.

Silverware -- Ralph Bertinni, recently retired president of International Silver, acknowledged that the company had replated some of Dodd's silverware. He also acknowledged that he had persuaded Dodd to intervene at the White House for high silver tariffs.

Air-conditioned Oldsmobile-- We reported earlier that Dunbar Associates supplied Dodd with an air-conditioned Olds in 1964. A new angle has now developed, namely a brand new 1966 Olds has been delivered to the Senator. It is still registered in the company's name. Dodd has secured government contracts for Dunbar Associates.

Foreign gifts -- When Sen. Dodd and wife visited Korea last year, they received so many presents--oriental handicraft, silks, jewelry, silk screen, a hand-carved table--that the gifts were sent home by boat and two of the Senator's aides had to make two trips to Baltimore to bring them to Washington.

Shortly thereafter Dodd delivered a Senate speech hailing President Park of Korea as a "great modern statesman under whose administration Korea has been blessed with political stability and with an almost miraculous degree of social and economic progress."

BEHIND LBJ'S TREMENDOUS RECEPTION

Left wing agitators who would have relished the chance to demonstrate against President Johnson in Mexico City were caught completely off base by the government strategy of delaying any announcement of his trip.

Here are some of the backstage details on how the trip was organized and executed:

Real fact is that Johnson's "surprise" visit was set up more than a week before the public knew it.

It was on April 6 that Johnson accepted President Diaz Ordaz's invitation, but it was agreed to hold off any public announcement until April 12, just before Johnson's arrival. A certain amount of time was needed for telephone workers to install the direct lines to Washington that the President would require, for city employes to put up the banners, posters, signs and flags, and to work out details between the American and Mexican secret services.

So a 48-hour advance notice time was agreed on. Air Force One, bringing the first family and the rest of the official party, was due to land in Mexico City at 5:30 p.m. on April 14. On April 12, the Texas White House put out a press release disclosing the President's "sudden" decision to accompany Lady Bird and the others.

LEFTISTS SURPRISED

The timing was perfect. Mexican leftist leaders held a hasty meeting that evening, with Vicente Lombardo Toledano presiding, at the headquarter of his red-lining Popular Socialist Party (PPS).

Discussion about the possibility of mounting a Viet Nam war protest parade during Johnson's stay was heated. Representatives of Mexico's minuscule Communist party were all for it.

But Lombardo, a wily realist with half a century of experience as a political agitator, argued that anything less than a massive demonstration -- which couldn't be put together in a day and a half -- would be broken up before it could even attract attention. There would be nothing but cracked heads and unpublicized arrests to show for it.

His counsel prevailed, and the Socialist party issued a bland statement commending the visit as "an opportunity for useful contact between heads of state" and calling on its followers to refrain from any show of hostility.

Meanwhile, Mexican authorities did a terrific job of organization. By the time the U.S. delegation arrived, all Mexico City -- now, with more than 6,000,000 inhabitants, the second largest metropolis in the Western Hemisphere -- was decked in gala garb.

So smoothly efficient were all the arrangements that not a single snafu or untoward incident developed during the President's stay.

He and Diaz Ordaz took two hours and 30 minutes to drive the seven and a half miles from the airport to Los Pinos, Mexico's White House, chiefly because they stopped frequently to shake hands with part of the 2,000,000 cheering people lining the route.

BARRY GOLDWATER WELCOMES

Barry Goldwater had been in Mexico City a day and a half when Johnson's visit was announced. A few hours before he arrived, Goldwater addressed students at the International University of the Americas just outside the capital and was asked: "If you were President, what would you be doing now in Viet Nam?"

"Isn't that what President Johnson is coming down here to ask me?" shot back Goldwater.

The GOP leader was present at both the Lincoln statue unveiling ceremony in a Mexico City park and at Lady Bird's formal reception in the American embassy. He and LBJ did not, however, meet.

When the President went down the line of the diplomatic corps at the airport on his arrival, the only man he stopped to chat with was Shimshon Arad, Israel's envoy, whom he had known when Arad was Israeli minister-counselor in Washington.

Later, Arad told friends that shortly before Johnson's jet landed he had been approached by an ambassador from "a Soviet bloc country" who inquired conspiratorially:

"Just what do you make of this? Must be a crisis in the Organization of American States, no?"

"For heaven's sake, man!" Arad replied. "Stop being a Marxist for one day. Johnson just likes to do these things."

The diplomats plus some 50,000 spectators were kept waiting an hour and a half at the airport next day while LBJ and Diaz Ordaz had a convivial time at the luxurious mansion of the famed Mexican film comic, Cantinflas.

Johnson and the actor -- whose real name is Mario Moreno -- have known each other for several years. Cantinflas's Russian-born wife, Valentina, recently died of cancer in a Texas sanitarium. Afterward, LBJ had the bereaved entertainer for a weekend at his Johnson City ranch.

Diaz Ordaz included Cantinflas in the guest list for the luncheon he hosted at Los Pinos following the statue dedication. After lunch, the comic invited the male guests at his table to adjourn to his home. Both presidents promptly accepted.

Note -- One reason the public reception for Johnson was so tremendous was that hospitality-conscious Mexican officials had passed the word to hundreds of thousands of government employees that "our country's honor depends on doing as well this time as we did for President Kennedy four years ago." Best estimates are that the turnout for LBJ topped JFK's by about 15 per cent

Joan Cooper Bess Says Vows With Jack Edwards

Mrs. Joan Cooper Bess and Jack Owen Edwards were married at the Lutheran church Saturday morning at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Harold Belsheim officiating.

The bride wore a corded silk three piece suit of blue and white with matching blue and white accessories. She carried a bridal bouquet of white orchids.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Marilyn Kay Lewis, was her matron of honor and the groom's partner in law at Dempster, Edwards and Robinson law offices, Jim Robinson, served as best man.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cooper, parents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Morris, sister and brother-in-law of Bowling Green and matron of honor Mrs. Lewis of the St. Louis area.

Honored With Wedding Breakfast

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fitzgerald entertained Mr. and Mrs. Jack O. Edwards immediately after their wedding ceremony with an elaborate wedding breakfast at their country mansion.

Following the breakfast, attended by family and close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, the newly married couple boarded the City of Miami for a two-week honeymoon in Florida.

Upon their return, they will make their home in Sikeston on Moore Avenue.

As head of the Klan, I resolve to continue the fight against all those un-American subversives who hide behind the Fifth.

Golf Notes

For the third Tuesday in a row, the weather has thwarted the most of the lady golfers of the Sikeston association. So far nineteen players have turned in one or more scores for the Ringer Tournament for the month of April.

All players may compete in this tournament even with one score to be played next Tuesday providing the weather cooperates. In the meantime golfer try to get out for some practice.

Remember the responsibility of golf classes rests upon the members, so arrange the class.

Plan to stay for lunch Tuesday. There are some plans for discussion as well as some tournament announcements.

The Modern Christian

"Do we experience the will of God if we follow the original Ten Commandments of the Jewish people?"

A person's insight into the will of God is awakened and fulfilled, just as a loving person feels and knows instinctively not merely what the beloved does not want, but what he does desire.

The answer is often the Ten Commandments. This is true, but it goes beyond this. For the experience of the will of God in the conscience is much like a personal relationship deepened in love.

Our experience with God, in which our conscience has an important role, is unique and creative, insofar as we personally fulfill his desires and plans. The relationship of the Christian to God that is based on love will give us access to an ever new and deeper knowledge of God's will.

When we love God we find positive opportunities for Christian living that go far beyond the list of the Ten Commandments. The conscience develops a mature conversation with the Lord that ends in a personal relationship.

'The King And I' Is To Be Little Theatre Play

Encouraged by the enthusiastic reception by the public of "Sound of Music," the final production of 1965, the Sikeston Little Theatre is now in rehearsal for Rogers and Hammersteins "The King and I." Director is Hope Terrell, assisted by Ernest Elledge.

Final casting of the principal characters was completed two weeks ago and three of the major singing roles are to be played by favorites from the last musical.

Jo Anne Fox, who will be remembered as Maria of "Sound of Music," will play Anna Lenowens and is also serving as director of music for the current production.

Patsy Mitchell, whose rendition of "Climb Every Mountain" was one of the outstanding moments of "Sound of Music," will portray Lady Thiang, the first wife of the King of Siam. Patsy is also serving as producer of the play.

Patty McMullin, the provocative oldest child of the Trapp family will play the role of Tuptim, the Burmese slave girl. Her lover, Lun Tha, the Burmese ambassador is being played by Ralph Duncan, a "first timer" for the group.

Another newcomer to Sikeston Little Theatre, James E. Moore III, is cast in the difficult role of the King.

There are many more favorites in the cast: Tommy Jobe as Anna's son, Louis; Bill Spencer as Capt. Orton; Buddy Clayton as the Kralahome; Susie Mitchell, a veteran player, as Princess Ying and Francis Schumacher, as Sir Edward Ramsey.

Among the wives of the King of Siam are Billy Sue McCann, who played a nun in "Sound of Music"; Carol Sue Clayton, who sang the role of Baroness Elsa Shrafer in "Music" and Shirley Davidson, who sang the role of Sister Sophia in the successful production. Other wives are Kay Hunter, Charlene Freeman, Greer Huff, Mary Cooney, who also played a nun in "Sound of Music"; Martha Bess, Lolita Scott and Anne Rowe, both former Little Theatre actors.

David McCann, also a veteran of Sikeston Little Theatre at a young age, portrays one of the King's children along with first time performers Alex Waters, Jr., in the role of Prince Chu; his brother Steven Waters and Brenda Stewart.

Flood Homers For 5-4 Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roommates Curt Flood and Bob Gibson made it a family affair as the St. Louis Cardinals slipped past the Mets Thursday in New York, 5-4.

Kansas City didn't play.

Flood bashed a two-run homer in the ninth with Lou Brock on base to give the Cardinals the victory after Gibson struck out 11 Mets and allowed the New Yorkers only four hits. It was Gibson's second victory of the season against no defeats and it came when it looked like he might lose through no fault of his own.

Three of the four New York runs were unearned.

Flood's curtain closing blast was his third hit of the day and gave him his third and fourth runs batted in. The Redbird centerfielder also scored a run.

Gibson is still the only St. Louis pitcher to complete a game. He finished Thursday and went all the way last Friday when he pitched his way to a 9-2 romp over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

So far this season, Gibson has struck out 21 and walked only two.

After Flood hit the two-run homer, Gibson set the Mets down in order on a pop fly, a ground out and a strike out.

The Cardinals return to St. Louis today to face the Pirates in Busch Stadium. Ray Washburn (0-1) will pitch for the Redbirds against the Pirates' Tom Sisk (1-0).

After a day off Kansas City plays Chicago tonight in the A's home park. Gary Peters, (0-0), will be on the mound for the White Sox and Jim (Catfish) Hunter, (0-1), will pitch for the A's.

Juan Marichal 3-0 For Season, Holds .067 ERA

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Marichal is ahead of last year's pace. He's already won three games — and one fight.

Marichal, who last season tangled with John Roseboro in one of the most celebrated brawls in baseball history, pitched the San Francisco Giants to their fifth straight victory Thursday by checking the Chicago Cubs 5-2 on six hits.

It was Marichal's third straight complete game victory, and emphasized that he is winning his battle to wipe out any mental scars left by the bat-swinging incident that cost him an eight-day suspension and a $1,750 fine.

But Marichal is just living up to the prediction he made before the season started.

"I'll never forget that day," he admitted. "But I don't think it affected my pitching the rest of last season.

"And it won't bother it this year."

However, there were those, such as Philadelphia Manager Gene Mauch, who wondered, particularly when Marichal won only three games and lost four after sitting out his suspension.

"You see a lot of scars in baseball," Mauch said. "On the face and the chin and the cheeks, and on the legs and arms. We don't know about this scar. This one might be someplace where you can't see it."

Marichal is proving you can't see what doesn't exist and, although he will never forget that day last year, there is little doubt that the only thing he wants people to remember is his pitching.

In the three victories so far this season, the Giants' ace right-hander has allowed only 16 hits, striking out 23 while walking just two, and allowing only two earned runs for a microscopic .067 earned run average.

The loss was the fifth straight for the hapless Cubs, who announced after the game they had traded pitchers Bob Buhl and Larry Jackson to Philadelphia for outfielders John Herrnstein and Adolfo Phillips and pitcher Ferguson Jenkins.

The Phillies, who need pitching help, dropped a 5-4 decision to Atlanta for their third straight loss, while Pittsburgh, which doesn't seem to need any help, edged Cincinnati and Milt Pappas 2-1 for its sixth straight victory and eighth in nine games.

In the only other National League game scheduled, St. Louis edged the New York Mets 5-4. Chicago belted California 8-6 in the only American League game scheduled as rookie Tom Agee scored five runs for the White Sox.

Marichal, who struck out 12 Cubs, got more support than he needed as Willie Mays and Jim Hart each smacked two-run homers. It was Mays' fourth homer of the season and No. 509 of his career, leaving him only two short of Mel Ott's National League record.

Eddie Mathews set a major league record by playing in his 2,009th game as a third baseman for the Braves, who rode Chris Short's wildness and Rico Carty's key triple to their victory over the Phillies.

The Phillies built a 4-2 lead but Short walked Lee Thomas with the bases loaded in the sixth inning to force in a run, then got into trouble in the eighth when he walked Joe Torre. Carty followed with a triple, driving in the tying run, then raced home when Short uncorked a wild pitch.

Pappas, acquired from Baltimore in the Frank Robinson trade, made an effective first start in the National League, allowing only five hits and striking out seven in six innings. But Pittsburgh's Bob Veale was a little sharper, allowing only six hits and striking out nine in going the distance.

Pappas was tagged for a solo homer by Jesse Gonder in the third inning, then surrendered the winning run in the sixth on Matty Alou's triple and a successful squeeze bunt by Gene Alley.

Curt Flood collected three hits for the Cardinals, including a two-run homer in the ninth inning that pulled them from behind against the Mets. Bob Gibson pitched a four-hitter for the victory, his 13th against two losses lifetime against New York.

Agee hit his third homer for the White Sox, all against the Angels, and also collected a single and two walks while reaching base a fifth time when he was hit by a pitch. He also stole a base. Pete Ward collected one of Chicago's key hits, a bases-loaded triple in a four-run third inning uprising.

Local Fishing Report

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Heavy rains have spoiled fishing in most Missouri streams but the lakes are providing some more satisfaction to anglers, the Conservation Commission reported today.

Smaller streams could be in good condition by the weekend.

Conditions by region:

Northwest -- Streams in poor condition but some success reported on channel catfish.

North Central -- Streams high and murky; some channels being taken on worms.

Northeast -- Streams muddy; best fishing in soughs.

West central -- Upper Osage, Sac and south Grand muddy; Pomme de Terre muddy above the lake but will be clear this weekend below the dam unless gates are opened; spoonbills snagging good at Osceola.

Central -- Best in the lower Osage where crappie and white bass are hitting well; Gasconade, Niangua and Maries muddy.

East central--Streams in poor condition.

Southwest -- James high and muddy but Elk in good condition and goggle-eye are biting well.

OZARK -- Streams muddy.

Southeast -- Black, St. Francis and Castor muddy but could clear by the weekend in upper reaches.

Lakes:

Bull Shoals -- Upper portion clear with bass, crappie and bluegill fishing good.

TABLE ROCK -- Good; black bass biting deep.

TANEYCOMO -- Good; trout biting well.

CLEARWATER -- High and dingy; white bass the best bet.

WAPPAPELLO -- High and muddy; channel cat hitting on trotlines.

NORFORK -- Rising and muddy; crappie bitting well on jigs.

POMME DE TERRE -- Clear except for headwaters; best catch is bass.

LAKE OF THE OZARKS -- Clear except extreme upper portions; black bass hitting deep.

MONTROSE -- Muddy but catfish and bass being taken.

SCHELL-OSAGE -- Clear with crappie, bass and bluegill good.

DUCK CREEK -- Clear; bluegill biting and crappie taking minnows.

HUNNEWELL -- Clear with bass best.

LITTLE DIXIE -- Good condition; bass hitting deep running lures.

TRIMBLE -- Good; bluegill and crappie taking worms and minnows.

JACOMO -- Clear; bass hitting deep and channels taking worms.

PAHO -- Clear; bass hitting deep, catfish taking worms.

THOUSAND HILLS -- Murky; bass hitting deep, crappie taking jigs and minnows.

Fishing Tourney Starts

BRANSON, Mo. AP -- The fifth annual Missouri State Fishing Tournament opens today on Lake Bull Shoals with 20 contestants entered from Missouri, Kansas and Ohio.

Saturday's fishing will be on Lake Table Rock and the final day of fishing Sunday will be on Lake Taneycomo.

Glen Andrews, now from Rogers, Ark., won the title last year but is not eligible this year because of a new rule barring any person who holds a guide's license.

The championship is determined on points given for size of eligible fish brought in at the end of each 12-hour day, starting at 5 a.m. Eligible fish include black bass, trout, Kokanee salmon, channel cat, crappie and walleye.

Bulldogs Drop Two Games

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Sikeston's golf and tennis teams suffered two losses here yesterday at the hands of the Caruthersville Tigers.

In golf the Bulldogs Charles Atchison fired a low of thirty eight with Charles stamp firing a 41, Net Matthews and King Sidwell each had scores of 45.

The match was pretty close all the way with Charleston coming out the winner by Five Strokes 164-169.

The Bulldogs tennis players had a tough time with the Tigers as the Bulldogs were shut-out 5-0.

Terry Burke split games with his Caruthersville challenger 6-1, 6-1, and was shut out in the final match 6-0. Dean Childers was defeated 6-4, 6-1.

In the third singles Wythe Miller was beaten 6-4 and 6-4, Burke and Childers were beaten in the doubles 9-7, Hank Lippert, and Bill Dickerson were beaten by scores of 6-4, and 6-1.

In the two exhibition matches Jerry Humes of the Bulldogs won the only match 6-4 and 6-3, and Brad Crumpecker was beaten in the other exhibition match 6-3 and 6-3.

PITCHING -- Juan Marichal, Giants, posted his third straight complete game victory in San Francisco's 5-2 triumph over Chicago, allowing only six hits and one earned run while striking out 12.

BATTING -- Curt Flood, Cardinals, collected three hits and four runs batted in as St. Louis edged the New York Mets 5-4, hitting a two-run homer in the ninth inning for the winning runs.

Flood Homers For 5-4 Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roommates Curt Flood and Bob Gibson made it a family affair as the St. Louis Cardinals slipped past the Mets Thursday in New York, 5-4.

Kansas City didn't play.

Flood bashed a two-run homer in the ninth with Lou Brock on base to give the Cardinals the victory after Gibson struck out 11 Mets and allowed the New Yorkers only four hits. It was Gibson's second victory of the season against no defeats and it came when it looked like he might lose through no fault of his own.

Three of the four New York runs were unearned.

Flood's curtain closing blast was his third hit of the day and gave him his third and fourth runs batted in. The Redbird centerfielder also scored a run.

Gibson is still the only St. Louis pitcher to complete a game. He finished Thursday and went all the way last Friday when he pitched his way to a 9-2 romp over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

So far this season, Gibson has struck out 21 and walked only two.

After Flood hit the two-run homer, Gibson set the Mets down in order on a pop fly, a ground out and a strike out.

The Cardinals return to St. Louis today to face the Pirates in Busch Stadium. Ray Washburn (0-1) will pitch for the Redbirds against the Pirates' Tom Sisk (1-0).

After a day off Kansas City plays Chicago tonight in the A's home park. Gary Peters, (0-0), will be on the mound for the White Sox and Jim (Catfish) Hunter, (0-1), will pitch for the A's.

Juan Marichal 3-0 For Season, Holds .067 ERA

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Marichal is ahead of last year's pace. He's already won three games — and one fight.

Marichal, who last season tangled with John Roseboro in one of the most celebrated brawls in baseball history, pitched the San Francisco Giants to their fifth straight victory Thursday by checking the Chicago Cubs 5-2 on six hits.

It was Marichal's third straight complete game victory, and emphasized that he is winning his battle to wipe out any mental scars left by the bat-swinging incident that cost him an eight-day suspension and a $1,750 fine.

But Marichal is just living up to the prediction he made before the season started.

"I'll never forget that day," he admitted. "But I don't think it affected my pitching the rest of last season.

"And it won't bother it this year."

However, there were those, such as Philadelphia Manager Gene Mauch, who wondered, particularly when Marichal won only three games and lost four after sitting out his suspension.

"You see a lot of scars in baseball," Mauch said. "On the face and the chin and the cheeks, and on the legs and arms. We don't know about this scar. This one might be someplace where you can't see it."

Marichal is proving you can't see what doesn't exist and, although he will never forget that day last year, there is little doubt that the only thing he wants people to remember is his pitching.

In the three victories so far this season, the Giants' ace right-hander has allowed only 16 hits, striking out 23 while walking just two, and allowing only two earned runs for a microscopic .067 earned run average.

The loss was the fifth straight for the hapless Cubs, who announced after the game they had traded pitchers Bob Buhl and Larry Jackson to Philadelphia for outfielders John Herrnstein and Adolfo Phillips and pitcher Ferguson Jenkins.

The Phillies, who need pitching help, dropped a 5-4 decision to Atlanta for their third straight loss, while Pittsburgh, which doesn't seem to need any help, edged Cincinnati and Milt Pappas 2-1 for its sixth straight victory and eighth in nine games.

In the only other National League game scheduled, St. Louis edged the New York Mets 5-4. Chicago belted California 8-6 in the only American League game scheduled as rookie Tom Agee scored five runs for the White Sox.

Marichal, who struck out 12 Cubs, got more support than he needed as Willie Mays and Jim Hart each smacked two-run homers. It was Mays' fourth homer of the season and No. 509 of his career, leaving him only two short of Mel Ott's National League record.

Eddie Mathews set a major league record by playing in his 2,009th game as a third baseman for the Braves, who rode Chris Short's wildness and Rico Carty's key triple to their victory over the Phillies.

The Phillies built a 4-2 lead but Short walked Lee Thomas with the bases loaded in the sixth inning to force in a run, then got into trouble in the eighth when he walked Joe Torre. Carty followed with a triple, driving in the tying run, then raced home when Short uncorked a wild pitch.

Pappas, acquired from Baltimore in the Frank Robinson trade, made an effective first start in the National League, allowing only five hits and striking out seven in six innings. But Pittsburgh's Bob Veale was a little sharper, allowing only six hits and striking out nine in going the distance.

Pappas was tagged for a solo homer by Jesse Gonder in the third inning, then surrendered the winning run in the sixth on Matty Alou's triple and a successful squeeze bunt by Gene Alley.

Curt Flood collected three hits for the Cardinals, including a two-run homer in the ninth inning that pulled them from behind against the Mets. Bob Gibson pitched a four-hitter for the victory, his 13th against two losses lifetime against New York.

Agee hit his third homer for the White Sox, all against the Angels, and also collected a single and two walks while reaching base a fifth time when he was hit by a pitch. He also stole a base. Pete Ward collected one of Chicago's key hits, a bases-loaded triple in a four-run third inning uprising.

BOSTON CELTICS ARE THE GREATEST INVENTION SINCE BUTTERED TOAST

By TED WILLIAMS

If President Johnson wants some unsolicited advice on how to win over the uncommitted nations in Asia and Africa, he should just send the Boston Celtics out on a grand tour of the world.

Whatever happens in the meeting between the Celtics and the Lakers will be anti-climactic. The Celtics are more than just a fabulous sports team. They're the epitome of what can be done between the races and the religions. For years people have been singling out the Celtic stars who have been responsible for their incredible victory streak of finishing first in the Eastern Division ten consecutive times and now heading for their eighth straight world championship!

When Bob Cousy retired, that was supposed to be it for the Celtics. The same when Frank Ramsey left, then Tommy Heinsohn. But the Celts kept winning. Many people said the Celts are Bill Russell and that's as far as it goes but it isn't. The Celts never played a game with one man; always five and always that fantastic bench. After all, if you want to talk about just one man pick Wilt Chamberlain. Here's the perfect example of the tremendous super star in sports. But the Philly 76er's are out of the picture despite Chamberlain's great efforts. And what about the Cincinnati Royals super star Oscar Robertson? You just don't win the game with one man alone no matter how great his performance. Sure, in a single game or more one man is the spark quite often but not over the hard, grinding schedule of eighty games in basketball or 154 in baseball.

Russell, Casey Jones, Sam Jones, John Havlicek, Satch Sanders, Larry Siegfried, Don Nelson, Mel Counts and "Red" Auerbach. "Red" Auerbach is the guiding genius, undoubtedly the best professional coach in the history of any sport.

No team can whip the Celtics single-handedly. And though Chamberlain thought that this was his year to win, he must be wondering just what a guy has to do to win a championship. Wilt has not played on a championship team since his high school days.

And what better place for the Celtics to win than at Philly's Convention Hall in front of the enemy fans, who, incidentally, were pretty put out at the 76er's losing and were throwing things on the floor.

It's a paradoxical world we live in. The Communists put down our society because of the individual's right to earn a lot of dollar bills. The Celtics represent everything that our country stands for despite the obstacles put in the way as Bill Russell writes so brilliantly in his book. The races mix together along with the religions; the players are paid good money and deservedly so for this is what all sports mean in the long run. The right to make the honest dollar. It's not just a matter of money; it has everything else riding with it as well as pride, self-respect, camaraderie, hard, grueling work and the reward of financial gain in the end. There's nothing that can compare to getting piad for what one loves to do best. And the Boston Celtic teams of "Red" Auerbach will go down in sports history as the best there ever was in our time. Perhaps in any time.

State Baseball Tourney To Begin Play

Some 211 Missouri high schools will begin play next week in the Seventeenth Annual MSHSAA State High School Baseball Series. Sub-district tournaments are scheduled to be completed by April 30, district games by May 7, and sectional and regional games by May 21.

All teams were assigned to tournaments to play on a geographical basis with an attempt to limit the amount of travel and the expenses involved. Because of the proximity of schools to each other in the St. Louis area, the St. Louis teams will start play at the district level.

Winners of the sub-district tournaments will advance to play in the district games, district winners to sectional games, and sectional winners to regional games. Regional winners will play in the semi-finals at Heine Meine Field in Lemay (St. Louis County) on May 27. The finals will be played there on May 28.

The first semi-final game will start at 2:00 D.S.T. Friday afternoon, May 27, and will be between the two teams in the upper half of the bracket. The second semi-final game will match the two teams in the bottom half of the bracket and will start at 8:00 D.S.T., Friday evening. The state final game will be played at 2:00 D.S.T. Saturday, May 28.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

SAN FRANCISCO AP -- Bud Polle confirmed Thursday that he planned to resign as general manager of the San Francisco Seals after the Western Hockey League playoffs end.

CHERRY HILL, N. J. AP -- Jockey Jorge Velasquez road four winners at Garden State Park Thursday.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. AP -- Dick Johanningmeier, a former tackle at Southwest Missouri State has been named football line coach at American International, Director of Athletics Joe O'Grady announced Thursday.

LOS ANGELES, AP -- Boston Celtics' coach Red Auerbach, never a retiring fellow, is about to do just that.

But instead of the customary gold watch, his players would like to give the flamboyant coach a National Basketball Association trophy.

It isn't that Auerbach doesn't have one -- he has eight, including the last seven given, but the Celtics want him to finish as a winner.

Boston takes a 2-1 lead over the Los Angeles Lakers into tonight's game in the best-of-seven title series, and a Celtic victory would virtually assure them of the NBA championship.

The teams meet again Sunday in Boston, while the sixth and seventh games, if necessary, will be here next Tuesday and in Boston next Thursday.

Three Injured In Traffic Mishaps

KENNETT -- Troop E of the Missouri Highway Patrol reported that three persons were injured in two separate traffic accidents in the lower Bootheel Thursday.

A one-car accident occurred at 1:10 a.m. six miles south of Hayti on Highway 61. Frank Riley, 48, of Lilbourn, driver of a northbound 1960 Chevrolet, lost control of his vehicle on wet pavement, causing the car to go off the road and strike a culvert. Injured was Riley's wife, Delsie Riley, 44, who suffered possible head injuries and contusions. She was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital at Hayti for treatment.

Two cars collided at 3:35 p.m. seven miles north of the Arkansas-Missouri state line on Highway 61. All persons involved were from Steele.

Beatrice Sandlin, 60, was attempting to turn left in a 1966 Buick when the rear of the vehicle was struck by a 1958 Ford driven by Lawrence Gastring, 28.

Mrs. Sandlin sustained back injuries and contusions while her husband, Clarence Sandlin, 66, a passenger in the car, received possible fractured ribs. Both went to Doctor's Clinic at Caruthersville for treatment.

Gestring was issued a summons for careless and reckless driving.

Coleman Hitting .533 For Missouri Tigers, 8 for 15

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- Ron Coleman, leading Tiger hitter, packs his travel bag for the Kansas series at Lawrence this Friday and Saturday, and probably will start in center-field.

Coleman, the lithe, basketball bombardier, was hitting .533 for Missouri (8 for 15) when he sprained his left arm in the fourth game with Texas A & M. Inaccurately, the injury was first diagnosed as a fracture.

Though inactivity has dulled his timing, Coleman should add more sting to a sputtering team attack (.252). The fleet Jefferson Citian also will improve things defensively.

Missouri, now 2-4 in Big Eight games, is lagging in its bid to win the championship a fifth, straight time. As a contender of any stature, the Bengals must achieve a difficult sweep of the three-game set against the tail-end Jayhawks (1-5) this Friday and Saturday.

Sophomore Mike McFarland (1-1) and Mike Eader (-10) are the probable seven-inning pitchers on Friday -- with fastballer Orville Hollrah (1-2) working on Saturday. Bill Maddux and Sandy Buda are likely to be two of K.U.'s pitching choices.

Coach John Simmons of Missouri is still unsettled on his shortstop and third-base positions -- where he has had problems blending hitting and defense. At third, there is little to choose between the puny averages of newcomer Bill Griffin (.154) and letterman Roger Lindstrom (.151).

Rookie Rudy Stroupe is outswinging veteran Tom Seal, .250 to .162, but Seal is more seasoned afield. Behind the plate, Phil Rhode is hitting .368 to strapping Al Chettle's .241, but Simmons likes Chettle's defensive mechanics.

The Tigers, 607 for all games, probably will line up this way: Gene Stephenson, rf(.250); Tom Seal, ss (.162); Ron Cummins, 1b (.192); Bob Robben, 2b(.218); Al Chettle, c (.241); Ron Coleman, cf (.533); Barry Lubeck, lf (.333); Roger Lindstrom, 3b (.151); and Mike McFarland (1-1).

Oklahoman and Buddies Search for Viet Cong

EDITOR'S NOTE — D-Day. Clark Richie of Jay, Okla., only 22, and his buddies moved out for the attack against the Viet Cong. Through the steaming jungle they went in search of the elusive enemy on this fear-filled Friday, the last of five testing days in the life of a GI.

CU CHI, South Viet Nam (AP)—The men groped in the darkness as the clicks and clanks of pistol belts, helmets and rifles mixed with hoarse whispers of "Let's go, let's go."

Pfc. Clark Richie of Jay, Okla., already was set. He had taken the last watch of the night atop the bunker and was wide awake now at 5:45 this Friday morning.

Richie, 22, was the machine gunner for B Company. His team would be in the first wave of this morning's attack.

They were going after the Viet Cong in a stronghold the enemy had held for decades.

Then a swarm of dots appeared far off in the sky—the helicopters were coming to take them to the attack point.

The helicopters landed and their vibrating shells filled quickly. One by one in rotation they took off—sailing low for a few hundred yards, then soaring upward.

Below could be seen Cu Chi, the town near the camp and some 25 miles northwest of Saigon. Farther west were the jungles and rubber plantation where these men of 2nd Battalion, 27th Infantry Regiment-the famed "Wolfhounds" of Korea-had first tangled with the Viet Cong in hacking out their 2nd Brigade, 25th Division base camp.

The fleet of choppers hummed for 15 minutes over villages and green fields, dense jungles and dry brown paddies. Then, suddenly, swiftly, they dropped.

Soldiers leaped and tumbled out — they had been instructed the helicopters would be on the ground just four seconds.

Richie's team hit the paddy, sprawled flat and waited for the choppers to soar off. Hunched over, they charged in short, chopping steps to the edge of the clearing.

Platoon by platoon the GIs disappeared into the jungle. Bursts of firing erupted as the lead element met resistance. Enemy bullets cracked and whined through the paddy where Richie's platoon waited to move up. Every man plunged to the dew-damp ground.

It was 9 a.m. and Richie's unit was called up, through jungles so thick Richie could not see the man two yards in front of him.

The jungle opened into a clearing where a thatched roof hut was blazing. For months the inhabitants of the area had been told to get out because this was Viet Cong territory and would come under attack. Anyone found there would be presumed a Communist until proven otherwise.

The men had been ordered, however, not to fire at anyone or any place until they had received fire.

Richie's platoon stayed in reserve as the rest of the company advanced warily across a long, wide rice paddy to take positions in a dry, overgrown canal.

Capt. Malcolm Howard, 26, of Deep Run, N.C., B Company commander, consulted maps and called his radiomen around him. They were facing the major objective of the day--Xom Moi, the Viet Cong stronghold that had twice in recent months thrust back American attempts to sweep through.

Now they waited for the brigade's armored units — the 1st Battalion of the 5th Mechanized Infantry and the 3rd Platoon of the 4th Cavalry —to smash into Xom Moi with tanks and armored personnel carriers.

The noon sun bore down as they waited. Richie and his machine gun crew sprawled in the shade of a tree.

There had been just one casualty in the battalion, and that a slight one from friendly grenade fragments.

Finally the call came to move up. The 3rd Platoon, with Richie, spread out and crossed a flat paddy field. Stacks of straw blazed from fires set by a forward element.

The armored units had crashed through and any Viet Cong or their families who had not evacuated before did so then. Soldiers tossed grenades into holes and tunnels. No captives were taken, no casualties were suffered, the enemy was nowhere to be found.

B Company started back home through the heat and jungle.

A mile from home, the men flopped on the dusty ground with sighs and means of weariness.

Richie, his machine gun to one side, stretched on the ground, silent and soaked with sweat. His red hair was matted and his freckles were nearly hidden by grime and dust.

The last several hundred yards were toughest. Men from another company, exhausted by heat stroke, lay alongside the route to camp.

Richie and his weapons squad plodded back through the coils of barbed wire just outside the camp perimeter.

At bunker 14 Richie threw off his gear. One man ripped off his clothes and fell panting onto an air mattress.

Richie sat on a short-legged stool and drizzled a canteen-full of water over his head.

"Well," he said with a slight grin, "we accomplished our mission."

"Sort of disappointing. But I guess we'll have plenty of chances to fight. Main thing is to be glad nobody got hurt."

Ahead was the night and night watches with artillery blasting and mosquitoes zapping. Tomorrow would bring details and cleaning weapons and the monotonous routine of the infantryman.

And soon would come more attacks against the Viet Cong. Maybe "Charley" would come out next time, or maybe it would be another exercise in frustration.

ADVANCE -- May 5 has been set as Rabies day by the Advance City Council.

Dogs will be vaccinated and tagged at they city Hall between 3 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. by Dr. L. E. Palmer of Dexter. There will be a charge of $2 per dog.

The rabies clinic is open to dog owners in Advance and the surrounding area.

According to Mayor James Drum, the large number of dogs in town has become a menace and for that reason any dog that isn't tagged will be destroyed.

Electrical Bid Opening May 2

KENNETT -- The Board of Public Works will open bids at 7:30 p.m. May 2, on electrical materials to be used in scheduled improvements in the city's overhead electrical distribution system.

The consulting engineer's estimate of the cost of these materials is a little more than $100,000. The material specifications have been approved by the members of the Board of Public Works.

Improvements scheduled to get underway this summer include construction of a 69,000-volt power line between the municipal power plant and the Southwestern Power Administration 161,000-volt substation, located approximately four miles north of Kennett.

Improvements of the electrical distribution substation at the power plant will make it suitable for the SPA power and construction of a 13,800 volt west loop within the Kennett city limits plus construction of a 13,800/2,400 volt substation in southwest Kennett (exact location yet to be selected).

Construction of a 13,800-volt east loop is tentatively scheduled for 1967. Estimated cost of the entire electrical distribution improvement program is $358,000 to be paid for from electric department revenue.

These planned improvements will provide increased power delivery facilities to meet the growth needs within the City of Kennett, thereby providing even better electric service to all city light and water electric customers.

Pope's Visit Coverage Rates High in TV Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Television coverage of Pope Paul's historic visit to New York and the war in Viet Nam figured high Thursday in the 26th annual presentation of the George Foster Peabody Awards for distinguished achievement by television and radio.

In television news, the winners were Frank McGee, of NBC; Morley Safer of CBS and Station KTLA, Los Angeles.

McGee was cited for his "superb descriptions" of the Pope's visit and as another man at the NBC news space center. Safer's reports from the Viet Nam battlefront were honored for their "journalistic integrity and honesty, sensitivity and forcefulness."

Station KTLA received an award for covering the Watts riots of 1965.

The winners in the television entertainment category were "The Julie Andrews Show," NBC; the Barbra Streisand special, "My Name Is Barbra," CBS, and "Frank Sinatra — A Man and His Music," NBC. All were special, one-hour shows.

"A Charlie Brown Christmas," CBS, was the winner among television youth and children's programs. It was taken from the Charles Schulz comic strip "Peanuts."

A special award was made for the ABC show, "A Visit to Washington With Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson — on Behalf of a More Beautiful America." Mrs. Johnson also was to present the awards at the luncheon meeting.

In the category of television public service, the CBS Reports show, "KKK — The Invisible Empire," was honored as a devastating light "on America's most shameful hate group."

CBS' show "The National Driver's Test" was called the forerunner in television innovation in 1965. The program permitted millions of viewers to sit in their homes and check their driving judgment, knowledge and perception.

The National Educational Television network received the Peabody Award for the most distinguished performance in educational broadcasting. The network was cited for several social documentaries.

For television's most inventive art documentary, the award went to "The Mystery of Stonehenge," CBS. The show was called a "handsome blend of beautiful photography, ancient history and modern theory."

The Xerox Corp. was cited for making a television contribution to international understanding in its sponsorship of such programs as "The Making of The President — 1964," "Let My People Go," "The Louvre," and a series on the United Nations.

The CBS program "Music 'Till Dawn" was honored as "the first successful all-night program of sponsored (classical and semiclassical music." An award was presented to CBS and American Airlines, the sponsor, for meritorious public service.

Radio Station WCCO, Minneapolis, received a public service award for covering the blizzards, floods and tornadoes that swept through the Plains states during a three-month period last year. "Through broadcast survival instructions and continuous alerts, hundreds of lives were saved," said the award.

Oklahoman and Buddies Search for Viet Cong

EDITOR'S NOTE — D-Day. Clark Richie of Jay, Okla., only 22, and his buddies moved out for the attack against the Viet Cong. Through the steaming jungle they went in search of the elusive enemy on this fear-filled Friday, the last of five testing days in the life of a GI.

CU CHI, South Viet Nam (AP)—The men groped in the darkness as the clicks and clanks of pistol belts, helmets and rifles mixed with hoarse whispers of "Let's go, let's go."

Pfc. Clark Richie of Jay, Okla., already was set. He had taken the last watch of the night atop the bunker and was wide awake now at 5:45 this Friday morning.

Richie, 22, was the machine gunner for B Company. His team would be in the first wave of this morning's attack.

They were going after the Viet Cong in a stronghold the enemy had held for decades.

Then a swarm of dots appeared far off in the sky—the helicopters were coming to take them to the attack point.

The helicopters landed and their vibrating shells filled quickly. One by one in rotation they took off—sailing low for a few hundred yards, then soaring upward.

Below could be seen Cu Chi, the town near the camp and some 25 miles northwest of Saigon. Farther west were the jungles and rubber plantation where these men of 2nd Battalion, 27th Infantry Regiment—the famed "Wolfhounds" of Korea-had first tangled with the Viet Cong in hacking out their 2nd Brigade, 25th Division base camp.

The fleet of choppers hummed for 15 minutes over villages and green fields, dense jungles and dry brown paddies. Then, suddenly, swiftly, they dropped.

Soldiers leaped and tumbled out — they had been instructed the helicopters would be on the ground just four seconds.

Richie's team hit the paddy, sprawled flat and waited for the choppers to soar off. Hunched over, they charged in short, chopping steps to the edge of the clearing.

Platoon by platoon the GIs disappeared into the jungle. Bursts of firing erupted as the lead element met resistance. Enemy bullets cracked and whined through the paddy where Richie's platoon waited to move up. Every man plunged to the dew-damp ground.

Republicans Also at Odds over Conflict

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is in one of the most unhappy moments of its history and knows it and so do its friends, critics, Democrats, Republicans, Chinese, Vietnamese, and even Eskimos if they get a daily newspaper or listen to a radio.

But, for that matter, this is not pleasant spring weather for the Republicans, either.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, House Republican leader, never dreaming he might be tackled by one of his own teammates, decided it was a good time to charge through the center of the Johnson administration by accusing it of "shocking mismanagement of the war" in Viet Nam and a shipping tie-up there.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara called this "baloney." He said there was no bomb shortage and supply unloading was normal. His deputy secretary, Cyrus R. Vance, conceded there had been a shipping bottleneck last November. This made Ford look five months behind time.

Then Ford's teammate, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, got into the act, complaining that fellow-Republican Ford went pretty far with his charge of "shocking mismanagement." He asked: "Who are the shocked?" and a lot more.

All of which goes to show that the Republicans, like the Democrats, are at sixes and sevens over the war.

McNamara forecast new political discord in South Viet Nam, as might have been guessed from some of the statements coming out of the Johnson administration in the past few days, which seems to be looking every which way.

And if you couldn't figure exactly what they meant, or where they might be looking, maybe the administration couldn't, either.

For instance, McNamara raised one of the strangest questions of the war Wednesday when he said Americans would not try to prevent the Communist Viet Cong from participating in the elections of South Viet Nam if they tried to do so peacefully.

Would they be permitted to cross the military lines to head south, provided they carried no weapons? Would that be the only test? But what if they had weapons cached in the south? How could they be identified as South Vietnamese with a right to vote at all? There are many questions that could be asked.

McNamara said it would make no difference to this country if South Viet Nam went neutral. Wouldn't it? If it chose neutralism it might do so under Communist influence and soon choose to become Communist. Then what was all the fighting for?

Last weekend Secretary of State Dean Rusk's long-range philosophy of dealing with Red China was revealed: No hope of changing the aggressiveness of the present leadership in the foreseeable future.

But in the years ahead, perhaps with new leaders and by firmness and good will, there might be an era of good relations. Then Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield got an idea, which was not exactly new: Let's try for a peace conference with Red China and North Viet Nam.

Fine, said the Johnson administration, let's try. But anyone watching U.S.-Chinese relations for years, and the futile efforts to get peace talks with North Viet Nam, wouldn't bet on the chance.

This is one of the greatest international foul-ups of modern times.

RADIOACTIVE

A man drove into my service station to complain that he couldn't turn off his radio. When I asked him to step out of the car, I noticed that the music followed him. "Look in your pockets," I told him. He did, and pulled out a transistor radio. He thanked me and drove off in peace and quiett.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

In the meanwhile, on May 18, 1965, the district court ignored the New York Court of Appeals' holding that the previously approved paln violated the State constitution and by a 2 to 1 vote ordered the 1965 election to proceed on the basis of this plan. As was expected, Governor Rockefeller vetoed the Democratic bills. The Democrats then appealed to the Supreme Court and moved to expedite the appeal, which would not otherwise be heard until the fall when it was too late. They also applied to Mr. Justice Harlan, as Circuit Justice, for a stay of the district court's order; he referred this to the entire Court. On June 1, 1965, the Court summarily turned down the Democratic moves.

Mr. Justice Harlan alone dissented from the Court's "casual way" of disposing of the whole matter. So ended epilogue one.

The undaunted Democrats went to the State Court of Appeals. Again the State court reiterated that the federally-approved apportionment act violated the State constitution, and by a 4 to 3 vote enjoined the scheduled 1965 election. At that point, the New York State officials were under a State order to refrain from holding an election and under a Federal order to hold an election. As The New York Times described it: "The move was the latest in a series of complicated legal maneuvers in the reapportionment cases that have confused lawyers, laymen, and judges alike." The Democrats next asked Mr. Justice Harlan to stay the Federal court order which in effect overturned the State court order. He refused to do so because of the whole Supreme Court's prior refusal of a stay. Thus ended the second epilogue -- with no end to the performance in sight.

New York's problems are typical, not atypical. For example, a three-judge Federal district in Hawaii overturned a State legislative apportionment plan, which followed population closely, because the district boundaries of the Senate and House of Representatives tended to be similar in certain districts. After referring to testimony that various districts were too heterogeneous, with persons of Japanese and Caucasian ancestry thrown together, as well as those of various income levels, and noting criticism of one district because it contained "a multitude of Caucasian widows in the uplands area, and an over-abundance of Filipino males in the seaward portion of the district," the court concluded:

"There should not be any monolithic political units of representation in that all-inclusive system of apportionment. Unless, within any single geographically defined political area or unit, there is a meaningful and substantial difference in the composition of that body of electors therein, whose combined votes elect a senator, from that body whose combined votes elect a member of the house, then the demanded differing complexions and collective attitudes are lost, the necessary cross-checking and resulting balance is absent, and the majorities therein are given a disproportional monolithic command, not only within the narrow political unit, but also within the legislative bodies. Such artificially concentrated political power negates any notion of equality of representation for the minorities entrapped therein, as well as for all other electors of the State outside such a monolithic political unit."

The Court also held:

"While it is a fundamental factor under the decisions of the (Supreme) Court, population is not the sole definitive measure for setting up either representative or senatorial districts. Compactness and contiguity of the territory are admittedly also factors, but community of interests, community of problems, socio-economic status, political and racial factors -- each and all must be considered, and not only must the electoral districts be laid out with the totality of those factors having been taken into consideration, but even more, the sum total of all the districting must result in substantial equality of meaningful representation to each and all of the voters of the State."

Republicans Also at Odds over Conflict

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is in one of the most unhappy moments of its history and knows it and so do its friends, critics, Democrats, Republicans, Chinese, Vietnamese, and even Eskimos if they get a daily newspaper or listen to a radio.

But, for that matter, this is not pleasant spring weather for the Republicans, either.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, House Republican leader, never dreaming he might be tackled by one of his own teammates, decided it was a good time to charge through the center of the Johnson administration by accusing it of "shocking mismanagement of the war" in Viet Nam and a shipping tie-up there.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara called this "baloney." He said there was no bomb shortage and supply unloading was normal. His deputy secretary, Cyrus R. Vance, conceded there had been a shipping bottleneck last November. This made Ford look five months behind time.

Then Ford's teammate, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, got into the act, complaining that fellow-Republican Ford went pretty far with his charge of "shocking mismanagement." He asked: "Who are the shocked?" and a lot more.

All of which goes to show that the Republicans, like the Democrats, are at sixes and sevens over the war.

McNamara forecast new political discord in South Viet Nam, as might have been guessed from some of the statements coming out of the Johnson administration in the past few days, which seems to be looking every which way.

And if you couldn't figure exactly what they meant, or where they might be looking, maybe the administration couldn't, either.

For instance, McNamara raised one of the strangest questions of the war Wednesday when he said Americans would not try to prevent the Communist Viet Cong from participating in the elections of South Viet Nam if they tried to do so peacefully.

Would they be permitted to cross the military lines to head south, provided they carried no weapons? Would that be the only test? But what if they had weapons cached in the south? How could they be identified as South Vietnamese with a right to vote at all? There are many questions that could be asked.

McNamara said it would make no difference to this country if South Viet Nam went neutral. Wouldn't it? If it chose neutralism it might do so under Communist influence and soon choose to become Communist. Then what was all the fighting for?

Last weekend, Secretary of State Dean Rusk's long-range philosophy of dealing with Red China was revealed: No hope of changing the aggressiveness of the present leadership in the foreseeable future.

Rain and high winds have kept anglers off most large impoundments, however, those who have braved the elements were rewarded with good catches of bass and crappie. Crappie are moving into the shallows and are being taken on small jigs and by casting minnows. Most of the larger impoundments have not been affected by the rainfall. At Lake of the Ozarks there is some dingy to cloudy water in the upper arms. While the Warsaw area is murky, this water will not reach the main portion of the lake for several days. Clearwater Lake has a five-foot rise and is rated cloudy to dingy. Wappapello with a four-foot rise is murky in the upper reaches and cloudy to dingy in the lower section. All Missouri Ozark streams are flushed and are dingy to muddy.

SOFT LANDING—Central Michigan University has the newest in pole vault landing pits. The pit is really an air-filled plastic container nicknamed "Cloud 9." The cushion, when inflated, weighs 150 pounds. It has a valve and fan (top) which allows air to escape when the vaulter lands. It draws in air as the vaulter climbs out of the pit.

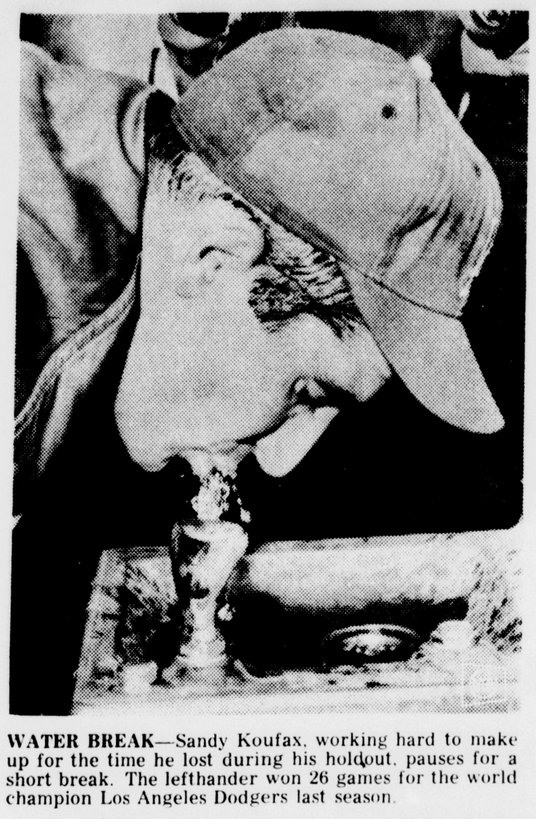

(NEA Newsmap)

UNEXPECTED SUCCESS—In ending ahead of schedule, the Gemini-8 space flight scored an unexpected success. The emergency splashdown tested for the first time the elaborate contingency plans set up for every space flight. They worked flawlessly. Newsmap locates the four areas where ships and planes were deployed in advance to handle capsule recovery. When trouble developed aboard Gemini-8, it was night over the planned area in the western Atlantic (1) so splashdown was quickly shifted to the western Pacific (3) and daylight.

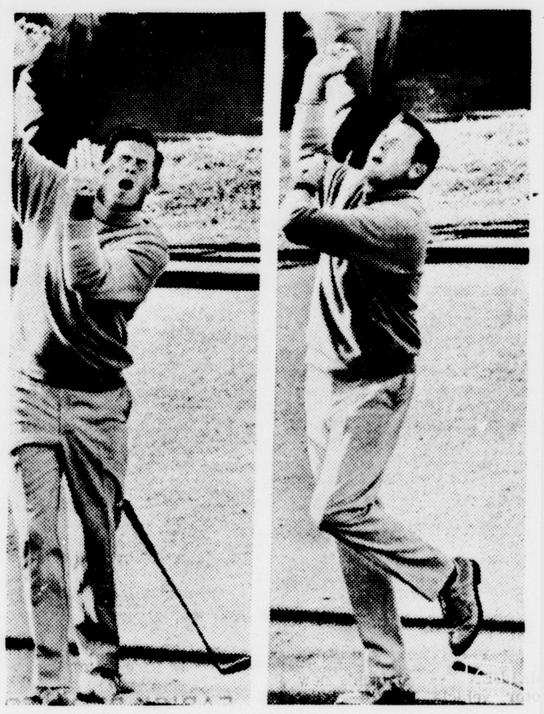

TENNIS TOPPER—It's no longer "Tennis, anyone?" but tennis any time. Glass fiber inflated domes installed at a Forest Hills, N.Y., club make use of the courts possible all year round for devoted players, such as champion Billy Talbert and partner Gretchen Dahn.

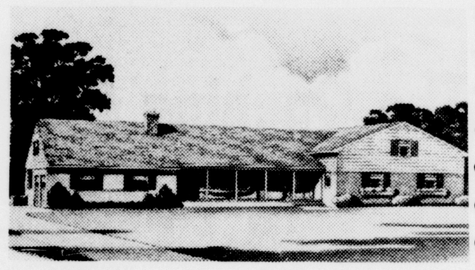

WATER BREAK—Sandy Koufax, working hard to make up for the time he lost during his holdout, pauses for a short break. The lefthander won 26 games for the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers last season.

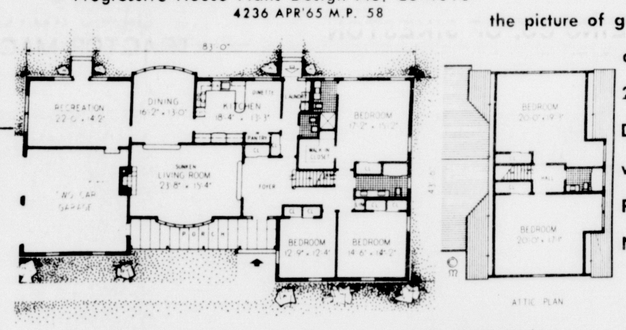

DRAFT DEBATED—The controversy over Viet Nam has caught up with the Selective Service system, headed by Gen. Lewis B. Hershey since World War II. Plans to dip into the pool of previously deferred college students to meet higher draft quotas have met resistance in academic circles and a group of Republican congressmen is proposing an investigation of efficient use of manpower.

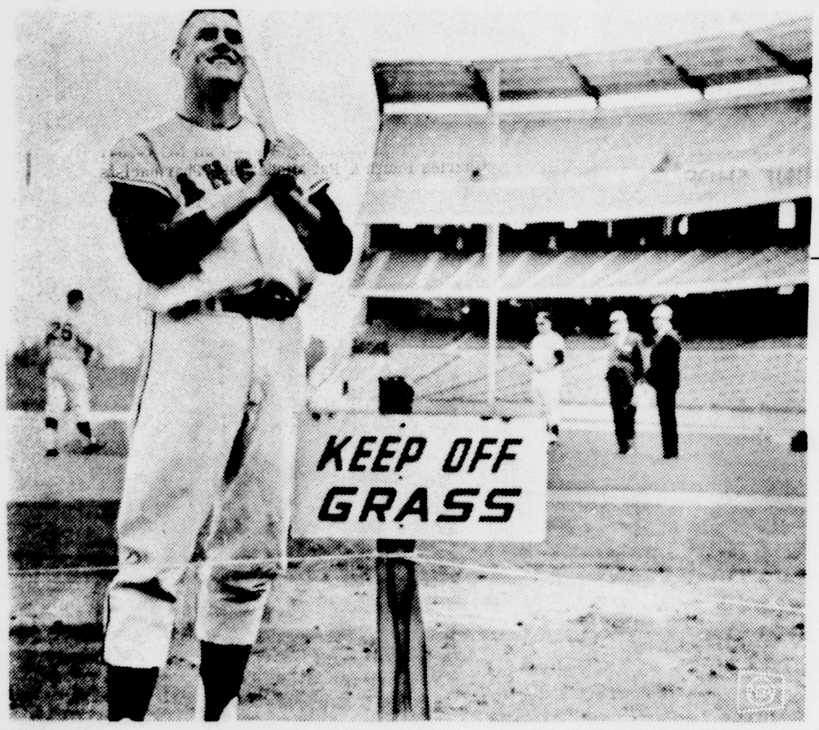

NEW TWIST—It appears that Doug Sanders has a new dance step. Actually, it's just his reaction after sinking another long putt.

Progressive House Plans Design No. CS-4010
4236 APR'65 M.P. 58

DESIGN NO. CS-4010 King-sized home has three bedrooms on the first floor, and two bedrooms and extra bathroom in the attic. There's a family bath, master bath and service lavatory. The living room is dropped two steps from the foyer and dining room. A big kitchen, dining room and spacious recreation room complete the picture of good living. Square footage for the first floor is 2,232. For information on Design No. CS-4010, write to Progressive House Plans, 48 West 48th St., New York, N. Y. 10036.

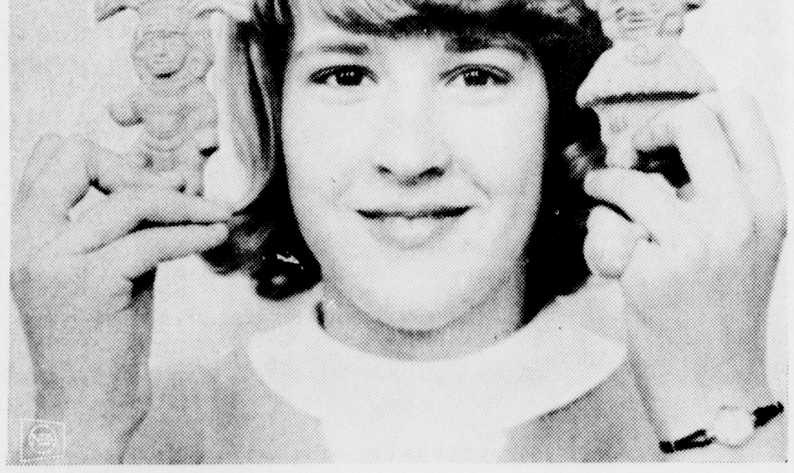

JOLLY RODGER-S—California Angels catcher Bob Rodgers gets a look at the Angels new home in Anaheim. Judging from his smile, the Angels have quite a ballpark.

Make-up Keys Two '66 Outlooks

Fashion '66 offers two outlooks—the kicky, knacky look at left and the romantically elegant look at right. Hand-in-hand with fashion comes matching make-up. For the racy face (top right) select a foundation and powder for an ivory beige complexion. Darkened eyes are foils against the pale complexion. Lipstick is a natural frost. Hairdo is the lopsided style introduced by Vidal Sassoon. For the more romantic look (bottom right) there is the softened, curly hairdo, still an ivory beige for a pale complexion. However, a touch of brush-on rouge may be used for more color, eye make-up is softened and lipstick is a pastel pink.

IDOL INSPIRATION—Bonnie Lange, 14, of Vincennes, Ind., whose own taste in hair styles is conservative, has an idea where the ideas for some of today's fantastic hairdoes may have originated. Inspired perhaps by Aztec idols such as Bonnie displays?

SKY GUARDIANS—U. S. Army supersonic HAWK missiles manned by soldiers of the 6th Missile Battalion, 71st Artillery, are poised to destroy unfriendly aircraft which might venture near their position in the Republic of Vietnam. The surface-to-air weapon system's name is formed with the initial letters of "Homing All the Way Killer"—HAWK. The system is equipped with a homing device and carries a lethal warhead. The Raytheon Company is the prime contractor.

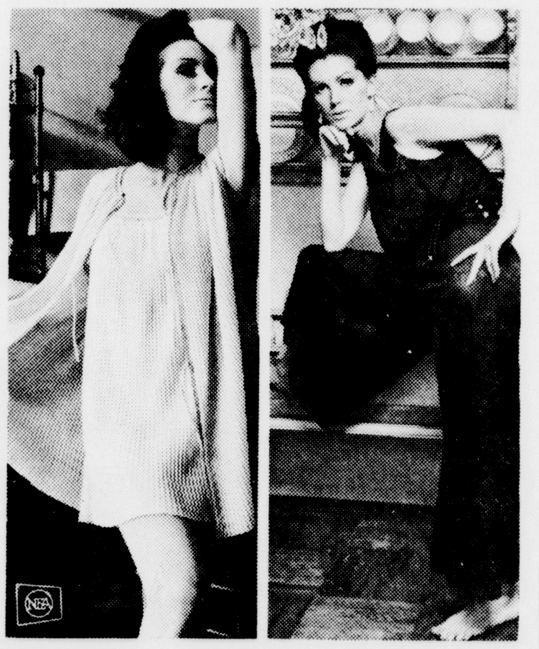

(NEA Telephoto)

CLOSE CALL—Rep. James C. Cleveland holds a letter opener similar to the one with which he was wounded slightly in a run-in with a masked hold-up man in the Capitol Hill office building where the New Hampshire Republican was working late. Police picked up a member of the building cleaning staff for the assault.

A BEAUTY REIGNS: Deborah Bryant, Miss America, 1966, plans to fight disease herself, by becoming a doctor. Meanwhile, she urges everyone, everywhere, "Fight cancer with a checkup and a check."

New Shapes Merit Watching

by Helen Hennessy
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A few years ago designers of lingerie began tiring of baby doll nighties and pajamas, eyed the new sportswear looks and decided these could be adapted to sleepwear. The first new style to replace the pajama was tights under a tunic.

Then came a new yarn (Snka Crepeset), a nylon crepe tricot with all the look, feel and drapability of the long-lost lingerie crepe of the '30s. This enabled designers to do nightgowns with all the classic look of a Grecian gown or an Indian sari.

Women liked the new designs and so this spring we have an explosion of lingerie styles unblushingly inspired by Norell dresses and Courreges shifts and pants.

Pants are so popular you would think they were a new invention. And Ralph Montenero, who has set many a lingerie trend, does them in a bright pink and green print of Crepeset with a flounce of pleats at the ankles.

Eve Stillman offers glamorous harem pants, wide and caught at the ankle with a laced cuff.

It was a Norell dress which designer Blanche frankly credits as inspiration for a short gown bloused over a lowered waistline. With its satin sash and neckline trim, it looks ready to skip to a party.

Even long gowns follow the evening dress trends with halter necklines, bare backs and side slits.

Crepeset has made eye-catching designs possible in lingerie and sleepwear this season. This new crop can leave the bedroom with glamorous ease.

Rain and high winds have kept anglers off most large impoundments, however, those who have braved the elements were rewarded with good catches of bass and crappie. Crappie are moving into the shallows and are being taken on small jigs and by casting minnows. Most of the larger impoundments have not been affected by the rainfall. At Lake of the Ozarks there is some dingy to cloudy water in the upper arms. While the Warsaw area is murky, this water will not reach the main portion of the lake for several days. Clearwater Lake has a five-foot rise and is rated cloudy to dingy. Wappapello with a four-foot rise is murky in the upper reaches and cloudy to dingy in the lower section. All Missouri Ozark streams are flushed and are dingy to muddy.

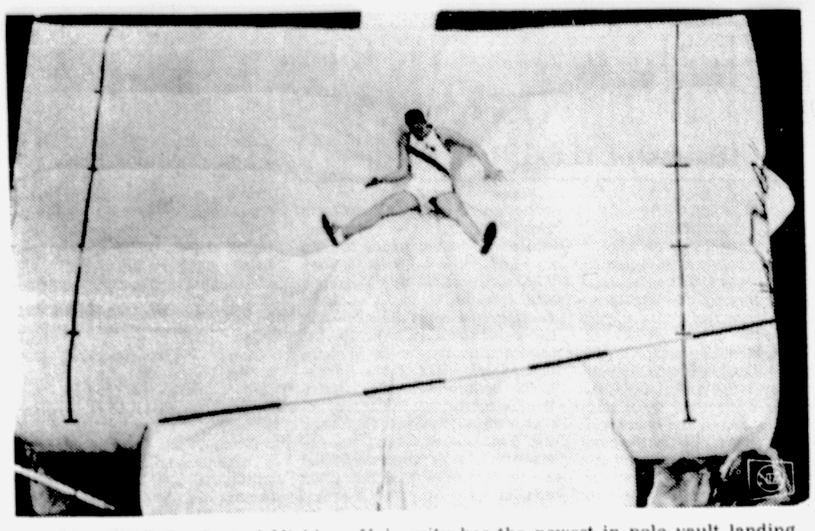

JOLLY RODGER-S—California Angels catcher Bob Rodgers gets a look at the Angels new home in Anaheim. Judging from his smile, the Angels have quite a ballpark.

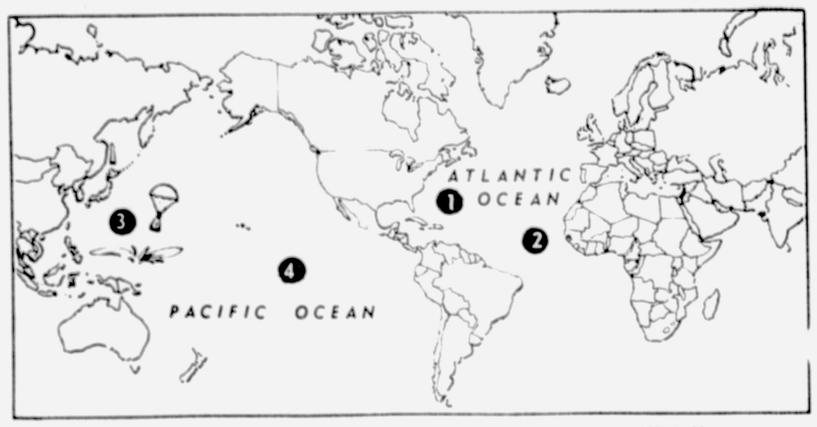

Make-up Keys Two '66 Outlooks

Fashion '66 offers two outlooks—the kicky, knacky look at left and the romantically elegant look at right. Hand-in-hand with fashion comes matching make-up. For the racy face (top right) select a foundation and powder for an ivory beige complexion. Darkened eyes are foils against the pale complexion. Lipstick is a natural frost. Hairdo is the lopsided style introduced by Vidal Sassoon. For the more romantic look (bottom right) there is the softened, curly hairdo, still an ivory beige for a pale complexion. However, a touch of brush-on rouge may be used for more color, eye make-up is softened and lipstick is a pastel pink.

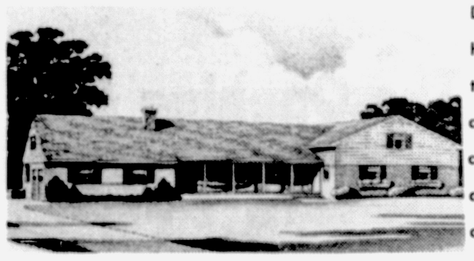

SOFT LANDING—Central Michigan University has the newest in pole vault landing pits. The pit is really an air-filled plastic container nicknamed "Cloud 9." The cushion, when inflated, weighs 150 pounds. It has a valve and fan (top) which allows air to escape when the vaulter lands. It draws in air as the vaulter climbs out of the pit.

UNEXPECTED SUCCESS—In ending ahead of schedule, the Gemini-8 space flight scored an unexpected success. The emergency splashdown tested for the first time the elaborate contingency plans set up for every space flight. They worked flawlessly. Newsmap locates the four areas where ships and planes were deployed in advance to handle capsule recovery. When trouble developed aboard Gemini-8, it was night over the planned area in the western Atlantic (1) so splashdown was quickly shifted to the western Pacific (3) and daylight.

Progressive House Plans Design No. CS-4010
4236 APR'65 M.P. 58

DESIGN NO. CS-4010 King-sized home has three bedrooms on the first floor, and two bedrooms and extra bathroom in the attic. There's a family bath, master bath and service lavatory. The living room is dropped two steps from the foyer and dining room. A big kitchen, dining room and spacious recreation room complete the picture of good living. Square footage for the first floor is 2,232. For information on Design No. CS-4010, write to Progressive House Plans, 48 West 48th St., New York, N. Y. 10036.

IDOL INSPIRATION—Bonnie Lange, 14, of Vincennes, Ind., whose own taste in hair styles is conservative, has an idea where the ideas for some of today's fantastic hairdoes may have originated. Inspired perhaps by Aztec idols such as Bonnie displays?

SKY GUARDIANS—U. S. Army supersonic HAWK missiles manned by soldiers of the 6th Missile Battalion, 71st Artillery, are poised to destroy unfriendly aircraft which might venture near their position in the Republic of Vietnam. The surface-to-air weapon system's name is formed with the initial letters of "Homing All the Way Killer"—HAWK. The system is equipped with a homing device and carries a lethal warhead. The Raytheon Company is the prime contractor.

TENNIS TOPPER—It's no longer "Tennis, anyone?" but tennis any time. Glass fiber inflated domes installed at a Forest Hills, N.Y., club make use of the courts possible all year round for devoted players, such as champion Billy Talbert and partner Gretchen Dahn.

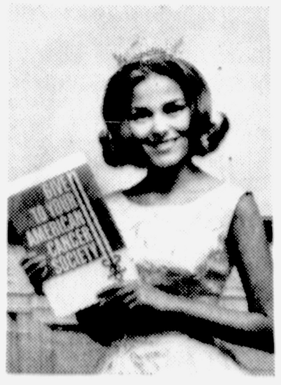

DRAFT DEBATED—The controversy over Viet Nam has caught up with the Selective Service system, headed by Gen. Lewis B. Hershey since World War II. Plans to dip into the pool of previously deferred college students to meet higher draft quotas have met resistance in academic circles and a group of Republican congressmen is proposing an investigation of efficient use of manpower.

CLOSE CALL—Rep. James C. Cleveland holds a letter opener similar to the one with which he was wounded slightly in a run-in with a masked hold-up man in the Capitol Hill office building where the New Hampshire Republican was working late. Police picked up a member of the building cleaning staff for the assault.

A BEAUTY REIGNS: Deborah Bryant, Miss America, 1966, plans to fight disease herself, by becoming a doctor. Meanwhile, she urges everyone, everywhere, "Fight cancer with a checkup and a check."

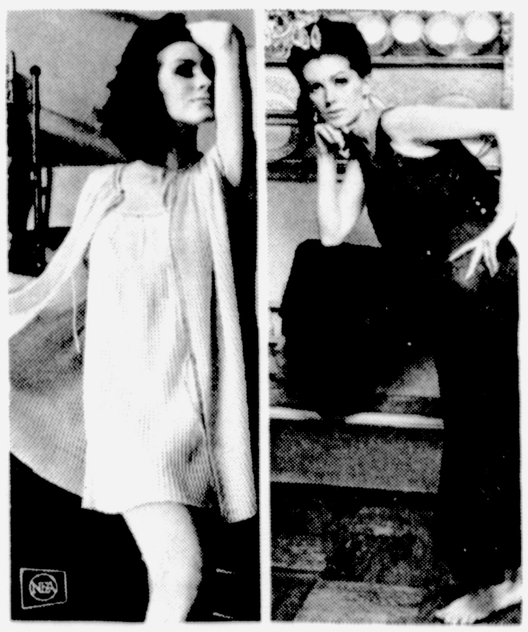

WATER BREAK—Sandy Koufax, working hard to make up for the time he lost during his holdout, pauses for a short break. The lefthander won 26 games for the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers last season.

NEW TWIST—It appears that Doug Sanders has a new dance step. Actually, it's just his reaction after sinking another long putt.

New Shapes Merit Watching

Sleepwear and loungewear take on new shapes for spring. Crepeset nylon with its sheer yet opaque look is used in both these designs. Short, permanent pleated gown (left) by Eve Stillman has its own matching peignoir. Wide-legged pants style by Blanche Lingerie (right) has a blouson top with a satin sash at the hemline. These fashions can be sudsed and will drip dry.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A few years ago designers of lingerie began tiring of baby doll nighties and pajamas, eyed the new sportswear looks and decided these could be adapted to sleepwear. The first new style to replace the pajama was tights under a tunic.

Then came a new yarn (Snka Crepeset), a nylon crepe tricot with all the look, feel and drapability of the long-lost lingerie crepe of the '30s. This enabled designers to do nightgowns with all the classic look of a Grecian gown or an Indian sari.

Women liked the new designs and so this spring we have an explosion of lingerie styles unblushingly inspired by Norell dresses and Courreges shifts and pants.

Pants are so popular you would think they were a new invention. And Ralph Montenero, who has set many a lingerie trend, does them in a bright pink and green print of Crepeset with a flounce of pleats at the ankles.

Eve Stillman offers glamorous harem pants, wide and caught at the ankle with a laced cuff.

It was a Norell dress which designer Blanche frankly credits as inspiration for a short gown bloused over a lowered waistline. With its satin sash and neckline trim, it looks ready to skip to a party.

Even long gowns follow the evening dress trends with halter necklines, bare backs and side slits.

Crepeset has made eye-catching designs possible in lingerie and sleepwear this season. This new crop can leave the bedroom with glamorous ease.

Rutland Will Address Men

PORTAGEVILLE -- Eugene D. Rutland, tri-state editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, spoke at the quarterly meeting of the United Churchmen's Club at the First Baptist Church Thursday night at 7 p.m.

Rutland, a noted speaker, has been in the newspaper business 43 years. During his newspaper career he has handled about every kind of assignment.

His major assignments as a reporter were a bond scandal which resulted in the disbarment of several attorneys; the starting of a campaign that brought a slum clearance program to Memphis; the waste at the Japanese Relocation Center in Arkansas during World War II; and the handling of the desegregation story since 1954.

Outside of his newspaper career which includes being president of Tennessee Press Association, Rutland has found time to take an active part in church and school endeavors.

He served on the publicity committee of the first national meeting of the Brotherhood of the Southern Baptist Convention and lectures frequently at Union University, University of Mississippi, Mississippi State College for Women and Memphis State University.

He has been a Sunday School teacher nearly 20 years and a leader in training union work for about 10 years. He was director of public relations and editor of the church paper at Bellevue Baptist church many years.

He was a leader and one of the founders of the Second Baptist Church and is now a teacher in the young married peoples department and leader of an adult training union. He is public relations director of the church and secretary of the finance committee.

Proffer Files For Reelection

JACKSON -- Marvin E. Proffer has filed for re-election as state representative.

Proffer, a Democrat, will seek his third term, but this time from Missouri district 156 rather than from Cape County.

The district includes all of Cape County except Cape Girardeau and also includes Kelso township of Scott County. Included in that township are Chaffee, Scott City, Ilmo and Kelso.

Auto License Office Opens at Malden

MALDEN -- Malden's new motor vehicle license office opened Monday in the city hall under the supervision of Roscoe Thornton.

The office is a branch of the Kennett auto license office which is supervised by Roy Thomas David, Director of the State Department of Revenue, at a luncheon held in Malden.

Automobile owners in Malden and the tri-company area may now purchase licenses without having to drive 25 to 30 miles.

Thornton said that office hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Persons applying for a license must bring their personal tax receipt.

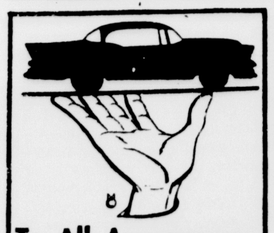

Airmen Finish Their Training

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Airmen who have completed training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and have been sent to bases for further training are: Ronald W. Underwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Underwood, Dexter, to Fort Lee AFB, Va; Larry G. Trammell, son of Mrs. Ruby A. Holmes, Dexter, Chanute AFB, Ill.; Carl L. Holyfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Holyfield, Bell City, to Fort Lee, Va.; Kenneth M. Laster, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Laster, Wolf Lake, Ill., Daniel L. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis L. Moore, Illmo, and Joe B. Bertling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bertling, Jackson, all to Lowry AFB, Colo.

#26 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

Our membership is small, however we enjoy a fellowship of real Christian worship as did Christ and his followers in his day. Won't you come worship with us? We have an active men's club that meets the second Friday in each month. We welcome you to come and fellowship this hour with us as we plan our part of the church program.

We have an active Womens Society of Christian Service that meets on the first and third Wednesdays, usually meeting in a member's home. They invite visitors. We have a fine church school with teachers for all ages using the best literature that we can find. If you are not in church or Sunday School we invite you to come and worship with us. And on the last Friday of each month at 6:30 p.m. we have a fellowship supper, we invite you to come and fellowship with us.

Rev. Harold Norton & Family

Harold O. Norton was born in Coal City, Illinois on July 8, 1936, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Norton. He was reared in public schools of Lockport, Ill. He is a graduate of Lockport Grade School and Lockport Township High School. After his father's death in 1952, he and his mother continued the family business: radio, television, and public address sales and service.

He is a graduate of Coyne Electronics School of Chicago, Ill. He earned his "local Preacher's License" through correspondence work, issued by Rock River Conference of The Methodist Church.

Rev. Norton came to Missouri in June of 1962 to serve his first student-appointment in Mississippi County: Dogwood and Bridges Methodist Churches.

He moved to Bell City, Missouri, in June of 1964 to become the minister of the Methodist Church. Since September of 1965, he has also ministered to the Blodgett Methodist Church, preaching to both congregations each Sunday morning.

He has been attending Southeast Missouri State College for the past four years and is a candidate for the B.S. Degree in Secondary Education in the Spring Class of 1966. (At the present time, he is doing practice teaching in the Bell City School system.)

Glenda Joe Norton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hurley of Route 3, Sikeston, attended Sikeston public schools and graduated from Sikeston High School. She attended Asbury College of Wilmore, Ky., and Southeast Missouri State College.

Julie Elizabeth Norton, their only child, is 15 months of age.

Rutland Will Address Men

PORTAGEVILLE -- Eugene D. Rutland, tri-state editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, spoke at the quarterly meeting of the United Churchmen's Club at the First Baptist Church Thursday night at 7 p.m.

Rutland, a noted speaker, has been in the newspaper business 43 years. During his newspaper career he has handled about every kind of assignment.

His major assignments as a reporter were a bond scandal which resulted in the disbarment of several attorneys; the starting of a campaign that brought a slum clearance program to Memphis; the waste at the Japanese Relocation Center in Arkansas during World War II; and the handling of the desegregation story since 1954.

Outside of his newspaper career which includes being president of Tennessee Press Association, Rutland has found time to take an active part in church and school endeavors.

He served on the publicity committee of the first national meeting of the Brotherhood of the Southern Baptist Convention and lectures frequently at Union University, University of Mississippi, Mississippi State College for Women and Memphis State University.

He has been a Sunday School teacher nearly 20 years and a leader in training union work for about 10 years. He was director of public relations and editor of the church paper at Bellevue Baptist church many years.

He was a leader and one of the founders of the Second Baptist Church and is now a teacher in the young married peoples department and leader of an adult training union. He is public relations director of the church and secretary of the finance committee.

Proffer Files For Reelection

JACKSON -- Marvin E. Proffer has filed for re-election as state representative.

Proffer, a Democrat, will seek his third term, but this time from Missouri district 156 rather than from Cape County.

The district includes all of Cape County except Cape Girardeau and also includes Kelso township of Scott County. Included in that township are Chaffee, Scott City, Illmo and Kelso.

Auto License Office Opens at Malden

MALDEN -- Malden's new motor vehicle license office opened Monday in the city hall under the supervision of Roscoe Thornton.

The office is a branch of the Kennett auto license office which is supervised by Roy Thomas David, Director of the State Department of Revenue, at a luncheon held in Malden.

Automobile owners in Malden and the tri-company area may now purchase licenses without having to drive 25 to 30 miles.

Thornton said that office hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Persons applying for a license must bring their personal tax receipt.

Airmen Finish Their Training

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Airmen who have completed training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and have been sent to bases for further training are: Ronald W. Underwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Underwood, Dexter, to Fort Lee AFB, Va; Larry G. Trammell, son of Mrs. Ruby A. Holmes, Dexter, Chanute AFB, Ill.; Carl L. Holyfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Holyfield, Bell City, to Fort Lee, Va.; Kenneth M. Laster, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Laster, Wolf Lake, Ill., Daniel L. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis L. Moore, Illmo, and Joe B. Bertling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bertling, Jackson, all to Lowry AFB, Colo.

#26 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

Our membership is small, however we enjoy a fellowship of real Christian worship as did Christ and his followers in his day. Won't you come worship with us? We have an active men's club that meets the second Friday in each month. We welcome you to come and fellowship this hour with us as we plan our part of the church program.

We have an active Womens Society of Christian Service that meets on the first and third Wednesdays, usually meeting in a member's home. They invite visitors. We have a fine church school with teachers for all ages using the best literature that we can find. If you are not in church or Sunday School we invite you to come and worship with us. And on the last Friday of each month at 6:30 p.m. we have a fellowship supper, we invite you to come and fellowship with us.

Rev. Harold Norton & Family

Harold O. Norton was born in Coal City, Illinois on July 8, 1936, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Norton. He was reared in public schools of Lockport, Ill. He is a graduate of Lockport Grade School and Lockport Township High School. After his father's death in 1952, he and his mother continued the family business; radio, television, and public address sales and service.

He is a graduate of Coyne Electronics School of Chicago, Ill. He earned his "local Preacher's License" through correspondence work, issued by Rock River Conference of The Methodist Church.

Rev. Norton came to Missouri in June of 1962 to serve his first student-appointment in Mississippi County; Dogwood and Bridges Methodist Churches.

He moved to Bell City, Missouri, in June of 1964 to become the minister of the Methodist Church. Since September of 1965, he has also ministered to the Blodgett Methodist Church, preaching to both congregations each Sunday morning.

He has been attending Southeast Missouri State College for the past four years and is a candidate for the B.S. Degree in Secondary Education in the Spring Class of 1966. (At the present time, he is doing practice teaching in the Bell City School system.)

Glenda Joe Norton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hurley of Route 3, Sikeston, attended Sikeston public schools and graduated from Sikeston High School. She attended Asbury College of Wilmore, Ky., and Southeast Missouri State College.

Julie Elizabeth Norton, their only child, is 15 months of age.

BULLDOG BARKER

Word To The Wise

Sikeston Citizens Begin 'Fast Time'

SIKESTON CITIZENS will awaken an hour earlier than usual Sunday, April 24. This date marks the beginning of another "daylight savings time summer."

Elections held on April 5, decided that Sikeston would again go on fast time.

William Willet originated the movement in England in 1907 when he published a booklet entitled "The Waste of Daylight." Last year was the first time Sikeston has been on daylight savings time since World War II.

Contrary to some legends, no one throws grapefruit to begin daylight savings time. It simply involves getting up an hour earlier, going to work an hour earlier, completing work an hour earlier, and enjoying an extra hour of daylight at the end of each day.

Large industries enjoy daylight savings time because it avoids the use of so much electricity.

Countries in Asia, Africa, Australia, and Europe make use of daylight savings time, and they have for centuries as have countries in North America.

When the method first began, events simply started one hour earlier -- there were no alterations of the clocks. This method, however, proved inefficient, and it wasn't very widespread.

Many large communities do not have daylight savings time because of problems with meteorological instruments, and other synchronized devices.

Sikeston and the surrounding communities have no such devices, nor do they have any serious problems created by the time change. Most citizens signified in the election that they favored daylight savings time as it was last year; therefore Sikeston citizens will be "living fast" again this year.

SHS Spring Sport Outlook Is Bright

SIKESTON HIGH'S baseball squad has come into the season like a lion with two undefeated bouts.

Behind the able leadership of Coach Hal Lane and Kenny Davis, the Bulldogs have a balanced combination of hitting, pitching, strength on the bench, and fielding.

Hitting strength of the Bulldogs is evident upon a look at the record book. Sikeston has outhit its opponents in the first two games and has the ability to move runners on base toward home with little wasted runners.

The pitching squad also seems to be one of the strong points. Dan Kern and Gary Stallings have proved to be tough men to hit. Other promising pitchers will have a chance to prove themselves later in the season.

Bulldogs have a tough defense to score against, holding Oran to no runs (5-0) and Jackson to four (7-4).

Sikeston's golf team seems to be improving, defeating Kennett Tuesday at the local golf course. Charles Atchison, Charles Stamp, Ned Matthews, and David Whiteaker are the strong boys on the team. Coach Gene Dawson is doing an excellent job of teaching these boys.

The tennis team seems to be in a slump but could pull out at any time. Terry Burke and Dean Childers are the senior tennis players. Hank Lippert, Billy Dickerson, Wythe Miller, and Brad Crumpecker show potential.

Annual District FBLA Convention Held Tuesday

Southeast Missouri District Convention of the Future Business Leaders of America was held Tuesday evening at Sikeston high school. Meeting was sponsored by FBLA Chapter 3691 of Sikeston.

FBLA members from Jackson, Bernie, Caruthersville, Fisk, and Sikeston attended the convention. Guest speaker for the evening was Pat Lea, vice-president of the Bank of Sikeston.

Student-made exhibits and displays representing products and services of approximately 30 Sikeston businesses decorated the school.

Competition for the titles of Miss FBLA, Mr. FBLA, best parliamentary procedure group, best Public speaker, and best speller was held at 7 p.m. in C building.

Ken Paylor, Sikeston, became Mr. FBLA and Elaine Dockins, Sikeston, became Miss FBLA. Janet Butrum, Phil Tidwell, and Eureda Powers, all of Sikeston, took first, second, and third places, respectively, in the spelling contest.

Elaine Dockins took second place in the public speaking competition and the Sikeston group tied for first in the parliamentary procedure division.

Mike Andrews, Steve Stewart, Wilda Runnels, Becky Ziegenhorn, and Phonda Snow composed the Sikeston Parliamentary procedure group.

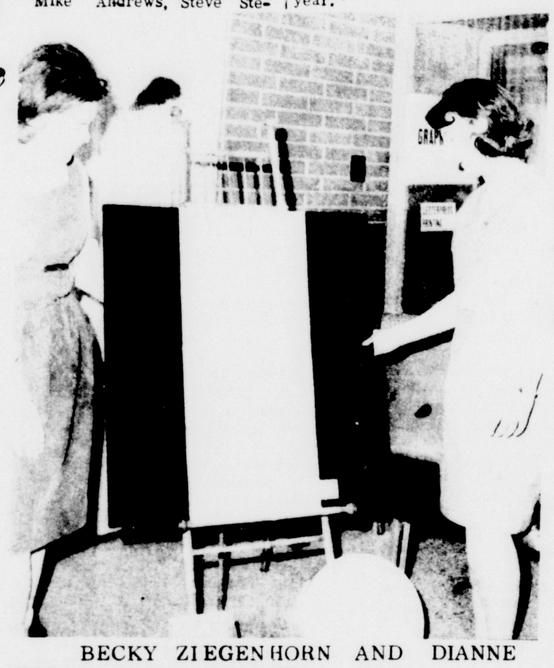

All first place winners at the district convention will go to the state convention at Jefferson City, April 30. Winners there will attend the national meeting at New Orleans in June.

Following the competition, FBLA members went on tours of Anchor Toy, First National Bank, and Hart's Bakery.

This year's officers are Terry Burke, president; Gary Stallings, vice president; Jan Yates, secretary; Jim Clary, treasurer; and Elaine Dockins, reporter.

Officers for 1966-67 are Mike Andrews, president; Steve Stewart, vice-president; Wilda Runnels, secretary; Becky Ziegenhorn, treasurer; and Phonda Snow, reporter.

Mrs. Rovena Hillsman, Sikeston FBLA sponsor, said, "We feel that the convention was very successful and we hope that we can have it here again next year."

SHS Notes Library Week; Book Exhibit Closes Today

National Library Week was observed in Sikeston high school April 18-22.

An exhibit of new library books for teen-agers including many current best-sellers was open at the Sikeston high school during this time.

Open daily from 7:45 to 4:30 and evenings from seven o'clock to nine o'clock, the exhibit showed 469 books representing 68 leading publishers.

Fiction for young adults included such themes as Personal Development and Young Romances, along with a complement of titles in the realm of Mystery, Adventure, and Suspense.

Books were graded for junior and senior high school. Curriculum - related catalogues, fully annotated and completely indexed by subject, author, and title were free to teachers and students.

Students Choose President, Vice In May Election

Student body elections will be held May 5, and the president and vice-president of Student Council will be selected.

Candidates for the offices as they will appear on the party ticket are Kenny Hilterbrand and Steve Woods; Brian Underwood and David Boyer; and Danny Lopp and Fred Matthews. They are presidential and vice -presidential candidates respectively.

All those vying for the offices had to pass a written test based on the SHS Student Council constitution. Also, each candidate had to have a petition with 50 student signatures for recommendation.

Candidates may begin posting campaign material May 2, and an assembly on the day of the election is set aside for campaign speeches and skits. It is hoped that the assembly can be held outside so that all students may see it.

Because of the difference in the constitutional rules, both main officers of the council are elected at the same time. In previous years, the vice-president has been elected from the next year's council group.

Student body president Ron Spears wants every student to know the specific rules of the election. When choosing their candidates, the students may split the party ticket. This means that they may vote on any one presidential and vice-presidential candidate.

The two final choices do not necessarily have to be running-mates.

Drama Club Presentation Tonight

SOPHOMORE Red Peppers scream with excitement as senior cheerleader Kathy Hahs gives her position to Cyndi Waters at the annual banquet.

'Dirty Work At Crossroads' Enacted By SHS Students

"Dirty Work at the Crossroads" or "Tempted, Tried, and True" will be presented tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the middle school auditorium. This play by Bill Johnson is the final SHS Drama Club production of the school year.

This old - fashioned melodrama deals with the pure, sweet young thing, her handsome, young hero, and the Oil-Can Harry-type villian.

Melodrama is a comedy that is played seriously and this makes it even more hilarious. Action of the play is set in Connecticut during the Gay Nineties at the Widow Lovelace's farm.

Brian Curtis from Cape Girardeau will provide the piano score especially written and arranged for the play. Between the three acts of melodrama, senior Sue Foster will sing for the audience.

Cast of the play are Jeannie Winters as Nellie - as true as she is tender; Robin Chamber as Adam Oakhart - as brave as he is bashful; Elaine Dockins as the Widow Lovelace - as sweet as she is simple; David Whiteaker as Munro Murgatroyd - as wild as he is wicked.

Kathy Hahs as Ida Rhinegold- as deep as she is dyed; Terry Burke as Mookie Magugins - as rude as he is rustic; Mrs. Upson Asterbilt played by Judy Murchison - of Newport and Brooklyn; Teresa Hamelmann as Leonie - her daughter, a Madison Avenue belle.

Sheila Elledge as Fleurette- their French maid. Ooolala!? and Beth Mayfield as Little Nell - who never had a father.

Miss Williams, drama instructor, would like to thank numerous students and art teacher, Miss Emily Brennecke.

Students are Danny Cannon, David Boyer, Bob Urban, Mike Fodge, Phonda Snow, Mike Payne, Mike Hixon, David Whiteaker and the art and drama classes. These people helped direct the play, construct the scenery, and design and make costumes.

Miss Williams said, "Producing and directing a play is great fun but a lot of work."

SHS students will be admitted free of charge upon presentation of their identification cards.

DE-COE Hosts Annual Banquet For Employers

Lester B. Kesterson, state director of Cooperative Industrial and Distributive Education, was guest speaker last evening at the annual banquet of the distributive education and cooperative occupational educational students of Sikeston high school.

He used as his topic for discussion "Degrees of Education." Mr. Kesterson has been associated with the educational field since 1937.

He has been distributive education coordinator for 14 years and served as professor of education at the Southwest Missouri State College in Springfield.

Mr. Kesterson has been a visiting professor at the University of Missouri for the past eight summers and has been in the state department of education at Jefferson City for eight years.

Banquet was given by the DE and COE students for their employers and employers' wives for their appreciation for selecting them to work at their business establishment while enrolled in high as a DE or a COE student.

Each employer was presented a certificate of appreciation.

Highlight of the evening included the disclosure of the cooperative occupational educational student of the year and the distributive education student for the year. These students will be recognied in the Barker next week.

Approximately 90 persons attended the banquet at the Holiday Inn.

Earl Henderson directs the COE group, and Norman Woods is the leader of the DE students.

Toni Zaricor Is Cayenne; Peppers Sponsor Banquet

Junior Toni Zaricor was named cayenne for 1966-67 at the annual Red Pepper banquet Saturday evening.

Mary Dodd Reid gained the title of vice-cayenne and Barbara Blacker received the position of secretary.

Peg Rafferty became treasurer, and Shearry Frankum was named demerit chairman.

Teresa Hamelmann was given the megaphone signifying her office as head cheerleader. Other cheerleaders for '67 will be Vicki Schindler, Kathy Arnold, Katie Stallings, Vicki Welch, Cyndi Waters, Diane Alsup, and Sharon Hornback.

Charles D. Matthews IV, secretary of the board of education, was the after-dinner speaker. He presented a talk concerning the value of Red Peppers to the Sikeston school system. Mr. Matthews said that organizations such as the Red Peppers help prepare young people for the future.

Theme for the banquet was "Forget Me Not." Officers for '66 used daisies as the basis of their decorations. Each senior pepper with no demerits received a bunch of daisies to distinguish her.

Following the banquet in the senior high cafetorium, the dance began in the middle school's auditorium.

Senior girls decorated for the dance using "The Scene" as their theme.

Couples entered the gym through a tunnel to see a ceiling of paper mobiles and a wall of bamboo.

Abstract paintings and black cats composed the wall murals. Centerpiece for the event was a large a-go-go cage with a mannequin enclosed.

New and old officers, as well as senior Red Peppers were escorted and introduced during the traditional grand march which began at 9:30.

Paducah Dukes of Murray State College provided music for the event.

Guess Who?

"Guess who column" this week features a senior girl.

When she isn't experimenting with new menus in the kitchen, she may be found driving her pride and joy - a little red Volkswagon.

Miss _____ has lived in Sikeston all of her life (17 years), but she plans to work in St. Louis after graduation.

She is a member of marching band, concert band, Red Peppers, and she was a candidate for Miss Sikeston last fall.

Emotion Changes Students

by Dianne Caskey

As seniors approach the final 20 school days, sudden changes occur.

For instance, Red Pepper officers break out in tears at the mention of graduation; Independent Research students panic at the thought of the final research paper.

College-bound seniors shudder at the thought of preparing for their first year of higher education; teachers cringe at the realization of the nearness of tallying final grades.

Other than those few examples of wariness for the end of school to arrive, the majority of school inhabitants are exalting over the approaching school termination.

Possibilities of summer jobs occupy the attentions of many pupils making school work unattainable.

Seniors anxiously await their graduation and senior party. Car - washing and earning money for the party take up the time of many upper-classmen.

Juniors and sophomores look forward to being higher up on the school totem-pole. Student council elections command the attention of Sikeston high school students presently.

Last few weeks of school will be busy ones for each class. They will be weeks of work and mixed emotions.

Sam Harbin Gives Talk To Chapter

Sam Harbin, vice-president of the Bank of Sikeston, presented the program for the National Honor Society Monday. His talk concerned one of the seven paths to peace -- the path of progress.

Mr. Harbin called the era in which we live, "the age of great expectations." Also, Mr. Harbin talked of the peasants of the world saying one-half of the population earns less than $100 annually.

At the next scheduled meeting of the Honor Society, new officers will be elected from the junior class. Retiring officers are Phil Barkett, president; Rob Collins, vice-president; Mary Leible, secretary; and Gary Williams, treasurer.

Newly inducted members were informed that they may purchase club pins or charms.

Active Participants Learn Governmental Mechanics

Seven junior boys have been selected to attend Missouri Boys State at Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg during June. Boys are Brian Underwood, James Trimble, Dave Shy, Fred Matthews, Sammy Hopper, Jim Hux, and Sidney Stauffer.

Boys State is a program designed to teach boys about government sponsored by the American Legion. Manner in which this is taught is learning by doing.

When boys arrive, they are grouped into cities, countries, and political parties. First day's activities are spent in organizing the "state" on precinct, ward, city, and county levels.

Offices are the same as they would be in actuality; boys elect their fellow citizens to fill the offices of the "state." Political parties, Nationalists and Federalists, are also organized much the same as they ordinarily are.

At the same time boys staters are attending four different schools of interest in preparation for their offices. These are law, police, legislative, and government executive schools.

After the local offices are filled, elections are held between Nationalist and Federalist candidates for state offices. Supreme court justices state legislators and executive positions are filled in this manner.

When these offices are filled, the various agencies function as they would in regular state government.

Supreme court and lesser courts hear cases, legislative passes laws, and executive branch enforces the acts with the aid of the highway patrol

Sikeston Area Music Students Hear Orchestra

St. Louis Symphony orchestra entertained music students from Sikeston schools and surrounding schools Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the Sikeston Armory.

Works by Beethoven, Rimsky-Korsakov, and others were performed by the musicians. St. Louis Symphony orchestra was conducted by the associate director, Edward Murphy.

Conductor Murphy explained parts of each selection for which the audience would listen, and pointed out various solos by violinists, flutists, cellists, the harpist, and brass members.

Aside from the fact that all the music presented was of a classical nature, the audience of students enjoyed the concert and showed their appreciation by giving several loud ovations.

Word To The Wise

Sikeston Citizens Begin 'Fast Time'

SIKESTON CITIZENS will awaken an hour earlier than usual Sunday, April 24. This date marks the beginning of another "daylight savings time summer."

Elections held on April 5, decided that Sikeston would again go on fast time.

William Willet originated the movement in England in 1907 when he published a booklet entitled "The Waste of Daylight." Last year was the first time Sikeston has been on daylight savings time since World War II.

Contrary to some legends, no one throws grapefruit to begin daylight savings time. It simply involves getting up an hour earlier, going to work an hour earlier, completing work an hour earlier, and enjoying an extra hour of daylight at the end of each day.

Large industries enjoy daylight savings time because it avoids the use of so much electricity.

Countries in Asia, Africa, Australia, and Europe make use of daylight savings time, and they have for centuries as have countries in North America.

When the method first began, events simply started one hour earlier -- there were no alterations of the clocks. This method, however, proved inefficient, and it wasn't very widespread.

Many large communities do not have daylight savings time because of problems with meteorological instruments, and other synchronized devices.

Sikeston and the surrounding communities have no such devices, nor do they have any serious problems created by the time change. Most citizens signified in the election that they favored daylight savings time as it was last year; therefore Sikeston citizens will be "living fast" again this year.

SHS Spring Sport Outlook Is Bright

SIKESTON HIGH'S baseball squad has come into the season like a lion with two undefeated bouts.

Behind the able leadership of Coach Hal Lane and Kenny Davis, the Bulldogs have a balanced combination of hitting, pitching, strength on the bench, and fielding.

Hitting strength of the Bulldogs is evident upon a look at the record book. Sikeston has outhit its opponents in the first two games and has the ability to move runners on base toward home with little wasted runners.

The pitching squad also seems to be one of the strong points. Dan Kern and Gary Stallings have proved to be tough men to hit. Other promising pitchers will have a chance to prove themselves later in the season.

Bulldogs have a tough defense to score against, holding Oran to no runs (5-0) and Jackson to four (7-4).

Sikeston's golf team seems to be improving, defeating Kennett Tuesday at the local golf course. Charles Atchison, Charles Stamp, Ned Matthews, and David Whiteaker are the strong boys on the team. Coach Gene Dawson is doing an excellent job of teaching these boys.

The tennis team seems to be in a slump but could pull out at any time. Terry Burke and Dean Childers are the senior tennis players. Hank Lippert, Billy Dickerson, Wythe Miller, and Brad Crumpecker show potential.

The outlook for spring sports in Sikeston looks favorable. The one sport omitted from this editorial --track -- will be featured in a later edition.

Local Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Cohn are now visiting at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil D. Williams, of 722 E. Kathleen. They will be here until the 2nd of May, when they leave for Newport, Rhode Island. Mrs. Cohn is the former Miss Frances Williams of Sikeston. Mr. Cohn is CS. 1 in the Navy and has been stationed at Guam in the Mariannes for the last three years. The Cohns also plan to make a visit to another sister, Mrs. Everett Stickney of New Hampshire.

Spending a month with her daughter in Creston, Illinois, is Mrs. Lem Council of this city. Mrs. Council is helping out with the new baby daughter that is such a recent addition to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brannon. Mrs. Council expects to be home sometime around the first of May.

Mr. Harry Powers was a visitor at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Powers of Tanner, Mo., last Tuesday.

Here this last week to visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Corlies of R.F.D. 3, were Mr. and Mrs. Coy Corlies of Tucson, Arizona. They spent much of the time visiting with old friends and old places and renewing pleasant memories.

Mr. Wilbern Martin of Richmond, California, died last Saturday and will be buried some time today. He is the brother of Mrs. Nola Cantrell of Blodgett, and is survived by his wife Nellie, and five daughters.

Home this last Tuesday from a rather disappointing fishing trip came Robert Graff, R. W. Choate, Johnnie Watkins, "Banker Watkins, of Sikeston, John Benjamin of Cairo, and Russ Melton of St. Louis. They spent four days staying at Narrow's Inn at Greer's Ferry, and although they didn't bring home many fish, like all good fishermen, they brought home a "fish story" about that five pound bass.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Branum who reside at 410 E. Gladys, spent the week in Leonard, Texas, as guests of the Reverend and Mrs. James Denton and their son Greg. They also visited with a sister, Mrs. Lizzie Faries of Dallas, Texas.

Mr. Charlie Cooper of Crowder, was taken to the Veterans Hospital in Poplar Bluff, early Sunday morning. His condition is much improved, although he will be there awhile yet. Some of his visitors have been Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Cooper of Sikeston, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cooper of Cape Girardeau, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cooper and their three children from Bertrand.

Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Lewis H. Conley and Major and Mrs. Hal Robertson, both of Sikeston, left today for a weekend trip to Jefferson City, to attend the Missouri State National Guard Convention. They will be guests this evening at a Gay Nineties Mixer which is in costume. Saturday, there is luncheon for the ladies, and then tea with the Governor at his mansion, and that evening a dinner and formal dance. Both families will return Sunday, after what seems to be a perfectly delightful weekend away.

Youth Sunday Planned

Youth of the First Assembly of God Church, 310 South Kingshighway, known as the Christ Ambassadors, will join over 100,000 young people of Assemblies of God churches throughout the United States in observing National Youth Day Sunday.

A special sunday morning service will feature members of the local youth organization, directed by President Mrs. Bob Ballard.

During the public service, scheduled for 10:45 a.m., young people of the church will be speaking. The theme for this service is a simple one, "Christ's." It places emphasis on the recognition of the Assemblies of God Youth as a possession of God. Bob Ballard, Jean Frala, and Vernalee Wofford will be speaking on this theme. Other young people will serve as ushers and provide special music. There will also be a choir composed of the youth of the church.

A banquet is being served to the C. A.'s on Saturday night, in the fellowship hall, in recognition of the service that the young people contributes to the church. Mrs. Larry Davis is the chairman of this banquet.

Officers of the Christ Ambassadors organization, in addition to President Mrs. Bob Ballard, are Max Teague, vice president; Frances Catlett, secretary; and Jeanetta McDonough, treasurer.

The Rev. T. A. McDonough is the pastor of the church. Mrs. McDonough serves as counselor of the youth group.

Belsheim Speaks at Banquet

MATTHEWS -- The Rev. Harold Belsheim, of Concordia Lutheran Church of Sikeston, gave honor students of Matthews R-V school and their parents a preview of things to dome by the year 2000 when he addressed them Monday evening following the annual dinner given by the Parent-Teachers Association. Noting the many changes predicted by scientists for the future, many of which seem fantastic at the moment, the Rev. Belsheim reccommended the Ten Commandments as a dependable guide to follow in our daily living in the space age.

Student Council president, Linda Buchanan, served as toastmaster at the ham dinner served in the cafeteria preceding the program. The invocation was given by Linda Tollison Collier. Following the address presentation of honor certificates and scholarship letters were made by High School Principal Benton B. Conrad. Roll call of honor students was made by the first named students in each class.

Grade Eight -- Sonja Harwood, Twyla Leach, Debra Porter, James Lindley, Roger Graham, Kenneth Burch, Gary DeWitt, Paula Tollison, Augusta Speed, Virgie Walton, Jerry Jackson, Josephine Johnson, Clarence Brooks, Lynn McCaster, Carl Bishop.

Grade Nine -- Linda Bird, Ronnie Atwell, Sandra Greene, Terry Lape, Sondra Warren, Dennis Clark, Diane Graham, Jerry McCoy.

Grade Ten -- Eugene Gruen, Reece Reeder, Michael Geske, Connie Griffin, Paul Lomax, Pat McMillen, James Myers, Cynthia Slusher, June Pruett, Jo Ann Hartlein.

Grade 11: Joel Buchanan, Charles Conrad, Sidney Fraley, Sue DeWitt, Peggy Lathum.

Grade 12: Diane Bratton, Linda Spencer, Randy Porter, Linda Tollison, Linda Buchanan, Jeanie Geske, Mamie Flowers, Alan Hartlein, Douglas Moore, Sandra Porter, Emma Smith, Bobby Rodgers, Barbara Roach, Patsy Ritchie, Leslie Jackson, Brenda Jenkins, Cheryl Lowery, Doris McClain, Glennie Hoggatt.

Mud holes under outdoor faucets can be prevented. Remove some soil under the spout, then fill the area with gravel. This is a big help where small children play in the yard and turn on the water often to get drinks.

Portageville On Fast Time

PORTAGEVILLE -- It means all residents of Portageville should set their clocks up one hour when they retire Saturday night.

An ordinance was adopted by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen last year to go on Daylight Saving Time, for the period of April 25, 1965 at 2:00 a.m., and ending Oct. 31, 1965. This portion of the ordinance appeared in section one.

Section two of that ordinance in part stated: "That Daylight Saving Time is hereby adopted as the official time for the City of Portageville, Mo., for the similar time in 1966 and each year thereafter, said specific beginning times of each year and ending times of each year to correspond with the times set by the City of St. Louis, Mo., so that Daylight Saving Time in Portageville shall correspond exactly with Daylight Saving Time enacted for the City of St. Louis, Mo."

MOREHOUSE -- Since Morehouse has adopted daylight saving time, the schools will go on it Monday. Schools will open at 8 a.m. DST and close at 2:45 p.m.

Five of our elementary teachers will attend a workshop for teachers in this area on Friday of this week. The workshop will have to do with study of Initial Teaching Alphabet.

The members of the senior class of Morehouse High are working on a variety show to be held in the auditorium on Thursday, April 28, 1966. The purpose of the show is to raise additional funds to help finance the senior educational tour of the South.

The Morehouse - Parent-Teacher Organization held their final meeting of the year in the school cafeteria Tuesday April 19. The main feature of the meeting was a fashion show presented by Miss Roberta Rievley and her F. H. A. girls who modeled many beautiful dresses which they had made during the year. The group also voted to pay a portion of the cost of the new P. A. system which will be an asset to the school

Following the P. T. A. meeting, many of those present went by the school shop to observe about one dozen of the Industrial Arts Students at work on their projects which they will be entering in the Industrial Arts exhibits at Southeast Missouri State College on Saturday, April 29. Mr. Lindsay Wilburn, the Industrial Arts instructor was present to show the parents around the shop. Mr. Wilburn is doing a fine job with the Industrial Arts Dept. this year.

Mrs. Stephen Rahm, music instructor in our schools, will present her Spring Music Program on Tuesday evening, May 3rd. All parents are invited to attend.

This year's Junior - Senior Prom and Banquet will be held on Friday, May 13 in the school cafeteria and auditorium. Music for the Prom will be furnished by the Runaways of Cape Girardeau.

Baccalaureate Services for this year's Commencement program will be held in the high school auditorium on Sunday evening, May 15th. Rev. Glen Bohannon, pastor of the First Baptist Church will address the seniors beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Final examinations for the entire school for all classes will be given on Monday and Tuesday, May 16 and 17.

The Commencement Program will be held on Thursday evening May 19. Mr. T. L. Arnold, attorney - at - law, from Benton, Missouri, will give the address.

Morehouse Schools will close for the 1965-66 school year at the close of the day on Friday, May 20th.

Each year, the high school goes to Reelfoot Lake for a school picnic. The group will do this on Saturday, May 21st.

The senior class will leave on its tour of the South on Saturday, May 21. All seniors are anxiously looking forward to this highly educational tour with much enthusiasm as they expect to enjoy every minute of the tour.

Former U.S. Bar President Will Speak

COLUMBIA -- Ross Malone, former president of the American Bar Association, and Prof. Robert J. Farley of the University of Florida will speak at the Law Day program at the University of Missouri next Friday and Saturday.

Professor Farley, former dean of law at the University of Mississippi, will speak at a banquet that concludes the program.

Guests of honor will include Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, members of the Missouri Supreme court and judges of United States courts in Missouri.

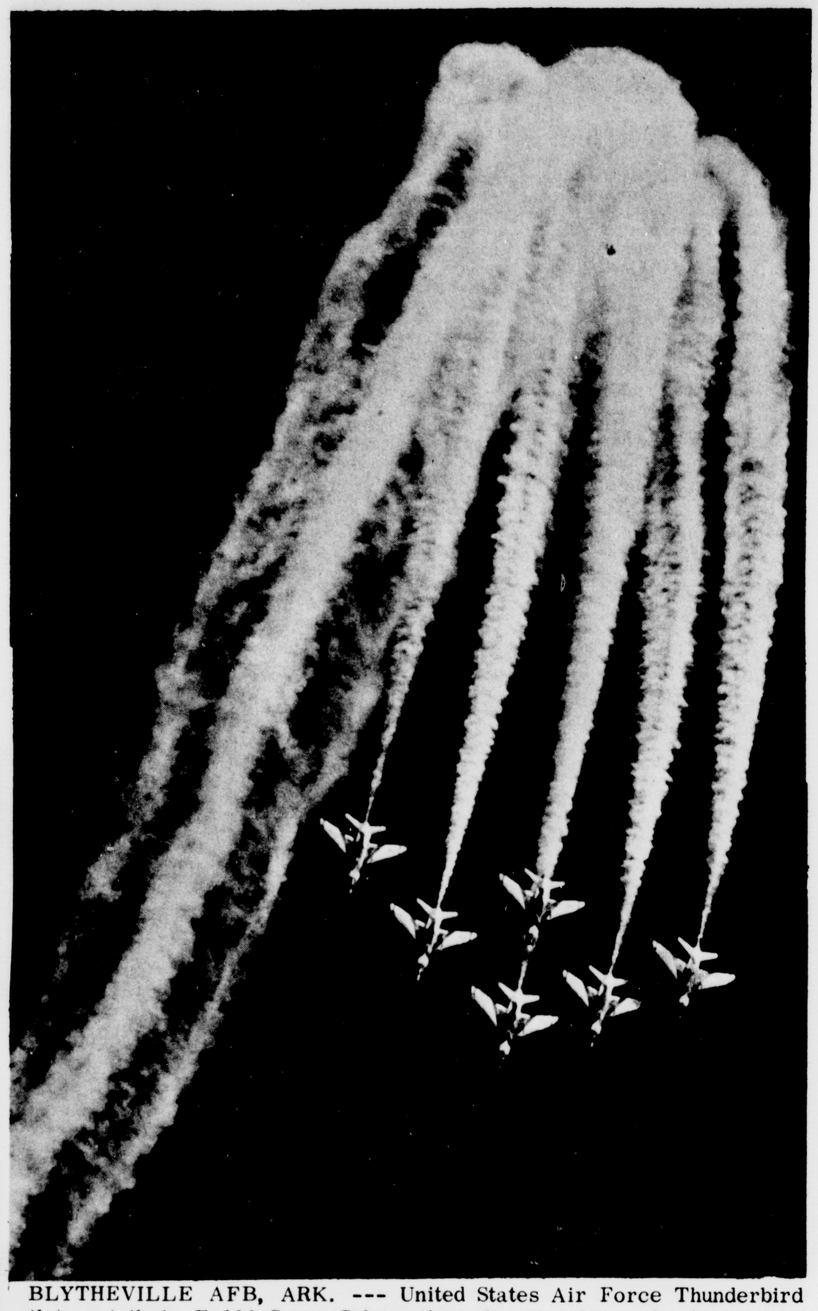

Malone, attorney in Roswell, N. M., will speak on the opening night at a dinner given by the Law School Foundation honoring student members of the Missouri Law Review. Guests will include foundation trustees and former trustees and first-year law students.

In addition to the banquet and dinner at Memorial Student Union, the program also includes the annual alumni dinner April 29 at the Daniel Boone Hotel, an affair that includes no formal program and no speeches. Classes that were graduated in 1916, 1921, 1926, 1931, 1936, 1941, 1946, 1951, 1956 and 1961 will hold reunions as a part of the dinner program.

Other general activities will include junior finals in moot county competition on the final afternoon, heard by a special court consisting of Judge Robert T. Donnelly of the Missouri Supreme Court, Judge Fred Howard of the Kansas City Court of Appeals, and Judge W. Osler Statler of Cape Girardeau, judge of the thirty - second judicial circuit. Student finalists in the competition will include C. Eugene Hamilton, Auxvasse; Philip M. Moomaw, Verona; Thomas N. O'Donnell, Normandy, and Ronald C. Spradley, Carthage.

Governor Hearnes, a Missouri law graduate as of 1952, will be the honorary initiate of the Order of the Coif, legal scholastic society, in morning ceremonies following sessions of the Law Alumni association and the Law School foundation.

The alumni, over which Ralph Duggins of Jefferson City will preside, will present their distinguished awards to Paul G. Koontz of Kansas City, a Missouri law graduate in 1918, and to James M. Douglas of St. Louis, former justice of the Missouri Supreme Court and a graduate of Washington University. The University Alumni association's citation of merit will go to Irvin Fane of Kansas City, a law graduate in 1928.

Man Injured By Artillery Flash Stimulators

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Jimmy McClanahan, 23, of Caruthersville, was injured Monday while experimenting with an artillery flash simulator which he and a friend found in the Mississippi river while boating on Sunday.

A U. S. Coast Guard officer at Memphis, Tenn., has issued a warning to all Mississippi River boaters against trying to recover any of the flash simulators.

McClanahan reported that he shook about one teaspoon of powder out of the simulator and lit it with a match. The resulting flash -- there was no explosion -- sent him to a clinic for treatment of minor burns and left his eye lashes and moustache singed.

The Coast Guard officer had no explanation as to how the simulators got into the river. He warned that anyone who sees one of the flash simulators, which are about two inches long, should leave it alone but should immediately telephone the Coast Guard at Memphis -- Area Code 1-901, 534-3556.

U. S. SENATORS AND GOVERNORS ENDORSE FLAG-FLYING EFFORTS OF U. S. NEWSPAPERS

Karl E. Mundt, U. S. Senator from South Dakota:

"The patriotic program of encouragement of American citizens to proudly fly our flag as carried on by organizations and firms such as the Daily Standard is deserving of the highest commendation. While I think virtually every American citizen maintains a deep and abiding love of country and is cognizant of the many sacrifices which have been made to 'keep our flag high,' a program of encouragement to fly the flag from our homes on national holidays serves as a reminder that we can all demonstrate our dedication to the rich heritage that is this wonderful land of freedom.

Perhaps the best demonstration of this rich heritage concerns the flag itself. As individual citizens there is no responsibility, or law requiring that we must display the flag. That is as it should be. In my opinion, the citizen who does fly the flag is exercising a privilege of freedom which he personally feels is his.

Ross Bass, U. S. Senator from Tennesses:

Throughout our history, our nation's flag has been a source of pride and patriotism. Today, when communist aggression has brought about a fighting war in Southeast Asia, it is more important than ever that every American "show his colors" and present to the world a united front of dedication to our heritage of freedom.

I urge every citizen to fly our nation's flag, particularly on national holidays, and I congratulate the Daily Standard for its efforts in fore-running this display of patriotism.

Warren Hearnes, Governor of Missouri:

"The efforts of the Daily Standard should be an incentive to every Missourian to fly the flag on national holidays. I believe such a display at every home is a step in the right direction, in solidifying the national effort to show the free world that the Spirit of '76 is still as strong in the hearts of Americans today as it was 190 years ago when it began. I urge every home in Missouri to fly the flag on national holidays.

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING of Kent Library addition at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Existing Library Will Be Incorporated in Addition

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The incorporation of a 24,000 - square-foot existing building into a new 120,000 - square-foot addition is the design highlight of Kent Library at Southeast Missouri State College, Dr. Mark F. Scully, president of the college, has announced.

Bids totaling $2,659,079 for construction and alteration work were received last week.

The Pearce and Pearce, Inc., St. Louis architects and engineers, will hold 350,000 volumes, seat up to 2,200 and be administered by a staff of 45.

Features of the four - level reinforced concrete structure are a year-round automatic temperature and humidity control system, 440 individual study carrels; centrally - controlled recessed fluorescent lighting providing 80 foot - candles throughout all spaces; fire detection devices; and large fan systems delivering 120,000 cubic feet of efficiently - filtered air per minute, through high velocity ducts, to all occupied areas.

Construction will begin upon receipt of the House and Home Financing Agency's approval of the award, Dr. Scully said, with completion scheduled in time for use in the fall of 1967.

Financing is provided by federal assistance of $1,000,000 and the remainder in state funds.

McCarthy Brothers Construction Company of St. Louis and J. E. Hathman, Inc., a joint venture, hold the prime construction contract. Major subcontractors include Burnett Plumbing and Heating, Inc., St. Clair, plumbing; Sears and Plou, St. Louis, heating, ventilating and air conditioning, and Acme Electric Company, electrical work.

Consulting engineers, all from St. Louis, include Bergmeier & Siebold, Inc., structural; Charles J. R. McClure & Associates, mechanical, and Wilbert F. Rath, electrical.

Kent library will have aluminum entry doors. Floors will be rubber tile on circulation levels, ceramic tile in toilets and vinyl asbestos elsewhere. Walls will generally be plaster carrying a vinyl base. Vinyl fabric wall covering will be used in high traffic areas, and ceramic tile on toilet walls.

Special reflecting - surface insulated glass will be installed in the building, to reduce heat loss and to prevent condensation arising out of the controlled interior humidity. One of the rooms in the new addition will be a paneled book treasury in which valuable volumes will be stored on wood shelves.

Program requirements for the 500 per cent expansion of Kent Library were established by a library planning committee consisting of Felix E. Snider, chairman; Dr. Harold O. Grauel; Dr. Stanley G. Diehl; Dr. Wilbur T. Meek; Dr. Willard J. Morgan; N. Lynn Barber, and William Leroy.

The committee worked closely with Architects Pearce and Pearce, Inc., and with Consultants Donald O. Rod of the State College of Iowa, Dr. Andrew Eaton of Washington University and Dr. Francis G. Cornell of Educational Services, Inc.

Morehouse News

MOREHOUSE -- Since Morehouse has adopted daylight saving time, the schools will go on it Monday. Schools will open at 8 a.m. DST and close at 2:45 p.m.

Five of our elementary teachers will attend a workshop for teachers in this area on Friday of this week. The workshop will have to do with study of Initial Teaching Alphabet.

The members of the senior class of Morehouse High are working on a variety show to be held in the auditorium on Thursday, April 28, 1966. The purpose of the show is to raise additional funds to help finance the senior educational tour of the South.

The Morehouse - Parent-Teacher Organization held their final meeting of the year in the school cafeteria Tuesday April 19. The main feature of the meeting was a fashion show presented by Miss Roberta Rievley and her F. H. A. girls who modeled many beautiful dresses which they had made during the year. The group also voted to pay a portion of the cost of the new P. A. system which will be an asset to the school

Following the P. T. A. meeting, many of those present went by the school shop to observe about one dozen of the Industrial Arts Students at work on their projects which they will be entering in the Industrial Arts exhibits at Southeast Missouri State College on Saturday, April 29. Mr. Lindsay Wilburn, the Industrial Arts instructor was present to show the parents around the shop. Mr. Wilburn is doing a fine job with the Industrial Arts Dept. this year.

Mrs. Stephen Rahm, music instructor in our schools, will present her Spring Music Program on Tuesday evening, May 3rd. All parents are invited to attend.

This year's Junior - Senior Prom and Banquet will be held on Friday, May 13 in the school cafeteria and auditorium. Music for the Prom will be furnished by the Runaways of Cape Girardeau.

Baccalaureate Services for this year's Commencement program will be held in the high school auditorium on Sunday evening, May 15th. Rev. Glen Bohannon, pastor of the First Baptist Church will address the seniors beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Final examinations for the entire school for all classes will be given on Monday and Tuesday, May 16 and 17.

The Commencement Program will be held on Thursday evening May 19. Mr. T. L. Arnold, attorney - at - law, from Benton, Missouri, will give the address.

Morehouse Schools will close for the 1965-66 school year at the close of the day on Friday, May 20th.

Each year, the high school goes to Reelfoot Lake for a school picnic. The group will do this on Saturday, May 21st.

The senior class will leave on its tour of the South on Saturday, May 21. All seniors are anxiously looking forward to this highly educational tour with much enthusiasm as they expect to enjoy every minute of the tour.

Former U.S. Bar President Will Speak

COLUMBIA -- Ross Malone, former president of the American Bar Association, and Prof. Robert J. Farley of the University of Florida will speak at the Law Day program at the University of Missouri next Friday and Saturday.

Professor Farley, former dean of law at the University of Mississippi, will speak at a banquet that concludes the program.

Guests of honor will include Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, members of the Missouri Supreme court and judges of United States courts in Missouri.

Malone, attorney in Roswell, N. M., will speak on the opening night at a dinner given by the Law School Foundation honoring student members of the Missouri Law Review. Guests will include foundation trustees and former trustees and first-year law students.

In addition to the banquet and dinner at Memorial Student Union, the program also includes the annual alumni dinner April 29 at the Daniel Boone Hotel, an affair that includes no formal program and no speeches. Classes that were graduated in 1916, 1921, 1926, 1931, 1936, 1941, 1946, 1951, 1956 and 1961 will hold reunions as a part of the dinner program.

Other general activities will include junior finals in moot county competition on the final afternoon, heard by a special court consisting of Judge Robert T. Donnelly of the Missouri Supreme Court, Judge Fred Howard of the Kansas City Court of Appeals, and Judge W. Osler Statler of Cape Girardeau, judge of the thirty - second judicial circuit. Student finalists in the competition will include C. Eugene Hamilton, Auxvasse; Philip M. Moomaw, Verona; Thomas N. O'Donnell, Normandy, and Ronald C. Spradley, Carthage.

Governor Hearnes, a Missouri law graduate as of 1952, will be the honorary initiate of the Order of the Coif, legal scholastic society, in morning ceremonies following sessions of the Law Alumni association and the Law School foundation.

The alumni, over which Ralph Duggins of Jefferson City will preside, will present their distinguished awards to Paul G. Koontz of Kansas City, a Missouri law graduate in 1918, and to James M. Douglas of St. Louis, former justice of the Missouri Supreme Court and a graduate of Washington University. The University Alumni association's citation of merit will go to Irvin Fane of Kansas City, a law graduate in 1928.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK. --- United States Air Force Thunderbird pilots put their F-100 Super Sabres through a six-ship wedge loop---one of many such maneuvers---during their 30-minute performance. Looking Back Over the Years

April 22, 1916

Stroud Craine's Marshall Hotel pool room is being enlarged, repainted and thoroughly overhauled. New tables have arrived and an onyx soda fountain of the latest pattern has been installed. This will be the finest pool room in Southeast Missouri when the final touches have been added.

The house of R. C. Finley, a farmer north of town, burned Saturday afternoon. Nothing was saved but the clothing worn by the family at the time.

The new Marmon cars belonging to Lynn Stallcup, E. C. Matthews and C. D. Matthews, jr., were driven down from Commerce Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Marshall Myers, who has been very ill at her home, is reported to be some better.

Miss Gladys Shrum expects to make her home in Caledonia in the near future.

Mrs. J. E. Alsup, who has been with The Standard since the first of the year, leaves for her home in Willow Springs, tonight, to spend the summer months.

Four Illmo High School men students will come here today for tennis matches with the Bulldogs on the new courts NYA workers have built north of the high school. Coach W. E. Mahew will choose his team from men now out for tennis. Among them are: Bill Van Horne, Clint Denman, Kenneth Hocker, Tommy Marshall, and Charles Yanson.

Four new grammar school instructors were elected and all other teachers except two were re-elected for next year at a board of education meeting Thursday night. The new teachers are: Mrs. Irma Wilson Allen of Sikeston, formerly of St. Joseph; Miss Elizabeth Emory of Essex; Miss Gwendolyn Duncan of Sikeston; and Miss Edna Howard of Benton. Miss Emily Blanton and Miss Mignon Newton, grammar school teachers, did not request re-election since they are to be married this spring.

Roy V. Ellise was re-elected superintendent for his 16th year and W. E. Mahew principal of the high school for the sixth time. Miss Florence Crisler was retained as grammar school principal, and Miss Dorothea Miller was chosen principal of the new grade school to be constructed this summer. These teachers were re-elected: High school building—Mrs. Josephine Vieth, Miss Isabell Hess, Miss Frances Burch, Miss Daisy Evans, Miss Uriel Haw, Cletis Bidewell, Glenn S. Duncan, Mrs. Geraldine Young, Miss Adilda McCord, Miss Electa O'Hara, Miss Madge Davis, Miss Agnes Erley, Tharon Stallings, Miss Nellie Goodman, Miss Myra Tanner, Reid Jann, Miss Mary Kirkendall, Miss Myrtle Dalton, and Miss Marian Sample.

Grammer school — Miss Wilma Ragains, Miss Lucille Finley, Miss Lucille Mount, Miss Nell Yanson, Miss Helen Baker, Miss Ruth Bateman, Miss Lucille Stubblefield, Miss Jewell Mouser, Miss Lydia Chaney, Mrs. E. W. Davis, Miss Margaret Clymer, Miss Georgia Houchens, Mrs. W. W. Hinchey, Miss Lillian Putnam, and Miss Pauline Meredith. Sunset school — Iola Huddleston, U. S. Hunt, and Charlotte Madison.

George Hale, sr., who some weeks ago entered into a contract to purchase the Front street building now occupied by the A and P Co., from the P. M. Malcolm estate heirs, announced today that he had received the deed and now owned the property. Mr. Hale also announced that he had leased the building on New Madrid street, formerly occupied by the Bijou and would move his jewelry store, now located on 105 East Malone, to the new quarters on June 1.

The Sikeston High School baseball team defeated Chaffee 9 to 7 in a game played at Chaffee Friday afternoon.

The Charleston High School track team won the annual Scott-Mississippi County track and field meet at Charleston last Thursday, nosing out Sikeston 63 points to 57⅝. East Prairie came in third with 26½ points, while Anniston was fourth with 2 points.

Rex Theatre, tomorrow, double feature, "Louisiana Hayride" with Judy Canova plus "Swing Fever" with Kay Kyser. Malone Theatre, tomorrow, "Man Alive" with Pat O'Brien.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the son of God. (I John 5:13)

PRAYER: Eternal God, we know not what is coming tomorrow, but we know what is coming in eternity. May we abide in Thy love and be instrumental in assuring others that a Christ-centered life brings life eternal. With thankful hearts we pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet you've had thousands of letters from readers who felt sorry for the high school girl who wanted you to help her find a job. She was the one who couldn't sing in the choir because she needed a blue sweater and her folks couldn't spare the money.

I was in the spot a few years ago. When I was 14 I got my social security card and right away I began to hunt for after-school work. It's against the law in this state to hire anyone under 16 so, naturally, I didn't find anything. Baby-sitting was the best I could do.

I turned 16 and made the rounds again and found a job as a waitress for $13 a week. I was a junior in high school that year and saved my money for senior year expenses. I paid for my own clothes, medical and dental bills and had enough left for a class ring, senior pictures and a yearbook.

When I graduated from high school I knew from my search for part-time work that it was going to take perseverance to find a job. I went out every day and made call after call until I landed a position in a stenographic pool. By December I was in charge of the pool. I now run an office and make an excellent salary.

My advice to teen-agers who want part-time work is to wait until your 16th birthday. After that you can do anything you want to do — and be anything you want to be. You can make something of your life or you can sit around blaming "the times" and feeling sorry for yourself. — SEVEN YEARS BACK

Dear Seven Years: Thank you for an inspiring letter. I know of no better way to encourage people who think they can't do it, than to read a letter from someone who did. And you did it, Doll.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll level with you because I need a straight answer. Here are the facts and I know they are not pretty.

Two years ago I came to Los Angeles from a little burg in Idaho — a dumb kid of 20. I was sure I could make it big in modeling. I got plenty of propositions, but no job offers. After two months my money ran out and I was behind in my room rent, so I moved in with Wally.

Wally was lucky for me. I got a job that same week (cocktail waitress) and I make good money. But Wally doesn't believe in marriage and that's that. The trouble is, everybody thinks we ARE married.

Three months ago I met the most wonderful man in the world. I lied and told him I was living with my brother. Last night he asked me to marry him. This is the highest compliment any man ever paid me and it's the first legit proposal I've ever had. I am dying to say yes, but I'm afraid of what Wally will do if I leave him. Please help me.— GIGI

Dear Gigi: If you don't own a suitcase, get some cartons and move into a place of your own — even if it's only a room. You owe Wally nothing but a farewell handshake.

Tell "the world's most wonderful man" the truth about yourself and, if he still wants you, you are the world's luckiest girl. And don't move in with Mr. Wonderful until you are MRS. Wonderful.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, gives authoritative and complete information on how to plan a wedding. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Bell City School Board rejected the Great Society and, "Why?", is still a question of interest, not only to the news media, but to a lot of people in the community. Let us put one thing across to the readers and that is the simple fact that HALF of the school board rejected some badly needed help and the other HALF did not! When we say, help, it covers several things, such as, books that were bought with Federal Aid Money, several different kinds of equipment, encyclopedias or World Books, for each and every room. Why were these books bought? Because parents were having to take students to Sikeston, Cape Girardeau and Dexter to the libraries in order that they might get material for some of their school work. We now have one of the best equipped science and lab departments of any school around of comparable size. Part of this was made possible by Federal Aid Money in purchasing new equipment. (Don't you think Federal Aid Money sounds better than Welfare money?)

It is surprising to note in Tuesday's, April 19, letter that there are so many people "holding out their little hands to see what Santy Claws will give them." It is even more surprising to note how fast some of our more prominent farmers get to Bloomfield every time there is a change in our farm program. (Federal Money to farmers, if you please.) We all know Santy Claws is there too and there are "little hands" reaching out there to receive the "give away money". (your term, not ours.) The most surprising thing of all would be for some of the smaller farmers to know exactly how much of this give away money the big boys get.

It seems that there is quite a bit of controversy about qualifications in our school system. This is pointing directly to the twenty ladies hired as teacher's aides. Qualifications cover quite a field if one wants to delve into it thoroughly. One thing that should be clarified is that fact that none of the aides are qualified teachers. One other thing is the fact that they ARE NOT in the class rooms teaching. They are AIDES, and that is just what they are doing; aiding and assisting the teachers in ways supervised by the teachers themselves.

Speaking of qualifications in a broader sense, it seems odd that a 7th grade "drop-out", (your term, not ours) can put himself up as one sixth of the school board and know more about running a school than the superintendent himself. So, you see, qualifications when applied all the way around, can cover quite a bit of territory.

It is true that farm labor is getting more scarce each year. We can't help but wonder if the twenty ladies working at Bell City created this problem. This program has been in effect only about nine weeks now and it seems to us that there was quite a shortage of farm labor even last year. Most of these ladies when school is out for the summer vacation will continue working at different jobs. Some of them will return to the farm, driving tractors, chopping beans and hauling fertilizer. This was done long before the Federal Aid Program was started.

We also wonder if George Washington would have turned down $81,000 Federal Aid money when he and his troops were freezing to death at Valley Forge. A little help in any way at that time would have been appreciated.

In conclusion, let us say, it seems rather strange that one having so much interest in the affairs of our school would run his "flunky" rather than himself.

J. T. Scherffius

Why I prefer the Daily Standard as my source of information for buying all family needs.

I prefer the Daily Sikeston Standard as my only source of information for buying all family needs because I can trust it. It has proved itself to be a very honest source many times in the past so I know I can always depend on it.

Poplar Bluff Firm Bids Low

KENNETT -- Missouri Petroleum Products, Inc., of Poplar Bluff was the apparent low bidder last night on the blacktopping of 19 streets in Kennett.

The company submitted a total bid of $72,677.64. The only other company to bid on the project was Bituminois Paving, Inc., of Kennett with $94,255.24. A spokesman for Bituminous Paving told The Daily Democrat that his bid was much higher than that of Missouri Petroleum because he bid on a limestone base instead of rock.

Missouri Petroleum's bid will be examined by the city engineer and the awarding of the contract will probably be made at the next regular council session.

Streets included in last night's bid included: Richard Avenue, Russell, West Fifth, Harris, Ely, Dunklin, West, Willoughby, Pruitt (two sections), Carter, East Avenue, Independence, East Second, West Seventh, Beaton, Central, Wimberly and East St.

Mayor Sol Astrachan announced that funds are already committed for street improvement projects this year and petitions are being accepted for 1967. Among those high on the list for 1967 will be Walnut St., from Eighth to Harrison, which was approved Tuesday.

Tuesday night's first order of business was the swearing in of newly-elected council members. They are: Dr. Harry Goddard, Ward 1; Dr. John Scott, Ward 2 (full term); Garland Sewell (one year unexpired term); Arthur Bell, Ward 3; Thurman Tinker, Ward 4; and Winford Henry, Ward 5.

Looking Back Over the Years

50 years ago
April 22, 1916

Stroud Craine's Marshall Hotel pool room is being enlarged, repainted and thoroughly overhauled. New tables have arrived and an onyx soda fountain of the latest pattern has been installed. This will be the finest pool room in Southeast Missouri when the final touches have been added.

The house of R. C. Finley, a farmer north of town, burned Saturday afternoon. Nothing was saved but the clothing worn by the family at the time.

The new Marmon cars belonging to Lynn Stallcup, E. C. Matthews and C. D. Matthews, jr., were driven down from Commerce Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Marshall Myers, who has been very ill at her home, is reported to be some better.

Miss Gladys Shrum expects to make her home in Caledonia in the near future.

Mrs. J. E. Alsup, who has been with The Standard since the first of the year, leaves for her home in Willow Springs, tonight, to spend the summer months.

Four Illmo High School men students will come here today for tennis matches with the Bulldogs on the new courts NYA workers have built north of the high school. Coach W. E. Mahew will choose his team from men now out for tennis. Among them are: Bill Van Horne, Clint Denman, Kenneth Hocker, Tommy Marshall, and Charles Yanson.

Four new grammar school instructors were elected and all other teachers except two were re-elected for next year at a board of education meeting Thursday night. The new teachers are: Mrs. Irma Wilson Allen of Sikeston, formerly of St. Joseph; Miss Elizabeth Emory of Essex; Miss Gwendolyn Duncan of Sikeston; and Miss Edna Howard of Benton. Miss Emily Blanton and Miss Mignon Newton, grammar school teachers, did not request re-election since they are to be married this spring.

Roy V. Ellise was re-elected superintendent for his 16th year and W. E. Mahew principal of the high school for the sixth time. Miss Florence Crisler was retained as grammar school principal, and Miss Dorothea Miller was chosen principal of the new grade school to be constructed this summer. These teachers were re-elected: High school building—Mrs. Josephine Vieth, Miss Isabell Hess, Miss Frances Burch, Miss Daisy Evans, Miss Uriel Haw, Cletis Bidewell, Glenn S. Duncan, Mrs. Geraldine Young, Miss Adilda McCord, Miss Electa O'Hara, Miss Madge Davis, Miss Agnes Erley, Tharon Stallings, Miss Nellie Goodman, Miss Myra Tanner, Reid Jann, Miss Mary Kirkendall, Miss Myrtle Dalton, and Miss Marian Sample.

Grammer school — Miss Wilma Ragains, Miss Lucille Finley, Miss Lucille Mount, Miss Nell Yanson, Miss Helen Baker, Miss Ruth Bateman, Miss Lucille Stubblefield, Miss Jewell Mouser, Miss Lydia Chaney, Mrs. E. W. Davis, Miss Margaret Clymer, Miss Georgia Houchens, Mrs. W. W. Hinchey, Miss Lillian Putnam, and Miss Pauline Meredith. Sunset school — Iola Huddleston, U. S. Hunt, and Charlotte Madison.

George Hale, sr., who some weeks ago entered into a contract to purchase the Front street building now occupied by the A and P Co., from the P. M. Malcolm estate heirs, announced today that he had received the deed and now owned the property. Mr. Hale also announced that he had leased the building on New Madrid street, formerly occupied by the Bijou and would move his jewelry store, now located on 105 East Malone, to the new quarters on June 1.

The Sikeston High School baseball team defeated Chaffee 9 to 7 in a game played at Chaffee Friday afternoon.

The Charleston High School track team won the annual Scott-Mississippi County track and field meet at Charleston last Thursday, nosing out Sikeston 63 points to 57⅛. East Prairie came in third with 26½ points, while Anniston was fourth with 2 points.

Rex Theatre, tomorrow, double feature, "Louisiana Hayride" with Judy Canova plus "Swing Fever" with Kay Kyser. Malone Theatre, tomorrow, "Man Alive" with Pat O'Brien.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the son of God. (I John 5:13)

PRAYER: Eternal God, we know not what is coming tomorrow, but we know what is coming in eternity. May we abide in Thy love and be instrumental in assuring others that a Christ-centered life brings life eternal. With thankful hearts we pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet you've had thousands of letters from readers who felt sorry for the high school girl who wanted you to help her find a job. She was the one who couldn't sing in the choir because she needed a blue sweater and her folks couldn't spare the money.

I was in the spot a few years ago. When I was 14 I got my social security card and right away I began to hunt for after-school work. It's against the law in this state to hire anyone under 16 so, naturally, I didn't find anything. Baby-sitting was the best I could do.

I turned 16 and made the rounds again and found a job as a waitress for $13 a week. I was a junior in high school that year and saved my money for senior year expenses. I paid for my own clothes, medical and dental bills and had enough left for a class ring, senior pictures and a yearbook.

When I graduated from high school I knew from my search for part-time work that it was going to take perseverance to find a job. I went out every day and made call after call until I landed a position in a stenographic pool. By December I was in charge of the pool. I now run an office and make an excellent salary.

My advice to teen-agers who want part-time work is to wait until your 16th birthday. After that you can do anything you want to do -- and be anything you want to be. You can make something of your life or you can sit around blaming "the times" and feeling sorry for yourself. -- SEVEN YEARS BACK

Dear Seven Years: Thank you for an inspiring letter. I know of no better way to encourage people who think they can't do it, than to read a letter from someone who did. And you did it, Doll.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll level with you because I need a straight answer. Here are the facts and I know they are not pretty.

Two years ago I came to Los Angeles from a little burg in Idaho -- a dumb kid of 20. I was sure I could make it big in modeling. I got plenty of propositions, but no job offers. After two months my money ran out and I was behind in my room rent, so I moved in with Wally.

Wally was lucky for me. I got a job that same week (cocktail waitress) and I make good money. But Wally doesn't believe in marriage and that's that. The trouble is, everybody thinks we ARE married.

Three months ago I met the most wonderful man in the world. I lied and told him I was living with my brother. Last night he asked me to marry him. This is the highest compliment any man ever paid me and it's the first legit proposal I've ever had. I am dying to say yes, but I'm afraid of what Wally will do if I leave him. Please help me.-- GIGI

Dear Gigi: If you don't own a suitcase, get some cartons and move into a place of your own -- even if it's only a room. You owe Wally nothing but a farewell handshake.

Tell "the world's most wonderful man" the truth about yourself and, if he still wants you, you are the world's luckiest girl. And don't move in with Mr. Wonderful until you are MRS. Wonderful.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, gives authoritative and complete information on how to plan a wedding. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Bell City School Board rejected the Great Society and, "Why?", is still a question of interest, not only to the news media, but to a lot of people in the community. Let us put one thing across to the readers and that is the simple fact that HALF of the school board rejected some badly needed help and the other HALF did not! When we say, help, it covers several things, such as, books that were bought with Federal Aid Money, several different kinds of equipment, encyclopedias or World Books, for each and every room. Why were these books bought? Because parents were having to take students to Sikeston, Cape Girardeau and Dexter to the libraries in order that they might get material for some of their school work. We now have one of the best equipped science and lab departments of any school around of comparable size. Part of this was made possible by Federal Aid Money in purchasing new equipment. (Don't you think Federal Aid Money sounds better than Welfare money?)

It is surprising to note in Tuesday's, April 19, letter that there are so many people "holding out their little hands to see what Santy Claws will give them." It is even more surprising to note how fast some of our more prominent farmers get to Bloomfield every time there is a change in our farm program. (Federal Money to farmers, if you please.) We all know Santy Claws is there too and there are "little hands" reaching out there to receive the "give away money". (your term, not ours.) The most surprising thing of all would be for some of the smaller farmers to know exactly how much of this give away money the big boys get.

It seems that there is quite a bit of controversy about qualifications in our school system. This is pointing directly to the twenty ladies hired as teacher's aides. Qualifications cover quite a field if one wants to delve into it thoroughly. One thing that should be clarified is that fact that none of the aides are qualified teachers. One other thing is the fact that they ARE NOT in the class rooms teaching. They are AIDES, and that is just what they are doing; aiding and assisting the teachers in ways supervised by the teachers themselves.

Speaking of qualifications in a broader sense, it seems odd that a 7th grade "drop-out", (your term, not ours) can put himself up as one sixth of the school board and know more about running a school than the superintendent himself. So, you see, qualifications when applied all the way around, can cover quite a bit of territory.

It is true that farm labor is getting more scarce each year. We can't help but wonder if the twenty ladies working at Bell City created this problem. This program has been in effect only about nine weeks now and it seems to us that there was quite a shortage of farm labor even last year. Most of these ladies when school is out for the summer vacation will continue working at different jobs. Some of them will return to the farm, driving tractors, chopping beans and hauling fertilizer. This was done long before the Federal Aid Program was started.

We also wonder if George Washington would have turned down $81,000 Federal Aid money when he and his troops were freezing to death at Valley Forge. A little help in any way at that time would have been appreciated.

In conclusion, let us say, it seems rather strange that one having so much interest in the affairs of our school would run his "flunky" rather than himself.

J. T. Scherffius

Poplar Bluff Firm Bids Low

KENNETT -- Missouri Petroleum Products, Inc., of Poplar Bluff was the apparent low bidder last night on the blacktopping of 19 streets in Kennett.

The company submitted a total bid of $72,677.64. The only other company to bid on the project was Bituminois Paving, Inc., of Kennett with $94,255.24. A spokesman for Bituminous Paving told The Daily Democrat that his bid was much higher than that of Missouri Petroleum because he bid on a limestone base instead of rock.

Missouri Petroleum's bid will be examined by the city engineer and the awarding of the contract will probably be made at the next regular council session.

Streets included in last night's bid included: Richard Avenue, Russell, West Fifth, Harris, Ely, Dunklin, West, Willoughby, Pruitt (two sections), Carter, East Avenue, Independence, East Second, West Seventh, Beaton, Central, Wimberly and East St.

Mayor Sol Astrachan announced that funds are already committed for street improvement projects this year and petitions are being accepted for 1967. Among those high on the list for 1967 will be Walnut St., from Eighth to Harrison, which was approved Tuesday.

Tuesday night's first order of business was the swearing in of newly-elected council members. They are: Dr. Harry Goddard, Ward 1; Dr. John Scott, Ward 2 (full term); Garland Sewell (one year unexpired term); Arthur Bell, Ward 3; Thurman Tinker, Ward 4; and Winford Henry, Ward 5.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, April 22, the 112th day of 1966. There are 253 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1864, Congress authorized the motto "In God We Trust" -- and it first appeared that year on two-cent pieces.

On this date

In 1783, George Washington issued his proclamation of neutrality in the war between Britain and France.

In 1898, the first shot was fired in the Spanish-American War.

In 1930, the United States, France, Britain, Italy and Japan signed a naval reduction treaty in London.

In 1942, British commandos raided enemy defenses near the French port of Boulogne.

In 1946, the body of Benito Mussolini was stolen from an unmarked grave.

Ten years ago -- Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev were received by Queen Elizabeth at Windsor Castle.

Five years ago -- A right-wing rebellion against the government of France was launched in Algeria under the leadership of four retired French generals, with the aim of keeping Algeria part of France.

One year ago -- Italian Premier Aldo Moro ended a four-day visit to Washington.

Jaycee Post To Chiropractor

KENNETT -- Dr. Larry Webster, a chiropractor, was elected state vice president of the district 13 Jaycees at their spring meeting in Malden.

Webster, who faced no opposition in the election, succeeds Erwin Lloyd, editor of the Portageville Review. The new vice president, along with other District 13 officers, will assume office early in June.

At the meeting the District 31 Jaycees endorsed the Highway 25 Association in its project motives.

The district is composed of three counties in Southeast Missouri -- Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid -- where the following chapters are maintained: Kennett, Malden, Gideon, Hayti, Steele, Caruthersville, Portageville, New Madrid and Lilbourn.

A bevy of beefy ladies, hiking to reduce, stumbled, after a long, hot trek, on a place offering luscious ice-cream concoctions. "Oh, goody," shrilled one, "let's stop here and catch our breadth!"

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, April 22, the 112th day of 1966. There are 253 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1864, Congress authorized the motto "In God We Trust" -- and it first appeared that year on two-cent pieces.

On this date

In 1783, George Washington issued his proclamation of neutrality in the war between Britain and France.

In 1898, the first shot was fired in the Spanish-American War.

In 1930, the United States, France, Britain, Italy and Japan signed a naval reduction treaty in London.

In 1942, British commandos raided enemy defenses near the French port of Boulogne.

In 1946, the body of Benito Mussolini was stolen from an unmarked grave.

Ten years ago -- Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev were received by Queen Elizabeth at Windsor Castle.

Five years ago -- A right-wing rebellion against the government of France was launched in Algeria under the leadership of four retired French generals, with the aim of keeping Algeria part of France.

One year ago -- Italian Premier Aldo Moro ended a four-day visit to Washington.

Jaycee Post To Chiropractor

KENNETT -- Dr. Larry Webster, a chiropractor, was elected state vice president of the district 13 Jaycees at their spring meeting in Malden.

Webster, who faced no opposition in the election, succeeds Erwin Lloyd, editor of the Portageville Review. The new vice president, along with other District 13 officers, will assume office early in June.

At the meeting the District 31 Jaycees endorsed the Highway 25 Association in its project motives.

The district is composed of three counties in Southeast Missouri -- Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid -- where the following chapters are maintained: Kennett, Malden, Gideon, Hayti, Steele, Caruthersville, Portageville, New Madrid and Lilbourn.

A bevy of beefy ladies, hiking to reduce, stumbled, after a long, hot trek, on a place offering luscious ice-cream concoctions. "Oh, goody," shrilled one, "let's stop here and catch our breadth!"

Three Student Job Holders Get Plaques

"It's not the number of hours you spend in high school or college that determines your success, but the number of hours you spend toward some specific training," Lester B. Kesterson, Jefferson City director of cooperative industrial and distributive education, told more than 100 students holding jobs and their employers.

Kesterson, who works in the state department of education, in his address last night at the Holiday Inn, pointed out the responsibilities of youths in their occupations.

Larry Kinsey, president of the cooperative occupation education program, presided, and Dickie Long, president of distributive education, gave the invocation.

Both received plaques as outstanding students, together with David Johnson, who also received a plaque.

They were presented by their coordinators Earl Henderson and Norman Woods.

Represented were students and employers from 29 businesses and industries.

"Times have changed at such a rapid pace, that the values of education also has been changed, including the needs of education," Kesterson said. The most serious thing facing the nation today is the drop out student, because all employers demand at least high school graduation.

"An employer may ask a new employe to sweep out, but that is not a permanent order. He may well expect that student to climb up the ladder of success and take an important position with the firm. The serious part of it is that only two of ten youths finish high school, and two of ten complete college.

"The rat race is on in the college program, and cause many to leave because they did not receive enough background education in high school to continue. I am reminded of a graduate engineer I knew, who after his graduation from college, spent his first two years by his company on a special training course.

"Basic requirements that can be learned in your high school work program can be defined as loyalty, honesty, dependability and promptness. For loyalty, we find many young persons who bite the hand that feeds them; for honesty, give a good hour's work for a good hour's pay; dependability, may be the difference of the firm's profit and loss; and for promptness it would well be worthwhile for you to be five minutes early rather than late.

"You will not learn everything from books, which is the same in swimming, but you learn most by doing, and it is up to you employers to give them the experience they need to forge ahead.

"It has been said that a person is worth an hourly wage from his shoulder on down, but that your best abilities will come from the efforts produced from the shoulders up.

"Some of your employes may loaf on the job, but I urge you students not to be among this group. I do not find that many employers still complain of students who lack in customer contact, which would be helpful to both. Give the student every assistance to obtain the training necessary under your leadership, it will be beneficial to both of you."

First Oscar Goes Behind Iron Curtain

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The first Oscar to go behind the Iron Curtain will be carried there by a couple of Czech film makers who represent the "new wave" of that small country.

Followers of film festivals have remarked on the high quality of Czech films during the past two years. Last Monday night, the Motion Picture Academy took cognizance of this trend and chose Czech-made "The Shop on Main Street" as best foreign language film of the year over movies from Italy, Greece, Sweden and Japan.

The Oscar was claimed by Jan Kadar and Elmar Klos, two film veterans who codirected the movie. It was their eighth such collaboration.

Codirection is virtually unknown in American films. That isn't the only element in the Czech film industry that is dissimilar.

"We have no star system," explained Klos, 55 and a Czech. "Our most important actors might do supporting roles in films."

"Directors earn more than actors," Kadar, 46 and a Slovak, added with a degree of pleasure. "The actors are paid according to what category they are; the quality of their work determines their category."

The film industry is completely nationalized in Communist Czechoslovakia, of course. There are three studios in the country producing 36 features a year, plus numerous shorts, cartoons and TV subjects.

In the last few years the Czech movie goers have had much to shout about. I asked the Klos-Kadar combination why their industry has flowered.

"It is because of a new cultural atmosphere that began about four years ago," explained Klos. "Since that time 20 new, talented directors have graduated from the academy and they are doing exciting things."

"The Shop on Main Street" is now a hit on the art-house circuit in this country and may achieve general release on the strength of its Academy Award.

Castro Denies Missile Story

HAVANA AP -- Prime Minister Fiedel Castro denies that he gave an interview to a West German magazine which quoted him as saying Cuba still has Soviet missiles capable of hitting the United States.

The purported interview was published Tuesday by Bunte Illustrierte, a weekly in Bonn, Germany. The magazine said it obtained the interview with Castro in Havana early this year.

HOW CAN THE DEAD RETURN TO LIFE?

It's difficult for many people to believe that the dead will rise as Christ promised.

The common question is: "How can the human body, decomposed and broken into countless atoms be restored?" On the surface this is a reasonable doubt. But if you ask this question, are you taking into account the immeasurable power of God?

If God can overcome nothingness to give us human bodies, can he not also overcome death and dissolution to restore them? How God will do this is just as difficult to understand as how he created the wonders of nature we see all about us.

HISTORICAL PROOF — The fact that God intends to resurrect the dead is verified by the undeniable testimony of history. Christ promised that man, like Himself, would return from the dead and live again forever.

When he proved his prediction and returned from beyond the grave, his reappearance was witnessed by the apostles . . . and on one occasion by more than 500 people!

WHAT CATHOLICS BELIEVE — Catholic beliefs about what will happen after death differ from those of other Christians. If you are a fellow Christian and would like to understand why Catholics believe as they do, you will find the free Knights of Columbus pamphlet entitled "What Happens After Death" most revealing.

If you do not formally belong to any Church group, you might find in the pages of this literature sound reasons for becoming a practicing Christian . . . for among the questions it probes are:

What will man be like after his resurrection? Why does man go through two judgements? What kind of an existence can we expect in the next world? For a free copy of "What Happens After Death", simply mail the coupon. The pamphlet will be sent in a plain wrapper and no one will call on you.

First Oscar Goes Behind Iron Curtain

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The first Oscar to go behind the Iron Curtain will be carried there by a couple of Czech film makers who represent the "new wave" of that small country.

Followers of film festivals have remarked on the high quality of Czech films during the past two years. Last Monday night, the Motion Picture Academy took cognizance of this trend and chose Czech-made "The Shop on Main Street" as best foreign language film of the year over movies from Italy, Greece, Sweden and Japan.

The Oscar was claimed by Jan Kadar and Elmar Klos, two film veterans who codirected the movie. It was their eighth such collaboration.

Codirection is virtually unknown in American films. That isn't the only element in the Czech film industry that is dissimilar.

"We have no star system," explained Klos, 55 and a Czech. "Our most important actors might do supporting roles in films."

"Directors earn more than actors," Kadar, 46 and a Slovak, added with a degree of pleasure. "The actors are paid according to what category they are; the quality of their work determines their category."

The film industry is completely nationalized in Communist Czechoslovakia, of course. There are three studios in the country producing 36 features a year, plus numerous shorts, cartoons and TV subjects.

In the last few years the Czech movie goers have had much to shout about. I asked the Klos-Kadar combination why their industry has flowered.

"It is because of a new cultural atmosphere that began about four years ago," explained Klos. "Since that time 20 new, talented directors have graduated from the academy and they are doing exciting things."

"The Shop on Main Street" is now a hit on the art-house circuit in this country and may achieve general release on the strength of its Academy Award.

Castro Denies Missile Story

HAVANA AP -- Prime Minister Fiedel Castro denies that he gave an interview to a West German magazine which quoted him as saying Cuba still has Soviet missiles capable of hitting the United States.

The purported interview was published Tuesday by Bunte Illustrierte, a weekly in Bonn, Germany. The magazine said it obtained the interview with Castro in Havana early this year.

HOW CAN THE DEAD RETURN TO LIFE?

It's difficult for many people to believe that the dead will rise as Christ promised.

The common question is: "How can the human body, decomposed and broken into countless atoms be restored?" On the surface this is a reasonable doubt. But if you ask this question, are you taking into account the immeasurable power of God?

If God can overcome nothingness to give us human bodies, can he not also overcome death and dissolution to restore them? How God will do this is just as difficult to understand as how he created the wonders of nature we see all about us.

HISTORICAL PROOF — The fact that God intends to resurrect the dead is verified by the undeniable testimony of history. Christ promised that man, like Himself, would return from the dead and live again forever.

When he proved his prediction and returned from beyond the grave, his reappearance was witnessed by the apostles . . . and on one occasion by more than 500 people!

WHAT CATHOLICS BELIEVE — Catholic beliefs about what will happen after death differ from those of other Christians. If you are a fellow Christian and would like to understand why Catholics believe as they do, you will find the free Knights of Columbus pamphlet entitled "What Happens After Death" most revealing.

If you do not formally belong to any Church group, you might find in the pages of this literature sound reasons for becoming a practicing Christian . . . for among the questions it probes are:

What will man be like after his resurrection? Why does man go through two judgements? What kind of an existence can we expect in the next world? For a free copy of "What Happens After Death", simply mail the coupon. The pamphlet will be sent in a plain wrapper and no one will call on you.
